Republic Sales Hit $4,000,000 Mark

new season product since May and deals with principal circuits throughout the country have all been closed, he said.

It is understood selling under the consent decree has indirectly benefitted Republic. Circuit heads have closed early with the company this year in order to clear the decks for negotiations on blocks of pictures offered by the five majors.

Eastern regional sales meeting was concluded yesterday at the New York Athletic Club. Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated, who presided over the meeting with Grainger, disclosed the studio's production budget had been upped to $9,000,000.

Following the meeting, Grainger and Yates flew to Chicago last night to attend the two-day Midwest-Southern meeting which begins today at the Drake Hotel. Chicago session will likewise deal with company's sales progress and production plans.

In addition to Yates and Grainger, the following representatives will attend the meeting in Chicago: William Baker, Chicago branch manager; Jack Franckman, Milwaukee branch manager; L. W. Marriott, Indianapolis branch manager; Nat Steinberg, St. Louis branch manager; Lloyd Rust, Dallas branch manager; Sol Davis, Oklahoma City franchise holder; Arthur Bromberg, Southeastern franchise holder; Merritt Davis, Atlanta branch manager; Harold Laird, Tampa branch manager; J. H. Dillon, Charlotte branch manager; L. V. Seicshnaydre, New Orleans branch manager; Winfield H. Snelson, Memphis branch manager, and Gilbert Nathanson, Minneapolis branch manager.

Yates and Grainger will return to New York immediately after the meeting.

"Ice-Capades" Tonight

Coast premiere of Republic's "Ice-Capades" takes place at the Warner's Hollywood and Downtown Theaters in Los Angeles tonight. Film will have special opening in Minneapolis on Friday at Gopher Theater. Dorothy Lewis, skating star of the film, who is a native of St. Paul and currently appearing at the ice show at the Nicollet Hotel in Minneapolis, will be the center of festivities. Bill Saal, home office representative, has been in Minneapolis for past week preparing for the opening. Host of Republic stars headed by Gene Autry will attend.

Lull Closes Theater

Oklahoma City—The Western theater, operated by L. B. Warren on W. 10th St. here, a new house which has been operating only three months, has been closed. Warren also operates the Ritz, Yukon, Okla. Slow business was the reason for closing.

FOR the second consecutive picture, Gregory Ratoff has used the services of Adolf Bohm as dance director. Ratoff is now filming scenes of village dancers at a festival for Edward Small's "The Corsican Brothers," at Sherwood Forest. Bohm, famous as co-star with Nijinsky and Pavlova in the first Russian ballet to make world tours, has been a leading dance director and ballet master in the United States for 20 years, beginning with work for Florenz Ziegfeld.

EDWARD H. GRIFFITH is calling on a number of prominent directors to assist him in selecting two prominent figures from the extra ranks, who, in their estimation, warrant an opportunity for advancement. Griffith's next assignment for Paramount will be "Out of the Frying Pan." It is his plan to put at least two or perhaps four unknown players in the supporting cast, as he figures this play affords the opportunity to do so.

HAVING seen "sneak previews" of the picturization of "Ladies In Retirement," which he produced on Broadway, Gilbert Miller has returned to New York, well pleased with the work Producer Lester Cowan did on the picture. It will be released by Columbia.

MARY MARTIN has competition in the form of Richard Halliday, the agent. T'other day, on leaving Columbia, handsome Halliday was pounced upon by autograph hunters. By the way, in private life, Mary is Mrs. Halliday.

SAMUEL GOLDWYN has assigned Gregg Toland as director of cinematography on "Ball of Fire," starring Gary Cooper with Barbara Stanwyck, directed by Howard Hawks. Toland just completed work on "The Little Foxes."

HOLLYWOOD'S newest song-writing team is Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. The comedy pair have just sold their first melody endeavor to the Mills Music Company. The song is entitled "Abbott and Costello" and consists of an abridged version of their famous argumentative routines. What is significant about the contract signed with Mills Music Company was the fact that it came about on the fifteenth anniversary of that firm's publishing of the famous "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" melody.

WALT DISNEY has assigned Alexander Steinert to conduct the orchestra recording and music for "Bambi," the Disney feature length picturization of the book due for release in late Fall. In addition to conducting the orchestra, he will collaborate with Edward Plumb and Frank Churchill, musical directors of the picture, in the preparation of orchestral arrangements.

JEAN YARBROUGH has been assigned the direction of "Top Sergeant Mulligan," the Monogram story of Army life scripted by Edmond Kelso. The director has just completed "Let's Go Collegiate," with Frankie Darro heading the cast which includes Jackie Moran, Keye Luke, Gale Storm and Marcia Mae Jones.

DAGMAR COSTELLO, Dan Curtis and Irving Mitchell, film players, are among the members of the cast appearing in "Undesirable Lady" at the Monica Playhouse. The play is by Leon Gordon, M-G-M scenarist, and was staged by Don Brodie.

MARTIN MOONEY has signed Francis X. Bushman and Clara Kimball Young to play featured roles in "Mr. Celebrity" which will be directed by William Beaudine for Producers Releasing Corp. Mooney and Beaudine are co-producers of the picture.

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON has been signed by Warner Bros. for one of the leading roles in "The Black Widow" and Herbert Anderson will play the role originally assigned to William Lundigan, who asked for and was given his release from his term contract.

DISMISSING all casting troubles and talent searches from his mind, Edward H. Griffith, producer-director, will leave for a two months' vacation tour of South America on completion of his present picture, "Bahama Passage," for Paramount. "Out of the Frying Pan" is his next assignment.

PHILIP REED, who recently completed "Aloma of the South Seas" for Paramount, and is now working in "Week-End for Three" at RKO, where he is under contract, has been offered one of the top spots in George O'Neal's play "Not on Friday" by the Playwrights Co. in New York.

CHARLIE RUGGLES, now working in "Go West Young Lady" for Columbia, has bought three novels, all domestic comedies, which Ruggles plans as a basis for negotiating a contract for himself to co-star in a series of such films.

MARTIN MOONEY has signed Johnny Burke and Larry Grey for roles in "Mr. Celebrity" which goes before the cameras tomorrow for Producers Releasing Corp.

Eastman Six-Month Sales Increase 29%

899 as against $12.092,274 last year, or an increase of 67 per cent. From this profit there was deducted an amount of $7,292,474 to provide for income and excess-profits taxes based on the tax laws in effect at the date of this report. A further deduction of $2,500,000 was made to take care of the probable increase in taxes that will result from enactment of the United States Revenue Act now under consideration by Congress. This aggregate provision for taxes of $9,792,474 compares with $2,913,104 for the six periods of 1940.

Profit Equals $4.15

The consolidated net profit of the Company for the six periods of 1941 amounted to $10,460,425, equal to $4.15 per share of common stock after deducting dividends on the preferred stock. The earnings for the corresponding six periods of 1940 were $9,179,170, or $3.63 per share of common stock.

Contracts for special military equipment such as height finders, aiming circles, telescopes, and time fuses amounting to approximately $44,000,000 have been placed with the company by the United States Government. Work on these contracts is progressing satisfactorily, and deliveries are being made in accordance with contract schedules. Due to the time required in obtaining necessary production facilities to manufacture equipment of a type never before made by the company, such deliveries up to the present have not been extensive. As slated in the last annual report, the company has undertaken to limit its profit on negotiated bid contracts to 10 per cent of cost before income taxes.

The operations of the subsidiary companies situated in the British Isles, Continental Europe, Africa, and Asia are not reflected in the statement of profit and loss. In general, these companies continue to operate on a satisfactory basis, although some of them are finding it difficult to secure materials and supplies. Damage to the foreign properties of the company as a result of military action has been negligible.

Organizations not affiliated with Allied are expected to send representatives to the national convention in Philadelphia next month, reports from the field indicated yesterday.

It was reported that the proposal of Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, for an industry-wide committee to act on industry problems had reacted favorably among independent groups and that a concerted effort by unaffiliated units to bring the idea to a reality would be made.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the

SPECIAL PARAMOUNT TRADESHOWS

Salesmen Instructed to Arrange Special Screenings For Exhibitors in Outlying Districts

Paramount salesmen have been instructed to arrange special trade screenings for exhibitors in outlying districts where it is difficult for theater owners to make trips to exchange centers. These special shows are experimental, but if they prove to be well attended, they will be continued.

One of the first territories to launch the Paramount special screenings was in Michigan where "Hold Back the Dawn" and "Nothing But the Truth" were presented. Two special tradeshowings were offered, one at the Eaton Theater in Charlotte for Western Michigan exhibitors and the other at the Pines Theater at Prudenville for exhibitors in the Eastern and Northern districts of the state.

A similar plan was inaugurated by Warner Bros.

stein, Smith, division manager, and others will start a three-day convention in the Weldon Hotel, Greenfield, Mass., Tuesday, Aug. 19.

Edward M. Dowling, manager of the Capitol; Norman Prager, manager of the Palace; Francis X. Beaupre, manager of the Strand, and James M. Jerauld, manager of the Colonial and publicity and advertising representative for the company in the Berkshire County area, will attend.

On the program will be the awarding of prizes to managers leading the drive, the starting of a Happy Movie New Year Campaign announcements on details of a new junior admission plan, talks by representatives of major distributing companies, a Hollywood preview of an unnamed new picture Wednesday night at the Garden Theater, with a broadcast over Station WHAI. Business will be interrupted by golf and other entertainment during the progress of the meeting.

Editors and other representatives of newspapers from cities on the circuit—Springfield, Westfield, Chicopee, Holyoke, Northampton, Pittsfield, North Adams, Brattleboro and Greenfield will be guests at a dinner Tuesday night.

Harry Smith, division manager, will be guest of honor throughout, with the hotel decorations featuring his picture along with President Nathan E. Goldstein and Vice-President Samuel Goldstein.

Smith has achieved something of a record in the film business by staying with the same employers since the start of the business. He began with the Goldstein brothers when they opened their first penny arcades. At one time he was a projectionist. For many years he has held various executive posts, and since the formation of Western Massachusetts Theaters, Inc., as a Paramount partner five years ago, he has been division manager.

Loew's Loses Patent Case Over Stage Curtain

Loew's, Inc., and M-G-M Pictures Corp. were hit yesterday with a decision of Federal Judge Robert Nevin which ruled after trial that they had infringed upon a patented stage curtain and awarded an injunction and an accounting of profits in favor of the plaintiff Francis E. Weidhaas. The Court rejected the defendants' claim that the stage curtain, patented in 1930, was not novel in that it had been used as early as 1897.

The opinion pointed out that the defendants had admitted use of the curtain in a number of its houses. Decision noted that the curtain which is easily adaptable as a setting is presently used at Radio City Music Hall and stated that it was a valuable advance in the art and widely accepted by the theatrical industry.

Mae Murray Sues Rose Over "Merry Widow"

Claiming exclusive right to the "Merry Widow Waltz," on the ground that she had created it in the film of that title in 1925, Mae Murray filed suit yesterday in the New York Supreme Court against Billy Rose, Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe, Georges Fontana and Mitzi Haynes, and asked for $150,000 damages and an injunction.

Plaintiff, according to the complaint, reenacted the dance with Fontana at Rose's Diamond Horseshoe from March 15 to July 23 in a production called "Cavalcade of the Silver Screen." After July 23, the complaint charges Rose paired Fontana with Haynes for the dance while continuing to use the plaintiff's name in exploitation.

Capra Ends Deal For Joining UA

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—Frank Capra yesterday put an end to the lengthy negotiations with United Artists to join that organization. His announcement to that effect stated that he had withdrawn because of delays on the part of UA. "I can't afford to deal forever," Capra was quoted as saying.

It is understood that David O. Selznick will continue his own negotiations for joining UA. He made no comment on Capra's withdrawal.

Capra had bought three stories which he intended to produce for UA release — "The Flying Yorkshireman," "Tomorrow Never Comes" and an untitled story.

Parachute Battalion Helps Celebrate Opening

Atlanta, Ga. — Warmly welcomed by Governor Talmadge, Mayor LeCraw, and high army officers, the 500 men and officers of the 501st Parachute Battalion received a genuine Southern welcome as they came by special train from Fort Benning for the world premiere at the Fox Theater of RKO Radio's "Parachute Battalion."

From Hollywood came Edmond O'Brien, co-starred in the picture with Robert Preston, Nancy Kelly and Harry Carey. Dorothy Comingore, signed to a long-term RKO Radio contract following her work in Orson Welles' Mercury Production "Citizen Kane" was also in the contingent.

The participation of the 501st Parachute Battalion in the premiere of the first picture to depict the volunteers dedicated to the newest branch of Uncle Sam's fighting forces was particularly auspicious, since they took part in the making of the picture at Fort Benning. It was the battalion's first mass appearance off the reservation since its formation.

Atlantans were curious to see the battalion as a group, while the parachutists were eager to see themselves in the RKO Radio picture.

Navy planes from Camp Gordon flew overhead during the parade through downtown Atlanta to the Shrine Mosque, where the parachutists were entertained at a dinner. Then in a body they moved to the Fox Theater. The premiere was followed by the Parachute Battalion Ball in the municipal auditorium, proceeds going to the USO.

talling five features for 1940. Finances are limited and the cost of a production is kept down to $7,000 to $15,000 U. S. currency. The Government does not subsidize native production. While there is no objection to dubbing in Portuguese, the native language, there is no demand for it.

The European war has had little effect on the film situation except for the censoring of anything considered offensive to the warring nations.

Total number of U. S. films rejected, including shorts and features, in 1940 was nine. One British film was rejected. Many films are reported to have had cuts ordered by the censor, but data on the number is not available. Numerous films were "restricted" to showing to adult audiences only. Some films are restricted as to children under 10; others to children under 14, still others to those under 18.

Total investment in the motion picture industry in Brazil is now $5,000,000 U. S. currency. Of this amount $500,000 was in 1940 for equipment and production facilities. The country has 1,350 film theaters with a seating capacity between 650,000 and 750,000. Average weekly attendance is 1,950,000, with seats being filled approximately three times weekly. Estimates of yearly gross income from the picture theaters is $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 U. S. currency. At least 1,200 theaters are wired for sound.

Average admission price is seven and a half cents, U. S. money (one and a half milreis). Admission to popular American films, first-run, is 8.8 milreis.

PLAIN TALK
. . . about equipment

By GEORGE H. MORRIS

Equipment Editor, THE FILM DAILY

TIME was when the Summer atmosphere of film theaters paralleled perforce the vagaries of the exterior weather conditions. If the day happened to be one of high temperature, the auditorium followed suit. Whirling fans were not enough to make the human fans comfortable. So the latter found the movie house a relatively uninviting resort, with the result that box-office "takes" annually went into a period of prostration.

—o—

TODAY, air conditioning in a highly perfected state, and widely applied, has delivered the film stand from slavery of Heat and Humidity. The delivering angel has been equipment, and it is to the everlasting glory of that field's engineers that they have been able to provide a potent panacea for prostrated grosses, above and beyond any ability which good film product possessed.

—o—

THIS, then, brings us face to face with a vital industry matter, which perhaps can best be described as "interdependency." Just as the world has progressed to a point where each nation finds itself affected by events in other lands, so also does each apparently separate arm of filmland discover that it is a part of a common body, and that what occurs,—good or bad,—in any portion of that body, bring repercussions throughout the mass.

—o—

CURRENTLY, equipment of film houses is playing an unprecedented role in industry well-being. It is not only aiding the exhibitor and public, but the distributor and producer. Obviously, it demonstrates that "interdependency" is not just

Pre-Fabrication Held Path To Circumvent Problems Poised by Defense Needs

Spread of film theater construction to small American communities which currently are lacking motion picture exhibition facilities is visualized as one of the outgrowths of building material and metal shortages attending the national defense effort, according to architectural channels within the industry.

While such a move seems paradoxical, sources points out, nevertheless such a result is looked-for because of the possibilities which prefabricated buildings present as a low-cost substitute for present construction practices. Erection of such a two-dollar word, but the very cornerstone of filmland's operations.

—— o ——

AN excellent example of equipment's contribution to the current scene is its having provided the cornerstone whereon rested the promotional campaigns carried on by the trade, in cooperation with many top-flight newspapers. These campaigns initiated by theater interests, in some instances, and by the newspapers themselves, in others, called upon the public to take "vacations" at the movie houses, pointing out all the comfort and recreation obtainable. A few of the many intensive campaigns were staged through the columns of Philadelphia's Evening Bulletin, the New York Post, and the Indianapolis Star, with the latter heavily accenting the theme, "It's Cool at the Movies."

—— o ——

YARDSTICK of the many campaigns' success is furnished by the indication that even more of them will be unleashed next Summer. When they are, it will be well for their inaugurators to stress even more equipment elements which make for the public's comfort. True air conditioning, while admittedly a whale of a magnet in attracting warm-months patronage, is, however, not the only pebble on the beach of the movie vacation "resort." National Theater Supply Co. very correctly calls attention to the part played by good projection and sound.

Yes, and so should sponsors and manufacturers of other equipment, such as chairs, screens, fabrics, lighting, drinking fountains, et al.

—— o ——

LIKE "Topsy," the campaigns this Summer appeared to "just growed." They were more spontaneous than planned. How much greater would have been their benefits if they had been planned by the "interdependent" branches of filmland, plus the nation's press. Perhaps the dog-days of 1942 will see that accomplished. It is not too early to do that planning NOW.

The sooner all wings of this industry understand the mutual character of their cause, and what a valuable ally equipment is, the smoother will be the sailing.

This is our sixtieth year of service in the field of carbon arc lighting. Throughout the years "National" carbons, by constant research and development, have been steadily improved and adapted to the needs of the times.

● The most satisfactory projection of modern films requires a white light of daylight quality. This means high intensity projection. Color that is really natural — snappy black and white — comfortable vision at all times assure audience satisfaction which spells success for any theatre.

The modern "One Kilowatt" arcs bring High Intensity projection within the reach of any small theatre. If you are still using Low Intensity projection ask your dealer to demonstrate this new light. The difference is marvelous. Step into High — It pays dividends.

Obsolescence Drop Indicated This Year

best shape" of any season in the past.

Anticipation by indie showmen as well as circuits of their physical theater needs as long ago as Jan. 1 of this year has brought volume orders to equipment manufacturers and dealers, and most of these orders have already been filled, although in recent weeks deliveries in some categories have been slow.

In some quarters, "on hand" orders point to even stepped-up modernization during the balance of 1941, the expectancy of equipment business growth being contingent upon the priorities situation.

Sectional Activity Marked

Both new theater and modernization gains have been registered particularly of late in the Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago sectors, with the West Coast also showing marked tendency to erect new houses and overhaul existing ones. Additionally, a check-up shows that the South, particularly Florida, has made notable strides in new construction and equipment replacements.

Camp theaters,—scores of which have been put up by the Government, —have added sharp impetus to equipment sales, and the latter have been attended, statistics for the first six months of 1941 disclose, by many orders issuing from communities near the trainee centers where influx of population has been the spur leading to the building of new theaters and the re-equipment of many reopened houses.

Air Conditioning an Aid

Typical of the strides in film theater improvement for year-round operation, and the slashing of obsolescence, has been the unusual volume of true air conditioning units installed. This has been manifested, for example, by the orders received by companies such as U. S. Air Conditioning which has boosted its manufacturing facilities to a great extent to take care of volume theater demand entirely aside for its Government contracts.

Projection and sound units have enjoyed brisk demand thus far this year, as have the new types of screens, theater chairs, signs, carpet and other items.

Consensus of manufacturer and distributor sources indicates that, barring contingencies, the 12 months of 1941 will see equipment obsolescence reduced by at least 5 per cent.

Push Backs Chosen For 2 NBC Studios

were selected also for the reason that the "push back" feature enables studio guests to gain easy access to microphones during quiz and kindred programs without disturbing their fellow onlookers.

New theaters receiving Push Backs include the DaVue, Dayton, O., which has its premiere on Monday; Main Theater, Royal Oak, Mich.; Adams, Dorchester, Mass.; Coral, Oaklawn, Ill.; Uptown, Rolla, Mo.; and Falmouth, Falmouth, Mass.

RKO Radio's exchange in Boston, Philadelphia and here in Chicago have completed their installations of Push Backs.

Additional recent installations include the new Mercury, Detroit; Krim, Detroit; new Esquire, Plainfield, Ill.; Arlington, Arlington Heights, Ill., which is virtually a new house as it is enlarged from a 400-seater to an 800-seater; Tower, San Diego, Cal., and the Spreckles there; the new 1,200-seat Curto, Tiajuana, Mexico; and the new West Seattle, Washington.

Numerous reseating jobs include the local Hub, and the Liberty, Vandalia, Ill.

Palace Is Remodeling From Pancoast Plans

Key West, Fla.—Russell T. Pancoast, Miami Beach architect, has completed plans for alterations and remodeling of the Palace Theater. The remodeling is planned to mark the tenth anniversary of the opening of the theater.

Lobby will be transformed into a Spanish patio. New deep cushioned seats will be installed and RCA sound equipment of the latest type will replace the old set now in use. Other improvements call for new projection machines, automatic curtain and enlarged ladies' lounge and men's room. Gonzalo Bezanilla is manager.

Simplex for Loew-Poli Houses

New Haven — National Theater Supply will install new E-7 Simplex projectors and lamp houses in the Loew-Poli houses, beginning with the Loew-Poli, Waterbury, at once. National's Simplex projectors, lamp houses and rectifiers have been installed in the Black Rock, Bridgeport.

"Bandbox" Theaters Seen Industry Aid

buildings could be achieved, it is stated, without having to face the steel problem now confronting contractors,—a problem which may increase rather than diminish as the defense program has more and more demands placed upon it.

Architects assert that "bandbox" theaters can be effectively and efficiently designed, particularly for communities whose size has thus far precluded the adoption of sweeping and complicated building codes such as exist necessarily in larger centers of population.

Structural Sections Source

Two additional factors, it is declared, are accelerating the logical trend toward the "bandbox" stands. First, several new companies are poised to enter the pre-fabricated housing field, with backing of "smart" industrial money, and these companies may easily gear their facilities to turn out the basic structural sections of theaters. Secondly, the U. S. Government is finding that even so-called temporary buildings in Army training centers can be made safe for modern film exhibition through proper control.

An example of the latter is the establishment of a separate rewinding room, directly in the real of the projection room of the theater recently opened at Camp Polk, near Leesville, La., by Earl Ingalls, engineer for the Army Motion Picture Service, who is on special detail out of Washington for the installation of equipment in the nation's camp theaters. He has pointed out that the separate rewinding room has become a special feature of such theaters to eliminate the possibility of ignition from the arcs of the projectors. Projection and rewind units installed at Camp Polk and elsewhere are of fireproof construction, with automatic releases on all doors and openings.

Benefit to Equip. Firms

The advent of pre-fabricated theaters would, architects assert, be conducive to the wider sale of film theater equipment of all types. Such outlets could afford, as a result of the construction economies effected, the very best in seating, projection, sound, lighting, carpets, and all other requisites for comfort.

It is further cited that the extension of motion picture facilities of an ultra-modern nature into communities now lacking them would increase national attendance, and furnish producer-distributor organizations with further outlets for product.

Syndicate Buys Imperial

Dorsar Enterprises, Inc., Dora Wolf, president, of 1440 Broadway, have bought the Imperial Theater at 238 to 250 W. 46th St. from Alfred J. Callahan, trustee, for $280,500. The seller acquired the property last December through foreclosure of a mortgage judgment of $373,243.

Theater Openings Hinge on Such Small Items —And in This Case the Item Was . . . Hinges!

Detroit—That old story about "for want of a nail, a kingdom was lost," had nothing on Ray Moon, general manager of Mutual Theaters here. Ray, in partnership with Jack Krass, set the opening date for their new Main Theater in the suburb of Royal Oak. Invitations were printed, but three days before the scheduled debut, it was found that the house couldn't open. Reason: Defense priorities made it impossible to get hinges for the doors. There was no way of closing-up the house . . . so it couldn't open! Postponement was taken.

CAC Acts to Construct Suburban Honolulu Stand

Honolulu, Hawaii—A new theater in the Palama district, suburban area of Honolulu, is proposed by the Consolidated Amusement Co.

Esmond I. Parker, general manager of Consolidated, appeared before the city planning commission requesting business zoning that would make the theater possible. Proposed site is the corner of Dillingham Blvd. and Libby St.

Parker was asked about parking arrangements and replied that there would be room in the rear of the proposed theater building and said that the company would not object if parking were banned on Dillingham Blvd. The latter street is the main road to Pearl Harbor and Schofield and is subject to unprecedented traffic due to defense work. Action was promised by the commission at an early date.

Greenbergers-Amster Lease Community Theater

Cleveland — Henry Greenberger and Leo Greenberger of Community Circuit, and Seymour Amster, owner of five houses in Elyria, have leased the 1,600-seat de luxe theater which is to be part of a $350,000 development in the University - Shaker Heights section at Fairmount and North Park Blvds. The lease runs for 20 years, totalling $315,000, plus a percentage.

In addition to the theater, the project will have ten store units. George Howard Burrows, architect, has designed a Colonial type of structure for the Fairmount Center Co. of which Henry Gottfried is secretary-treasurer. General contract has been awarded to the William Dolin Construction Co. Work is already under way.

Haines Leases Stanley

The Stanley Theater property, consisting of a two-story building in a plot 59.3 by 100 feet at 786-90 Seventh Ave., between 41st and 42nd Sts., near Times Square, has been leased by Howard E. Haines to the Markmo Amusement Corp., Maurice Mauer, president. Tankoos, Smith & Co., were the brokers.

RCA to Distribute Brenkert Products

pendent supply dealers with whom we have dealt for many years.

"There is an increasing demand for Brenkert products, and I believe that RCA Photophone, with its comprehensive sales and service organizations, is equipped to render better service than ever before to both the supply dealer and the motion picture exhibitor."

RCA Photophone's district offices will carry a complete line of parts and their service organizations will be available to supplement the service facilities of the independent supply dealers.

Brenkert products are well known and widely used in all sections of the U. S. and in most of the foreign countries, and Brenkert lamps are used in approximately 5,000 theaters in the U. S. alone. In 1939 they introduced their automatically lubricated projector and have already installed over 600 of these in theaters throughout the country.

RCA has for some time been cooperating with the leading independent supply dealers in the various film distributing centers in the sale of theater equipment and this is undoubtedly an important step toward strengthening this affiliation.

"THEY MET IN BOMBAY"

There's magic in carpet, too. The right carpet often can go a long way towards banishing Box Office Blues. One reason why you find Alexander Smith Carpet in most of the country's successful theatres.

ALEXANDER SMITH CARPET

Schlanger Announces New Exhib. Service

Ben Schlanger, theater architect and consultant on theater design and maintenance, announces a new service to the exhibitor. Because of the realization of the importance of proper sight lines and seating arrangements in modern motion picture exhibition, Schlanger is inaugurating a service whereby the floor slopes, seating arrangements and seat design will be surveyed, checked and a report made for existing theaters.

This work will be done under the personal supervision of Schlanger and, where requested, recommendations will be made to the exhibitor for the correction of faulty visual and seating conditions.

One of the important benefits to be derived from this service is that in many instances it will be possible to correct some faulty conditions at a very small cost. There should be many instances where the exhibitor would be anxious to make such improvements if he were aware of the conditions warranting them, Schlanger points out.

Mechanized defense takes a different form in America today; indeed, takes many different forms. In the projection room, the Altec Service man provides a scientifically mechanized defense against the undue wear and premature wear-out of the equipment and its parts. When, under pressure of priorities, the business watchword is "Conserve!"—then Altec Service assumes an importance that is becoming increasingly clear to foresighted exhibitors.

"Dive Bomber"

starring Errol Flynn, Fred MacMurray
Warner Bros. 133 Mins.

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

AIR SPECTACLE CINCH FOR FULL EXPLOITATION; STORY WEAK BUT POSSIBILITIES FOR GOOD BIZ OKAY.

Because it stars Errol Flynn and Fred MacMurray, because it shows some of the most beautiful Technicolor yet seen and because it's timely, "Dive Bomber" should be responsible for a neat take at all stands.

Too much trust has been put in spectacle and not enough in human drama in the screenplay. Also differing from the format used in other Warner service pictures is a lack of comedy.

Michael Curtiz's direction is smooth and during the diving scenes tense, but there seems to be a lack of body in the dialogue which takes away greatly from the thrill sequences. Robert Lord, in his production chore, has used just about all the equipment (Naval) that we have on the West Coast.

Performances are all good. Errol Flynn takes top honors for smooth acting—with MacMurray and Regis Toomey painted a little too glum to stand out. The attempt to take in several side plots has resulted in something rather hodge-podge.

Errol Flynn, a naval surgeon, loses a patient, injured in a dive bombing demonstration crash in which he "blacked-out," and becomes the subject of the flier's pals' ire.

Because he is interested in flying, he enlists in aviation and takes instructions from his enemies, Fred MacMurray and Regis Toomey.

Through a series of incidents in which he proves his ability to take it and his earnest desire to further the cause of aviation medicine, he wins MacMurray's friendship only to be forced to ground him for ill health.

MacMurray, realizing he will not be able to fly much longer, takes up a plane to test an altitude suit he and Flynn have invented and is killed.

However, before he crashes he scribbles the secret of why the suit failed and is awarded, posthumously, a decoration for his valor.

There is one thing about this film that is certainly in its favor. The Navy will boost it to the skies and there are probably more opportunities for exploitation here than in any picture released in a long time.

Theater Business Booms In Montgomery, Ala.

Montgomery, Ala.—Demand for screen entertainment is so insistent and consistent here that capacity business continues to prevail in spite of torrid weather, trek of vacationists to the Gulf Coast, picnics and revivals, a polio epidemic and a Shrine jamboree.

Not one of the theaters here is failing to cash in on the urge for film entertainment and this goes, too, for the town's first nabe, opened a few weeks ago. All houses are running grind and seats are at a premium on Saturday and Sunday nights. Early shows at 11 a.m. at some theaters were restored with lifting of the power curtailment ban until Sept. 1.

wide tour by special plane in behalf of "Navy Blues," latest of the company's filmusicals.

Air junket of the sextet is expected to create even more interest in cities visited than either of its predecessors. Reasons for high hopes is the fact that the sextet is composed of girls who all have individual reputations as beauties, and since its formation the group has landed repeatedly in news and picture pages of all large papers in the country as well as many magazines.

The girls, selected by vote of U. S. Navy gobs, are Kay Aldridge, Georgia Carroll, Peggy Diggins, Claire James, Marguerite Chapman and Lorraine Gettman.

Accompanying them on the junket will be a chaperone who will be at least as interesting as the girls themselves, for the duenna will be one of the three surviving members of the Floradora Sextette.

Tour will start early in September, with cross-continent hop to New York, where sextet will make two-week stand at Strand Theater before taking to the airways again. Then the aggregation will work its way back to the coast with stops at all big centers — Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, Salt Lake City and San Francisco.

Fire Scene on Screen Panics 107-Year-Old Negro; Sees His First Motion Picture Show

Huntsville, Ala.—A 107-year-old Madison County Negro, seeing his first movie, jumped from his seat and hurried away as fast as creaky old legs would carry him. Caught by a stranger who wanted to know why his hurry, the ex-slave's answer was: "Man, I'se gittin away, cause everything is on fire. I'se too old to fight wid dem men and I better git away."

A forest fire scene had been flashed on the screen. When the stranger explained, the old darky said: "I didn' know thar was sich a thing in the world as a show dat moved and talked."

Movie Vacation Plan Gets Okay of Theaters

survey conducted by Montague indicates that the entire nation has become "Movie-Vacation" conscious by the campaign.

The survey points out that the more than 12,000 motion picture theaters, comprising major circuits and important independent groups, are behind the "Movie-Vacation" plan to the fullest. Such important major theater circuits as Loew's, Fox West Coast, the Skouras Theaters, Paramount, Warner Brothers, RKO, as well as such independent chains as the U. S. Butterfield Theaters, Comerford Circuit, E. M. Loew, and others have furthered the plan with special program announcements, trailers, window cards and local radio tie-ups. In addition, the "Movie-Vacation" idea has been given the whole-hearted support of other film producing companies that have seen in this plan one of the most important prestige and attendance-getting campaigns ever placed before the public.

Newspapers Support It

An important factor in making the "Movie-Vacation" idea one of the most effective good-will campaigns ever begun on behalf of the motion picture industry has been the whole-hearted support of the nation's newspapers. Despite incomplete returns, the survey emphasizes the fact that more than 60 newspapers, among them such important publications as the New York Journal-American, the New York Post, Chicago Herald-American, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, St. Louis Star-Times, Buffalo Courier-Express, Rochester Democrat-Chronicle and Times-Union, Cincinnati Post, Toledo Blade, have contributed lavish newspaper space toward this campaign. In many instances, notably the Chicago Herald-American, full-page advertisements were used to call the attention of moviegoers to the advantages of taking a "Movie-Vacation" at the local theater. In all instances, according to the Columbia survey, the campaigns were instituted by the newspapers as a good-will promotion on behalf of local theaters and at no cost to the exhibitor.

Small Papers, Too

From metropolitan centers to the smallest village boasting a movie theater, the newspaper support is said to have been tremendous. Among the other newspapers represented in the "Movie Vacation" campaign are:

Tulsa, Okla. Daily World; Tulsa, Okla. Tribune; Emporia, Kans., Gazette; Bellaire, O., Leader; Charleston, S. C. News & Courier; Lynn, Mass., Telegram-News; Syracuse, N. Y., Herald-Journal; Union, S. C. Daily Times; Ruthton, Minn. The buletin released with the first issue of the digest commented:

"When we consider the rentals being asked by the consenting companies for their first blocks of pictures, it is of vital importance to every exhibitor that he have some accurate line on what he is buying, and it is for this reason that we have decided to issue the digest."

Ta-Kit, New Premium, In Fabian and WB Houses

Close Disney Studios For 2 Wks. Starting Today

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—Vice-President Guenther Lessing announced temporary closing of Disney studio for two weeks starting today. He stated that because of loss of a large part of the company's world-wide market, the organization could not continue its operations unless a substantial reduction in its personnel was made and that necessity for such reduction is readily conceded by the Screen Cartoonists Guild.

Lessing said the company is ready to pay full compensation to any employe whom Federal arbitration commissioners feel under terms of the recent award has been wrongfully laid off.

RKO Radio Establishes Junior Writing Department

Starting immediately, RKO Radio Pictures will launch a search for "junior" writing talent to augment the studio scenario staff. The talent will be gleaned from universities, newspapers and the ranks of young writers just breaking successfully into the magazine field.

In charge of formulating and putting the plan into operation is Collier Young, head of RKO Radio's Hollywood studio story department.

"We plan to start with six young writers," says Young. "These will be brought to the studio and placed under the supervision of senior writers, whose duties will be to advise them, observing and reporting on their progress."

Majors Deny Reports Of Slow Selling

he had "never seen anything like it," adding that "it hasn't been slow with us."

William Sussman, Eastern division manager of 20th Century-Fox, declared that the success of "Charley's Aunt" had stimulated sales on the initial block and that selling had been strong right down the line. He said there was no indication of exhibitors holding back in making deals.

RKO sales on the first package have picked up at a terrific pace during the last week, according to Andy Smith, general sales manager. Selling was a little slow at the beginning of the new sales method, he said, but things "are moving right along," he added.

Among the so-called "Little Three" business also is reported to be brisk. William Scully, Universal general sales manager, said on Friday that sales to date on the new program were 10 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year. He said Universal's sales had picked up considerable since the "Big Five" had started to sell the packages.

Comments from other sales chiefs were not available but reports indicate that sales have not been as slow as they have been described in many quarters. James R. Grainger, Republic president, revealed last week that his company already had signed $4,000,000 in new contracts.

Disney Artists Comb Harlem for Inspiration

Staff members of Walt Disney's studio in Hollywood combed Harlem hot spots during the week gathering final inspiration for a certain sequence which will appear in "Dumbo," Disney's next full-length feature cartoon. Main stop on the trip was at the Savoy Ballroom where members of the 400 club of Harlem conducted their regular rug-cutting contest.

Artists turned out many sketches and took several photos of various specialty dancers, which in turn will be studied on the Coast for potential animation. One sequence in "Dumbo" is devoted to boogie woogie.

Crescent Anti-Trust Case Continues

ward H. Raftery, New York, for Universal and United Artists, scheduled to begin immediately the introduction of testimony to rebut testimony offered during a five weeks' period by Government counsel, headed by Robert L. Wright, special Assistant to the Attorney General and head of the movie anti-trust division of the Department of Justice. Defense counsel expect to consume about a week in presenting their case.

Presentation of the plaintiff's testimony and action of Judge Elmer D. Davies Aug. 8 on motions to dismiss will narrow the defense presentation to probably half a dozen situations, among them Madisonville and Earlington, Hopkinsville, Ky.; Union City, Tenn., and Newport and Copperhill, Tenn. These involve not more than a dozen theaters as compared with the 157 houses considered a part of the alleged combine.

May Clear Universal

Counsel Raftery has only one situation to clear up for Universal and claims he can do this in two hours with witnesses to be heard from the Universal exchange at Memphis with reference to the claim that an independent exhibitor from Union City was informed that his contract for 1937-38 with Universal had been prepared and approved and then it is alleged he failed to get it when he called at the Memphis exchange office.

The exhibitor defendants must clear up the implication of illegal and monopolistic control of pictures, clearance on first-runs, etc., in various franchises held with distributors including members of the "Big Five," comprising a muchly discussed series of contracts and franchises involving 73 theaters of the several corporation defendants to the suit.

A bitter fight is certain between plaintiffs and defendants' counsel over the legality of the franchises since Wright and his D of J associates must establish their illegality as a prelude to a successful prosecution of other pending litigations between the Government anti-trust division and exhibitor and distributor groups.

Charge Government "Pressure"

On the day of the adjournment of the case Raftery, counsel for two members of the "Little Three" charged in open court that a principal purpose of these suits is to force the "Little Three" to join the "Big Five" under the consent decree and which his clients plan to oppose to the bitter end. He predicted at that time that the "Big Five" will "come from under" the decree in 1942 if the "Little Three" does not come in. As he sees it, this puts the matter squarely up to plaintiff's counsel, Wright, to make his case in Nashville.

Motions to dismiss acted on favorably Aug. 8 set Columbia among the distributors, and Strand Enterprises, Inc., and Nu-Strand Corp., among the exhibitor groups, free as defendants. Missing from the defense counsel group is Louis T. Frohlich, counsel for Columbia, and his associate.

Erickson Gets His Man; Warfield Manager Tracks Down Soldier Who Lost His Wallet

San Francisco—The Northwest Mounted Police may always get its man—but that outfit has nothing on A. A. Erickson, manager of the Warfield here. Seven months ago, Private Raymond L. Suen lost his wallet in the theater. A member of the staff found it.

Manager Erickson since then has spent most of his time addressing letters to the warrior. The soldier was moved from the Presidio of San Francisco to the Presidio of Monterey, then to Fort MacArthur, from there to Fort Francis Warren in Wyoming. Finally Erickson, the 'Frisco bloodhound, tracked his man down at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. It took 12 letters to get the wallet, containing about $100 in valuables, back to the soldier.

First All-Selectee-Made Training Film Completed

Fort Monmouth, N. J.—The first all-selectee-made training film has just been completed at the Signal Corps film lab here. The picture was shot at Fort Dix and around Fort Monmouth, and its subject is "Point Control of Traffic and Duties of a Military Policeman."

The picture was also the first to use the system of giving the scriptwriter the job of production as well, in this case Col. Franklin Coen. The Unit Officer on the project was Lt. Garland C. Misener. Sgt. Lee Sholem did the directing, and camera work was done by Pvt. Henry Gerzen, Pvt. Harry Kreider, Pvt. Joseph McElliott, Pvt. Joseph Spalucci, and Pvt. Paul Husserl. The picture contains several animation shots done by Sgt. Chris Gronewald, and processing and stills were handled by Pvt. Ray Estes.

An elaborate miniature was also used in the project, showing a large intersection with convoys of trucks and pleasure cars coming in from all sides. The miniature was made under the guidance of Col. Ed Calkins who did similar work at 20th Century-Fox in Beverly Hills.

Western Electric Farms Out Government Orders

Western Electric Company is letting subcontracts at an average rate of approximately 40 per cent of its Government orders. On $37,000,000 of Government orders now in production in the company's Specialty Products Division Western Electric has farmed out more than $16,000,000 in purchase orders.

On the largest single contract included in the above total, a $17,000,000 order for radio equipment, Western Electric has sublet contracts in excess of $10,000,000, consisting of some 1,400 purchase orders on 250 different suppliers in 14 different states. Principal items for which the manufacturer is making these sub-contracts include vacuum tubes, transformers, generators, meters, and radio parts.

Company officials pointed out that these orders on secondary suppliers represent an efficient means by which the services of skilled workers and the combined plant facilities of scores of smaller manufacturers can be mobilized to speed the delivery of vital communications apparatus, and at the same time relieve the pressure on the machine tool builders of the nation.

Industry Escaped Adverse Legislation

increase in sales taxes although several such bills were introduced unsuccessfully. Encouraging to the industry was the fact that no legislation dealing with censorship was passed.

Attempts at regulating the length of performances because of double and triple features failed, according to the survey, particularly in Illinois where there was a strong organized movement against that type of film program.

Only setback recorded was the legislation passed in Minnesota which outlawed that portion of the consent decree dealing with the sale of pictures in blocks of five. Also in Missouri, third and fourth class rural houses were affected when an old law exempting such houses from taxation was repealed.

The survey indicated that although 92 bills were still pending, there was nothing to fear among those statutes; nor in the business to be enacted by the legislatures of Massachusetts and New Jersey which will reconvene this Fall.

States and the number of bills introduced in each follow:

Arizona, 18; Arkansas, 30; California, 295; Colorado, 22; Connecticut, 113; Delaware, 17; Florida, 21; Georgia, 12; Idaho, 8; Illinois, 30; Indiana, 21; Iowa, 20; Kansas, 8; Maine, 49; Maryland, 34; Massachusetts, 75; Michigan, 41; Minnesota, 20; Missouri, 16; Montana, 22; Nebraska, 12; Nevada, 2; New Hampshire, 17; New Jersey, 7; New Mexico, 18; New York, 109; North Carolina, 10; North Dakota, 15; Ohio, 17; Oklahoma, 30; Oregon, 8; Pennsylvania, 36; Rhode Island, 23; South Carolina, 17; South Dakota, 13; Tennessee, 11; Texas, 19; Utah, 21; Vermont, 8; Washington, 21; West Virginia, 26; Wisconsin, 23; Wyoming, 8.

REVIEWS OF NEW FILMS

"Bad Men of Missouri"

with Dennis Morgan, Jane Wyman, Wayne Morris, Arthur Kennedy

Warners-First National 74 Mins.

HISTORICAL WESTERN BASED ON THE YOUNGER BROTHERS OF JESSE JAMES' DAY.

Fans who like historical westerns telling of bad men of the post-Civil War times, should go for this latest in the cycle. Based on the careers of the Younger brothers, more of the Confederate soldiers who returned from the war to find the carpet-baggers had taken over their lands, the film is actionful enough and contains enough shooting and riding to satisfy the action seekers.

The story has the familiar theme of previous films of the time. The Younger brothers return from the Civil War to find the carpet-baggers have taken over most of the farms in the county and are about to take their father's. When their father is murdered by a phoney sheriff they shoot up the posse and take to outlawing—but with a strictly Robin Hood angle; the money they take is turned over to the farmers to pay off tax warrants held by the Northerners. For a while they work with Jesse James but pull away from that outlaw when he becomes too commercial. Eventually they are caught in another state but the finale gives promise of some sort of a pardon from Missouri for their Robin Hood-like deeds.

Dennis Morgan, Wayne Morris and Arthur Kennedy do adequately with the bad men roles. Victor Jory is the heavy and Jane Wyman, the sweetheart of one of the boys. Walter Catlett is the comedy relief.

"Mystery Ship"

with Paul Kelly, Lola Lane, Larry Parks

Columbia 65 Mins.

GETS VERY LITTLE STEAM AND EXCITEMENT UP AS YARN MAKES FOR ONLY FAIR MELODRAMA.

Aside from a rather timely angle dealing with deportation of dangerous aliens, the film has little in the way of melodramatic substance and suspense.

Director Lew Landers tries hard to make the most of his materials. Script provided by David Silverstein and Houston Branch from a story by Alex Gottleib is of the pulp magazine variety and affords Landers small opportunity for producing an absorbing film.

Casting is another enigma. While Paul Kelly turns in a credible and capable performance, Lola Lane appears mis-cast. Miss Lane neither screens well nor acts convincingly. There are, however, good supporting performances by Larry Parks and Trevor Bardette.

Film has Kelly as a G-Man assigned to a dangerous job just before his marriage to Miss Lane, who plays a newspaper reporter. Couple always plan to get married but usually something crops up. Miss Lane smells a big story breaking on Kelly's assignment so she stows away on the boat.

All the criminals are confined to one large pen in the hold of ship. Due to scheming of Bardette, the prisoners break loose and take over the ship. When Bardette sends a message to a foreign power, Miss Lane tricks him by giving him the wrong answer and the boat meets an American convoy at designated spot. Kelly sends Miss Lane home in the destroyer and he continues with the prisoners.

CAST: Paul Kelly, Lola Lane, Larry Parks, Trevor Bardette, Cy Kendall, Roger Imhoff, Eddie Laughton, John Tyrrell, Byron Foulger, Dick Curtis, Dwight Frye, Kenneth MacDonald.

Bingo Not to Escape New Proposed Taxes

Revenue Code is amended to read as follows:

"(1) RATE.—A tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for admissions to any place, including admission by season ticket or subscription; except that in case the amount paid for admission is less than 10 cents, no tax shall be imposed. In the case of persons (except bona fide employes, municipal officers on official business, children under 12 years of age, members of the military or naval forces of the United States when in uniform, and members of the Civilian Conservation Corps when in uniform) admitted free or at reduced rates to any place at any time when and under circumstances under which an admission charge is made to other persons, an equivalent tax shall be collected based on the price so charged to such other persons for the same or similar accommodations, to be paid by the person so admitted. Amounts paid for admission by season ticket or subscription shall be exempt only if the amount which would be charged to the holder or subscriber for a single admission is less than 10 cents."

REVIEWS OF SHORT SUBJECTS

"How Goes Chile?"

RKO 10 mins.

Interesting Travelogue

Third of the one-reel subjects brought back from South America by Julian Bryan. Reel has timely slant in that it shows the extent of Nazi infiltration in Chilean industry and the German influence upon the Chilean army. Bryan also reveals how America's vast nitrate investment is imperiled by the world situation. Photography is well done.

"The Jungle"

Paramount 11 mins.

Exciting One-Reeler

A highly interesting Technicolor view of the jungle. There are a number of good shots of the killers that lurk in the dark forests. There is one terrific clip which shows a deadly cobra in a fight with a mongoose. This scene is guaranteed to send the pulse up a few notches.

Truant Officer Donald

RKO 8 mins.

One of the Funniest

A real howl which makes for sock program material. Cartoon features Donald Duck as a truant officer whose main problem is getting his three nephews to school. In a number of very funny situations, the trio successfully elude Donald Duck until he finally catches up to them. When Donald finally leads them to school, he discovers the school has been closed for the Summer.

"It's a Hap-Hap-Happy Day"

Paramount 7 mins.

Some Amusing Moments

Cartoon features the Max Fleischer character, Gabby. This time Gabby gets in the hair of the town mayor when he invites himself along on the mayor's fishing trip. He attempts to show the mayor how to do everything, naturally with disastrous results. End has Gabby up a tree with the owls.

"What's Lacrosse"

Paramount 10 mins.

Good Sport Short

A subject devoted to one of the more popular prep and college sports. Reel is handled in humorous and interesting manner. In tracing origin of the game, the short shows the Cherokee Indians of the Smoky Mountains playing the sport the way their ancestors did. Then it shows some college and school outfits in action. Ted Husing handles the narration in his usual absorbing style.

"Craig Wood"

RKO 9 mins.

Beats Par for Program

Good sports reel for exhibs. to capitalize on. It features Craig Wood, U. S. open golf champion. Golf fans will find this reel highly instructive as well as entertaining while camera follows Wood around the course. In addition to advice on how to use certain clubs, Wood makes some spectacular shots. Slow motion heightens the effect. Fredric Ullman, Jr., produced, Joe Walsh directed.

"Orphan's Benefit"

RKO 9 mins.

Exhibs. Will Benefit

Laughs aplenty in this very entertaining Technicolor cartoon featuring Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck. Cartoon has Mickey Mouse acting as emcee for a theatrical show presented for orphans. Most of the Disney characters are trotted out but Donald Duck becomes the target for the orphans' heckling and comes off second best in a series of hilarious episodes.

"Unusual Occupations"

Paramount 11 mins.

Average Program Reel

Subject covers a wide variety of topics. Most lengthy and interesting clip is the one which deals with the famous aquarium at Marineland in Florida. It shows how attendant in diver's suit takes care of the finny tenants. Others show a man who has built a miniature circus for a hobby; a man who makes antique guns and keeps them; an attractive model whose job is to pose for tourists who visit the Cyprus Gardens in Florida and a Kansan who saves, for some unknown reason, the shorn tresses of the fair sex.

"Information Please"
(No. 13)

RKO-Pathe 9 mins.

Experts Score Again

With Anna Neagle, making a charming return appearance in this reel, the four experts, Clifton Fadiman, Oscar Levant, John Kiernan and Franklin P. Adams, unite in presenting another amusing subject. They do get stymied on a question involving fictional drinks. On the others, they demonstrate an impressive amount of witty erudition.

"Pest Pilot"

Paramount 7 mins.

Only Fair

A Popeye cartoon that dives as far as the laughs are concerned. In this, Popeye's seagoing father is anxious to fly a plane. After being turned down by Popeye, he hops into a plane and goes on a wild flight. He cracks up and that is about all. It is mostly for the kids.

New Marquee for Storm

Oakland City, Ind.—Alma G. Foster, operator of the Storm Theater here, has contracted for a new "V" style marquee to be built immediately.

RCA Equip. for Plaza

Glendale, Ariz.—The Plaza Theater here is getting new RCA Photophone sound and an RCA Magic Screen under a contract signed by Community Theaters of Phoenix.

Fla. Circuit Starts Defense Stamp Mats.

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—Florida children are now getting into the theaters by showing a Defense Savings Stamp.

In a move to aid the National Defense Savings Program, Florida State Theaters, Inc., of Daytona Beach, which operates 110 motion-picture theaters in that State, has developed a special children's matinee plan, with Defense Savings Stamps used for admission.

On August 9, when the plan was launched, more than 35,000 Florida children bought ten-cent Defense Savings Stamps from the post offices in the cities where the theaters are situated or in the theater lobbies. Admission was gained simply by showing the stamp.

These special Saturday matinees will be a regular feature in all its houses, and J. L. Cartwright, director of public relations for the circuit expressed the hope that motion picture exhibitors throughout the nation would adopt the program, which has a two-fold purpose: (1) To aid the Defense Savings Program; (2) To encourage thrift on the part of the children, and through them stimulate parents and other adults to participate directly in the Defense Savings effort.

In a pamphlet sent to every motion-picture theater owner in Florida, Cartwright outlined the special children's defense matinees, and asked for the aid of fellow theatermen in promoting the sale of Defense Bonds and Stamps. He made the following suggestions:

Take pictures of children buying stamps and presenting them at the theater. Have some persons experienced in talking to children impress upon them at the show the importance of buying more stamps. Stage a prologue with a patriotic theme, stressing the desirability of buying stamps. Give passes and bonus stamps to children who present filled books.

To reach adults it was suggested that stamps be substituted for cash in awarding prizes for essays, quizzes and other special promotions.

Newspapers and radio stations throughout Florida are co-operating in promoting the special children's matinees.

WHO'S WHO IN HOLLYWOOD

● ● ● Introducing Interesting Personalities ● ● ●

MARTIN MOONEY. Producer-writer. Born in New York, on 43rd St., off Broadway, April 17, 1894. Attended schools in Brooklyn and New York. Wrote market flashes for Jesse Livermore, the speculator. Became advertising manager of a Wall St. investment firm and wrote a booklet, "The Threshold of Prosperity," which attracted David Belasco's attention. Through Belasco, he met Abraham L. Erlanger and became press agent for the latter. Joined John Golden, the producer, and created the "clean plays" slogan for him. Became an outstanding play analyst for important producers. Wrote four Broadway plays, "The Town's Woman," "The Ghost Writer," "The Grey Zone," "Sisters of the Chorus." Conducted "exposes" for New York newspapers. Refused to give evidence that would have caused indictments of Judge Manton and James Hines, Tammany leader, on grounds that as a newspaperman he could not reveal sources of his information. Paid a fine of $25 and served 30 days in jail. Because of the case, 14 states passed laws exempting newspapermen from revealing their sources of information. Came to Hollywood in 1935 and wrote for Warner Bros., Goldwyn, RKO, M-G-M and other studios. Now producing for Producers Releasing Corp., first picture being "Mr. Celebrity."

Press Endorses Sears' Stand on Single Bills

Policy of aiming all product for single-bill quality, announced by Gradwell L. Sears at the recent Warner Bros. sales convention, is now getting nation-wide editorial endorsement in daily newspapers. Typical is one from the Evening World-Herald, Omaha, Nebraska, which heads its comment: "This is Leadership" and goes on to say:

"There is a deplorable tendency on the part of our American leadership to put the head in the sand, to ignore those controversial questions which divide the people and turn brother against brother and mother against son.

"We are particularly glad to note, therefore, that one great American institution has Faced the Issue.

"Warner Brothers Pictures have announced, through their general sales manager, that they will abandon the double-feature idea.

"Instead of proceeding on the supposition that two pictures of medium quality or thereabouts will be offered on each program, Warner Brothers proposes to issue only extra special, super-dooper, colossals, with the idea that they will be presented one at a time—suitably garnished, of course, with attractive servings of short subjects.

"We don't know whether it will work. Many Americans are bargain hunters, and the notion that two feature pictures are necessarily better than one feature picture is hard to dislodge. But right or wrong, our congratulations go to Warner Brothers. They have courage. They have taken a stand on a question which, in many precincts, is hotter by somewhat than aid to Britain."

Rivoli Opens Sept. 1

The Rivoli Theater, Broadway, reopens on Sept. 1 with Universal's "Unfinished Business." Opening is the world premiere of the picture.

The 20th Century-Fox production of "Charley's Aunt," now in its third week at the Roxy Theater, played to 201,541 paid admissions during the first fourteen days of its engagement. This is a new summer record for that period of time at the Roxy.

Equity's Television Move Stirs Hostility of AFRA

Detroit—AFRA convention, which adjourned here over the week-end, received Equity's television jurisdictional move incredulously and with hostility. Consensus of convention opinion was that the SAG has more favorable opportunity for jurisdiction inasmuch as the latter controls synchronized pix, while AFRA's jurisdiction over the non-synchronized field gives it an opening as well. Allen Reed, of New York was appointed chairman of a special AFRA committee to study the tele situation.

Fidler, Quitting CBS, Blames Censorship

responsibility for the move. Behind that policy, he further charged. were certain studio execs. whose ire he had aroused.

Fidler, who returned to the air six weeks ago, in a formal statement asserted that the CBS policy "has hampered and worried me to the point that I have felt and feel that I have been denied the right of free speech" and termed the "fetters" imposed "so 'old ladyish' as to constitute a slap in the face of this right of free speech." A copy of the statement was sent by the commentator to the FCC.

Fidler declared that the network "insisted that I must give a 'favorable' notice (three or more bells) to all so-called 'big' pictures reviewed by me, and no less than two bells and favorable notice to any 'B' product reviewed by me." As a result, Fidler said he had refused to review bad films.

Fidler further contended that "the only motion pictures the Columbia network would permit me to review honestly (if they deserved panning) were movies produced by independent or small companies, or in other countries."

In the course of his statement, Fidler said that he is convinced that studio protests are "largely" responsible for the "right censorship" he was forced to bear. He asserted that he has "fairly criticized certain people and customs of the studios," thus incurring the wrath of execs.

"I know for a fact that some heads in the film industry, unable to 'take it,' have gone to my sponsors and Columbia in protest, and have tried to 'get my job,'" Fidler charged.

CBS yesterday issued the following statement: "Columbia has often differed with Mr. Fidler as to what is legitimate motion picture criticism. If he has found a network which will wholly accept his views on this subject, we are pleased."

REVIEWS OF NEW FILMS

"Our Wife"

with Ruth Hussey, Melvyn Douglas, Ellen Drew
(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)
Columbia-Stahl 95 Mins.

GOOD SOPHISTICATED FARCE COMEDY SHOULD CLICK BEST IN THE LARGER CITIES.

A good, sophisticated farce comedy, rather typical of the sort of thing Melvyn Douglas has always been successful with, and introducing to this field a newcomer, Ruth Hussey, who handles her assignment so well that we see an endless stream of Douglas-Hussey farces just around the corner. "Our Wife" should be an easy number for Columbia to peddle.

Producer-Director John M. Stahl shows originality in his choice of background and material. His direction, abetted by a clever screen play by P. J. Wolfson, from a play by Lillian Day and Lyon Mearson, shifts the actors into their proper gears making for smooth, natural performances—a trick seldom accomplished with a cast of leading characters of such varied personalities.

As is to be expected of a Stahl production, the settings are lavish and many, starting on a Havana-bound steamer and running through Panama, Carnegie Hall and winding up in a Westchester cottage.

Miss Hussey is a standout in her role but John Hubbard, Ellen Drew and Charles Coburn steal enough scenes to give a good account of themselves.

"Our Wife" tells of a young man (Melvyn Douglas), beaten and continually drunk because of a wrecked marriage, who is inadvertently kidnapped and brought aboard ship by Ruth Hussey, her father, (Charles Coburn) and her brother, (John Hubbard).

When the mistake is discovered they are forced to put Douglas up in their suite—meanwhile practically reforming him. Douglas invites them to spend the Summer at his home in Connecticut where he promptly falls in love with Miss Hussey.

Complications arise when his wife (Ellen Drew) returns, falls down stairs, and pretends paralysis so she can remain and win back her husband.

The story from then on is of a duel between the two girls—one faking and the other wise to the trick—to gain the upper hand and the favor of Douglas.

It's a simple but clever yarn and should make a big hit in the large cities. However, there is enough action comedy as well as story appeal to make them like it, young and old, in any locality.

CAST: Melvyn Douglas, Ruth Hussey, Ellen Drew, Charles Coburn, John Hubbard, Harvey Stephens, Theresa Harris.

CREDITS: Producer-Director, John M. Stahl; Associate Producer, Irving Starr; From the play by Lillian Day and Lyon Mearson; Screenplay, P. J. Wolfson; Cameraman, Franz F. Planer, ASC; Art Director, Lionel Banks; Editor, Gene Havlick; Music by Leo Shuken; Musical Director, M. W. Stoloff.

DIRECTION, Excellent. PHOTOGRAPHY, Good.

Wilmington, Del.—Aldine Theater will close on Aug. 31 for alterations. Rumored that Loew's will rent the Aldine, and Warners will rent the Delaware Ave. and Adams St. house owned by Loew's.

"Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day" with Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day, Red Skelton

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)
M-G-M 82 Mins.

EXCELLENT KILDARE STORY WITH UNEXPECTED ROMANTIC TWIST PACKS EMOTIONAL WALLOP.

It's going to be interesting to watch the public's reaction to this latest of the Doctor Kildare series, not because it's particularly different than the others—the same standard of excellence set in the others is upheld—but because Laraine Day, Lew Ayres' sweetheart in the films dies in this.

Obviously Metro has other things in mind for Miss Day, but the reaction of the fans at the preview was one of great shock. Because of this "drastic" climax to this screen love affair, all the characters are permitted to go to extremes in emotional acting and it makes for a much stronger picture than is usually possible in these family things.

One event which will make "Dr. Kildaire's Wedding Day" outstanding is the playing for the first time in a motion picture of a truly fine piece of music. It is called "Tableau Russe," a Symphonic Suite, written by Lionel Barrymore and it's superior to a great many pieces of music written by our best modern composers.

Harold Bucquet's direction is fine. Willis Goldbeck and Lawrence P. Bachmann's screenplay has plenty of body and good dialogue. The cast, with the old standbys, Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Laraine Day, Samuel S. Hinds and Alma Kruger, are ably assisted by "visitors" Nils Asther and M-G-M's much-touted new comic, Red Skelton.

The story deals with the preparations for Dr. Kildare's wedding day—the death of his wife-to-be—and the problem and struggle he goes through pulling himself together. It can be highly recommended as first-class screen-fare anywhere, and for all ages.

CAST: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day, Red Skelton, Alma Kruger, Samuel S. Hinds, Nils Asther, Walter Kingsford, Emma Dunn, Miles Mander, Neil Craig, Frank Orth, Marie Blake, Margaret Seddon.

DIRECTION, Fine. PHOTOGRAPHY, Good.

Army Will Preview Training Films

First press preview of U. S. Army training films ever held will take place Thursday evening in Washington, D. C., the War Department announced yesterday.

Invitations to the press, signed by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, director of Bureau of Public Relations, specifically stated that showing was "off the record," so far as certain confidential material contained in the training films is concerned, and is also only for a male audience.

The films, the War Department stated, are representative of the new series of 100 reels already produced during the past year in Hollywood by the Signal Corps in conjunction with the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. It is the first time these films have ever been exhibited for public comment, although many of them are already in use in training centers throughout the country. The films, produced under the supervision of Maj. Gen. J. O. Mauborgne, Chief Signal Officer, Lieut. Col. H. T. Perrin, General Staff, and Lieut. Col. Richard Schlosberg, head of the photographic division of the Signal Corps, will be exhibited for preview at the Archives Bldg. Auditorium in Washington.

Lieut. Col. Darryl F. Zanuck, Signal Corps Reserve, head of the film industry's participation in the Army training film program as Chairman of the Research Council, has been called to active duty at the War Department for conferences following the preview. He will arrive Thursday, accompanied by Maj. John Aalberg and Capt. Gordon Mitchell, Signal Corps. Reserve.

Costs were ordered to be shared between Vitagraph and the complainants.

chairman of the sub-committee; Homer T. Bone, D., Wash.; Charles W. Tobey, R., N. H.; C. Wayland Brooks, R., Ill., and Ernest W. McFarland, D., Ariz. The first four are included among the isolationist bloc in Congress.

Will Hays Heads Pix List

Heading the list of 15 whose testimony is desired is Will H. Hays, MPPDA prexy, himself long on record as opposed to all propaganda on the screen. Others requested to appear include:

Murray Silverstone, United Artists; Sam Goldwyn, Goldwyn, Inc.; Walter Wanger, Walter Wanger Prods.; Adolph Zukor, director Paramount; Harry Cohn, president Columbia; Nicholas M. Schenck, president Loew's, Inc.; Barney Balaban, president Paramount; George J. Schaefer, president RKO Radio; Sidney R. Kent, president Twentieth Century-Fox; Arthur W. Kelly, general manager United Artists; Nate J. Blumberg, president Universal; Harry M. Warner, president Warner Brothers; and Lieut. Col. Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox.

Senator Clark was quick to establish that these invited witnesses constitute only a "preliminary and fragmentary" list of those who eventually will be called for thorough examination.

"Invitation" to Film Execs.

"We thought it best to invite first leading producers in the motion picture industry. Other producers, directors, actors and prominent pesons in the motion picture industry will be invited at subsequent dates," Clark told newsmen yesterday.

The inquiry is on a resolution introduced jointly on Aug. 1 by Senators Clark and Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, both members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The resolution authorizes an "investigation of propaganda disseminated by the motion picture and radio industries tending to influence participation of the United States in the present European war."

Senate committee investigation will have to "unfold as it goes along," Senator Clark said the first few days of the testimony, which commences Sept. 3, likely will be taken up by Senator Clark of Missouri, and Senator Nye of North Dakota. Following them will come representatives of the motion picture industry.

Hays and Coast Execs. Have Received No "Invitations"

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood — Will Hays had received no official invitation yesterday to appear before the Senate Committee on war propaganda in pictures and was not available for comment. Walter Wanger also had received no bid as yet while Darryl F. Zanuck and Nate J. Blumberg refused to make any comment whatever. H. M. Warner was out of the city for a rest. Samuel Goldwyn and Harry Cohn were unavailable for comment.

The following advertisement appeared in Monday Hollywood publications but representatives of the producers' association stated it was not instituted by their group.

"The motion picture industry is being threatened and intimidated by organized minority groups composed of fanatical isolationists and others who attack us because we have occasionally dared to produce a film which tells the truth about Nazi Germany. These 'sincere Americans' seek to embarrass our industry by a Senatorial investigation hoping thereby to discredit Hollywood in the eyes of theatergoers throughout the nation. No motion pictures have been produced that are complimentary to the Nazi philosophy of aggression. Therefore by demanding that we make no more 'war pictures' they are in fact demanding that we make no more films that are unfavorable to the Nazi cause."

The advertisement was unsigned and it is not known whether an individual or an organization authorized it.

"Base Tax on Price"—MPTOA

Correct Serious Injustice, Asks Kuykendall

ing recent months has decreased considerably and what I propose to you here will be most helpful to us in bringing back this attendance to a normal average. What I refer to is the text of the proposed admission tax that you gentlemen are now considering wherein we are forced to collect whatever the top bracket of admission tax happens to be on so-called reduced admission prices.

Juvenile Admission Tax

"As an example, if we offer a reduced price to those of juvenile age such as high school students, etc., we are forced to collect from them a tax on whatever the highest admission price may happen to be. In further explanation if we admit the high school student for 20 cents and the established top admission is 40 cents the law forces us to collect a tax on the 40 cents admission basis. This is manifestly unfair. The tax should be based on whatever the admission charge may be.

"I further emphasize the importance of this by calling to the attention of you gentlemen the fact that when a child for 12 years and under grows out of this age your proposed law forces us to immediately charge them with a tax based on a 40 cent admission, as an example—this youngster jumped from a 1-cent tax to a 4-cent tax. The shock and difficulty of this proves a detriment to their continued attendance and helps to restrict their theater going habits. Theaters everywhere, both large and small, are starting a so-called junior admission price schedule, same being a reduction of the top admission price.

Junior Prices Up Attendance

"Wherever this has been tried it has brought about a wholesome increase in attendance at the theaters involves. We, the theater owners, are badly in need of this increase and it would naturally increase admission tax revenue. Therefore, rather than taking away from the revenue derived it will increase this tax revenue.

"I further call to the Committee's attention that thousands of theaters in this country do not have a balcony or separate section in which these reduced admissions could be seated.

"Time prohibits my going into detail as to Section 1700 of the Internal Revenue Code as amended. There are many angles to it that really should be discussed but I know your time is limited. Again may I remind you that we are not trying to evade any tax whatsoever but merely trying to distribute it properly in such a way that the revenue which you gentlemen are charged with the responsibility of raising will not be adversely affected, but in our sincere and honest opinion will be increased, and at the same time the theaters will materially benefit by it.

Base Tax on Admish Charge

"May I again emphasize that the basic thought I am trying to convey to this Committee is that the tax charged should be based absolutely on the admission price charged. If there is something I have left out because of the time limit given me in making this statement I shall be delighted to furnish any member of this Committee any such information he may desire either by mail or in person.

"May I also respectfully call the attention of this Committee to the provision in the proposed new tax schedule wherein 9-cent tickets are exempted from taxation. This, in our humble opinion, is a serious mistake. The tax should apply down to the last penny and I submit that language similar to the following should be written in this—

"That there be a tax of 1 cent of each 10 cents or fraction thereof—eliminating entirely in this way the 9-cent exemption which will deprive you of revenue and cause considerable competitive confusion."

Fly Dubious of Radio Tax

FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly told the Senate Finance Committee yesterday that it was "very dubious" whether a tax on radio station and network operations should be retained in the $3,500,000,000 tax bill.

In reply to a question from Senator J. J. Davis (R., Penn.), Fly said the levy on radio stations eventually might lead to a tax on newspaper advertising.

Sudekum Denies All Charges vs. Crescent and every charge made against him in the suit filed August 11, 1939.

Specifically, Sudekum denied that he had ever gone into any town for the purpose of running the opposition out of business, that he had ever bought a single film to keep it away from a rival exhibitor, that he had ever told any independent exhibitor that he could secure any film that the independent could not, or that he had ever done anything to influence a distributor in making a higher rental charge to an independent.

47 Houses, Not 150 in Circuit

Over against the plaintiff's contention that there are more than 150 theaters in more than 75 towns in an alleged Crescent combine, Sudekum testified that in 1929 he had 38 theaters in 21 towns and that on June 30, 1941, had only 47 theaters in 23 towns. Under the questioning of George H. Armistead, Jr., chief defense counsel, enlarged photographs of theaters constructed by Crescent since Aug. 11, 1934 date set by the Government as the beginning of the alleged conspiracy to violate the Sherman anti-trust law in Earlington, Ky., Franklin, Ky., Princeton, Ky., Brownsville, Gallatin and Greenville, Tenn., were introduced as exhibits.

According to Sudekum these each represented investments of $85,000 to $100,000. The obvious purpose of the introduction of this evidence was to prove that Crescent built and operated modern, well-equipped theaters with a view to a legitimate profit rather than houses of the "converted store" type that offered little in comfort or entertainment.

Took Loss on Early Talkies

Sudekum testified that when sound movies came in he had several fine organs, valued at $5,000 to $10,000 in his theaters, which he gave away to local churches. The first sound picture ("The Singing Fool") was shown in Crescent's Knickerbocker, Nashville, with "sound on disc" equipment, on which Sudekum almost immediately took a loss of $27,000. Crescent Amusement Company, according to Sudekum, got into financial difficulties in the 1920's and he was forced to sell four theaters, one in Jackson, one in Clarksville and two in Knoxville.

On cross-examination by Wright, Sudekum denied that he knew what film rentals were paid by independents except where he bought out of a rival house and was asked to take over their contracts. He admitted that he usually tried to get these rentals on unexpired contracts cut, but emphatically denied that he was ever able to force (or attempted to force) any distributor to grant him special concessions in clearances on pictures. He admitted that he occasionally conferred with Cowan Oldham, of Cumberland Amusement Co. and Louis Rosenbaum, of Muscle Shoals, Inc., but insisted that he had nothing to do with franchises and contracts made by either or both of them.

Havana (By Air Mail)—Three important provisions, augmenting the new standard code for fair trade practices between motion picture exhibitors and distributors in accordance with the recent Government decree (No. 604), have been drafted by a four-man film industry Commission at a meeting held here.

The new code sections call for (1) abolition of the five-cent admission price in all theaters operating in the Havana zone; (2) creation of an Arbitration Commission empowered to appeal distributor-exhibitor differences to Cuba's Motion Picture Industry Co-ordinating Commission; and (3) a new rule designed to control the issuance of free passes in all theaters in Cuba.

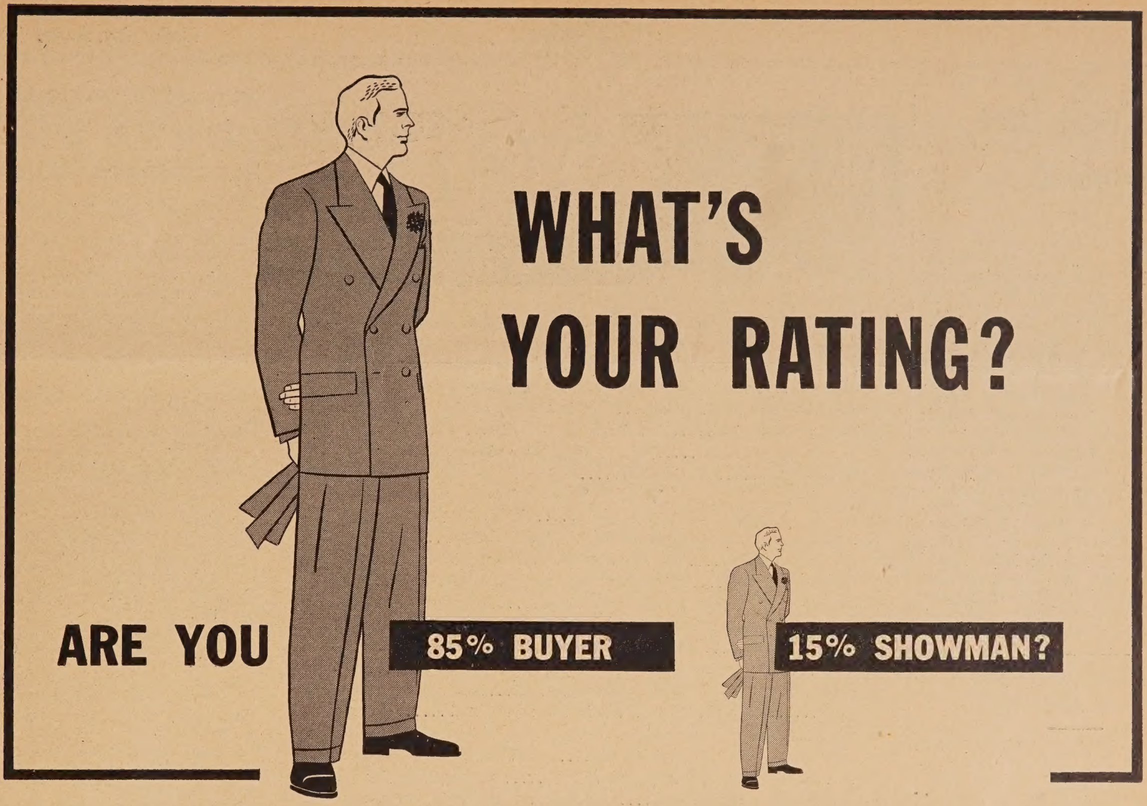
WHAT'S YOUR RATING?



Who is the successful exhibitor? The man who buys film shrewdly or the man who sells film to his public intelligently?

What's your industry rating? Are you all trader and no showman?

Do you go to town to buy good pictures cheap enough to put the producer out of business and then sit back complacently and deliver him the final knock-out blow by letting the picture sell itself without benefit of showmanship?

Let's make 1941 a year to remember in this business. Let's make it the season when the picture industry was smart enough to forsake forever the old horse-trading technique in favor of dealing on a partnership basis whereby fair profits were yielded to all concerned.

The basis of partnership is trust. United Artists operates so that no exhibitor—even if he had the time and inclination—need spy on a production budget to see that no corners are cut . . . corners that mean the difference between run-of-the-mill product and a great box-office attraction.

The exhibitor's contribution to this partnership is to present these pictures without the necessity on the part of the producer to "check the operations". That doesn't mean the checking of receipts, but the checking of exploitation and advertising . . . how you build up individual pictures . . . what films you slough off, because plenty of films are being fed into the hopper and devoured like a product of mass production instead of a product of effort, ingenuity and imagination.

Let's change the billing rating of both producer and exhibitor. Let's make them 100% partners, partners who will work together in trust and profit together in fairness.

Cuban Trade Code Is Augmented back of its enforcement, since theatermen have, on their own initiative, launched an intensive campaign to correct the abuse of free passes. A survey conducted by the Smith and Valcarce Circuits at their theaters disclosed, according to officials, that more than 1,000 free passes are issued monthly. It is to avoid this prevalent abuse in the future that exhibitors have sought drastic control through statutory channels.

Body drafting the new code sections, as well as those already formulated early this Summer, is composed of Dr. Felipe Trinchet, counsel for the Association of Exhibitors of the Republic; Dr. Manuel Pellon, general counsel for the Film Board of Trade; Pedro Sainz, representing the American Distributors group; and Fernando Gonzales, president of the Union Nacional of Exhibitors.

Speak Good Words For Crescent Houses

spectors, under contract to cover every house in the Crescent and affiliated groups, testified that in the course of their monthly or bi-monthly inspections of sound and projection equipment in the various theaters that they "observed" the general condition of the houses as to sanitation, seating, heating, air-conditioning, and general appearance inside and out.

Their testimony in each case was that all Crescent theaters are sanitary, comfortably seated, and equipped with the best of RCA, and Western Electric equipment. A. W. Alexander, Lookout Mountain, Tenn., service man for Altec Service Corp., described Crescent theaters as far above the average and that there are "a lot of extras" in them. The newest houses of the circuit being among the most modern and best equipped in the country.

Altec Service Men Testify

Other Altec Service men testifying were E. S. Hawes, Memphis; P. J. Aubrey, Birmingham, Ala. and C. F. Smith, Nashville. R. E. Cobble, Chattanooga, and S. E. Baker, sound service men for RCA, also testified. On cross-examination, Robert L. Wright, special assistant to the Attorney General and chief counsel for the Government, brought out from each of these witnesses that they were paid to inspect only sound (and in some instances projection) equipment and acoustics of Crescent theaters and not any other features of the house. None of them was able to tell what Crescent paid for their services. Wright developed the information that both Altec and RCA officials "co-operated" with defense counsel in making the service men available for testimony in the suit. George H. Armistead, Jr., defense chief counsel, questioned every witness about "rest room" and "toilet facilities" in each of the theaters.

Among a dozen business men from Crescent towns who testified to the quality of the houses and to the management of Crescent theaters in their towns, George D. Duncan, druggist of Franklin, Ky., told of contacting Tony Sudekum with a request that he build a theater in Franklin and testified that the Masonic Lodge sold the lot on which the Crescent house was built. Another withness in this group was H. D. Pettus, general agent of the Tennessee Central Railway and president of the Chamber of Commerce, Clarksville.

Baulch Dismissal Move Denied

Completing Monday's testimony, R. E. Baulch, an officer in Crescent Amusement Co. and in several of the other corporations, testified and was carried over practically the same ground as was Tony Sudekum. He denied any connection whatever with the purchase or contracting for any films. A motion to dismiss Baulch, who is son-in-law of Sudekum, as a defendant to the suit was denied by Judge Elmer D. Davies on August 8.

Late Monday Joseph W. Holman, of the architectural firm of Marr & Holman, Nashville, who is a member of the national association of theater architects, testified to the quality and cost of many of the Crescent houses for which his firm had prepared plans.

☆ REVIEWS OF THE NEW FILMS ☆

"Ice-Capades"

with Dorothy Lewis, James Ellison, Jerry Colonna

Republic 88 Mins.

EASILY ONE OF THE BEST TURNED OUT BY THIS STUDIO; GOOD ENTERTAINMENT AND CERTAIN B.O.

Republic has given this novel and entertaining feature a more elaborate production background and it should pay off for the exhibitor if he utilizes numerous angles well-worth exploiting.

Feature of the film is the introduction of Dorothy Lewis, ice skating star, along with various skilled ice performers who form the nucleus of the screen version of an ice show. While Miss Lewis is more at home on skates, her acting debut does not disappoint.

Story, however, is weak as thin ice but a number of good performances keep it from cracking. There is a bright young comedian, Phil Silvers, who delivers more than his quota of laughs as the stage producer turned ice impresario. Jerry Colonna, who has one of leads, strives hard in too many instances for laughs but generally will go over because of his radio reputation.

Plot revolves around Miss Lewis. James Ellison and his partner, Colonna, miss their newsreel assignment in obtaining clips of an international skating star. Instead they go to Central Park and shoot an attractive girl and pass her off as the skating star.

When the film is shown, Silvers wants her for the show and the immigration authorities are anxious to get her for violating some law. Under the impression, Miss Lewis is the international skating queen, Silvers signs the latter for the show. When the skating queen turns up and is disappointing, Silvers sues the newsreel company for misrepresentation. Ellison and Colonna set out to find Miss Lewis who is afraid to appear in the show because she does not want publicity. After many complications, Ellison marries Miss Lewis and saves the show.

Ample share of the film's entertainment is provided by a group of skating stars which, in addition to Miss Lewis, include Belita, Lois Dworshak, Megan Taylor, Vera Hruba, Red McCarthy, Phil Taylor, Jackson & Lynan, The Benoits and Dench and Stewart. Among the supporting performers Alan Mowbray, Barbara Jo Allen, Gus Schilling and Harry Clark are more than adequate.

CAST: James Ellison, Jerry Colonna, Dorothy Lewis, Barbara Jo Allen, Alan Mowbray, Phil Silvers, Gus Schilling, Tim Ryan, Harry Clark, Renie Riano, Carol Adams, and the "Ice-Capades" Company.

CREDITS: Associate Producer, Robert North; Director, Joseph Santley; Screenplay, Jack Townley, Robert Harari and Olive Cooper; Original, Isabel Dawn and Boyce DeGaw; Production Manager, Al Wilson; Cameraman, Jack Marta; Film Editor, Howard O'Neil; Musical Director, Cy Feuer; Skating Sequences Staged by Harry Losee.

DIRECTION, Satisfactory. PHOTOGRAPHY, Good.

"The Story of The Vatican"

RKO Radio 54 Mins.

HIGHLY INTERESTING AND INFORMATIVE FEATURE BRILLIANTLY NARRATED. MOST COMPLETE FILM YET MADE OF THE VATICAN.

With the world today undergoing both temporal and spiritual strain exercised by cataclysmic happenings on every continent, "The Story of the Vatican" takes on a degree of importance far transcending sectarianism.

Its scenes and sequences from first to last are excellently photographed and edited by The March of Time, and the narration by Rt. Rev. Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen is brilliant as it is authoritative. Audiences everywhere, regardless of creed, will find this an arresting near-hour of diversion, a source of high inspiration, and an oasis of information.

As an historic record of the self-governing Papal State, the film is precedent-setting, containing as it does a far greater sweep than any predecessor production dealing with the Vatican,—its past, present, and promise of perpetuity even unto the end of time.

Outstanding in its subject matter are views of the coronation of the present Pope, Pius XII, recognized as one of the world's most accomplished diplomats during his tenure as the Papal Secretary of State; the physical administration of Vatican City, sovereign in itself; the radio facilities donated by Marconi personally; publication of the Osservatore Romano, the Holy See's official newspaper which stands for the freedom of the press in striking contrast to the lay publications of surrounding Fascist Italy; the diplomatic activity at the Vatican whereat some 38 nations are represented officially; the Vatican railroad, shortest in the world; the Papal gendarmes, the Swiss Guard and the Noble Guards; the American College; the Academy of Science; St. Peter's; the Sistine Chapel; the priceless treasures of the Vatican Library and the unrivaled galleries which contain masterpieces of art; the post office; the restoration of public buildings; the reclamation of paintings by a unique process; and many other scenes which are of intense interest.

Gypsy Rose Lee at N. Y. Fair

Syracuse—Gypsy Rose Lee opens at the New York State Fair next Sunday night.

"Flying Blind"

with Richard Arlen, Jean Parker, Nils Asther
(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

Paramount 70 Mins.

CORKING ADVENTURE MELODRAMA PACKS SUSPENSE ACTION AND COMEDY.

With each succeeding picture Producers Bill Thomas and Bill Pine with their Associate-Producer John W. Rogers, show more reasons why Paramount should consider their releasing contract a very valuable asset.

"Flying Blind," starring Richard Arlen and Jean Parker, is probably as fine an adventure picture as has ever been made. It is a medium-budgeter with no pretentiousness or waste and one of those pictures that can truly be called action-packed.

It is no doubt because of the efforts of Director Frank McDonald, but from the opening scene to the final fade-out there is not a moment not chock-full of suspense, action or comedy. Truly a grand job of getting everything out of script, performers and situations.

Arlen looks better in this than he has for years. Jean Parker, as his girl friend and Eddie Quillan (who a good many critics will say now, has been wasted) make a great supporting team. Nils Asther, Marie Wilson and Grady Sutton also do neat jobs.

Maxwell Shane and Richard Murphy's clever screenplay tells of Richard Arlen, an airline pilot, who quits his job for a venture of his own as proprietor-pilot of "Honeymoon Airways," a company which specializes in flying couples from Los Angeles to Las Vegas to be married.

A former co-pilot, Roger Pryor, working for Spy Nils Asther, steals a secret dynamo from an army bomber and they get aboard Arlen's plane and try to force him to fly them to Mexico—of course they are foiled—with never a dull moment.

This is good, solid action entertainment and okay for a topper on any bill.

CAST: Richard Arlen, Jean Parker, Nils Asther, Marie Wilson, Roger Pryor, Eddie Quillan, Dick Purcell, Grady Sutton, Kay Sutton.

DIRECTION, Perfect. PHOTOGRAPHY, Excellent.

Surprise Witnesses For Senate's Probe

men, Sen. D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, confirmed that its roster of prospective witnesses contained many names in addition to the list of 15 executives previously disclosed.

Names of these other interested parties are being withheld for the present upon their specific requests, according to Clark. Capitol Hill observers were quick to accept this as meaning that the isolationist bloc is plotting a "field day" with surprise witnesses when the sub-committee opens its inquiry Sept. 3 with Senators Bennett Champ Clark, D., Mo., and Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., as the first to testify.

Pointing out that there is some confusion in the industry apparently to similarity of names between himself and Senator Clark of Missouri, author of the bill, Idaho's Clark said that the sub-committee intended merely to get all the facts they can in regards to the matter and then report to the full committee for action.

He said he could not predict what the study would develop, except that Nye and Clark of Missouri would appear and offer testimony in support of their contention that the movies are being used as a propaganda to push the nation into war, and that presumably the movie executives would deny it and offer facts to support their case.

Clark added that the motion picture people likely would not be called upon to appear until around September 8, as the first part is expected to be taken up by Clark of Missouri and Nye.

He said that Nye's letter to 15 picture executives was an invitation but that if they didn't appear, they likely would be subpoenaed, depending upon developments.

Baltimore Peace Group Urges Check on Film "Propaganda"

Baltimore—Fellowship of Reconciliation, Peace Office, local religious anti-war group, has stationed members in front of downtown theaters here, distributing leaflets calling moviegoers' attention to film they've just seen, and asking a series of questions grouped under the general heading, "Did the movie you have just seen tell the whole story?"

Questions adhere to the pacifist line, and leaflet urges that those receiving it keep the questions and "check coming movies for propaganda." Typical questions and comment follow:

"Did this movie provide its hero with a beautiful woman—a general's daughter or a lovely nurse or a glamorous reporter—for a sweetheart?

"Remember that the great majority of women around training camps and battlefields are only the sort that make the spread of disease a staggering problem after every war.

"Did this movie assume that resorting to force is now required to preserve the institutions we hold dear in America?

"Remember that we are all members of the brotherhood of man. We can help our brothers in other lands non-violently to throw off their shackles by keeping alive our Democracy as an example to them here. But the economic chaos we would suffer after a war would be a standing invitation to dictatorship."

ruling by Attorney-General I. H. VanWinkle.

Plan, provided for any person 18 or over to register in a book in front of the theater opposite a printed number. On a designated night, after all performances had been completed the doors of the theater were to be thrown open solely for the drawing, with all patrons admitted free. Those in the lobby and outside were to have the same chance as those inside the theater.

VanWinkle said it was apparent that the theater operators hope to induce many people to purchase tickets and attend the regular performance in advance of the drawing, although no tickets or ticket stubs are in evidence at the drawing itself.

By attending the performance in advance of the drawing the person registered for the drawing would be in a more advantageous position when the drawing is made, it was held.

listed as an N. L. Nathanson enterprise.

This has brought the disclosure by an informed source that the theater will be operated by Loew's but that films will be booked into it by Nathanson. The Uptown has been operated by FPC since Sept. 1, 1926, on a lease from Loew's which is now expiring.

The original Loew's in Toronto will have no change in policy and will continue with M-G-M and United Artists' product booked from Regal Films (1941), Ltd., and United Artists Corp., Ltd., Toronto, respectively. Under a recent reorg. plan for Regal, an interest in the Canadian exchange held by Paramount was said to have been eliminated but N. L. Nathanson is understood to have substantial holdings in the company. There is also an intimation, which cannot be confirmed locally, that Nathanson is interested financially in United Artists.

Two other Loew houses are operated in Canada, one at London, Ont., and the other at Montreal. The operating company for the Montreal house is Mansfield Theaters, Ltd., and it is under lease to FPC. Loew's Theater, London, is operated direct from New York, with a resident manager. There are many Canadian shareholders in the Loew enterprises at Toronto and London. In the latter case, the company is known as Loew's London Theaters, Ltd., and it has a perpetual operating agreement with the New York office. An agreement is also in effect in the case of the original Loew houses in downtown Toronto.

shipping facilities would require extension of the curtailment order to the entire U. S.

It was said that the next section to face restrictions on gasoline consumption undoubtedly would be the Pacific Coast, with the Middle West likely to follow.

> Washington Bur., THE FILM DAILY
> Washington—Creation of a five-man Senate committee to investigate the gasoline and fuel oil shortage on the Eastern seaboard is proposed by Sen. Francis Maloney, D., Conn.

As for the East, it was reported that the 10 per cent curtailment probably would cover only August, with the seasonal decline in consumption to be accompanied by stiffer rationing. A 20 per cent figure was mentioned as likely. Inasmuch as service stations supply many motorists who are exempt from the Co-ordinator's restrictions, it was pointed out that the average car owner might find himself forced to cut his consumption by one-quarter.

Should this happen, theater business would be seriously affected, particularly in the smaller towns where exhibitors are dependent largely upon the surrounding countryside for patronage. Drive-ins continuing to operate in the Southern sections during the Fall and Winter also would suffer.

On the other hand, theaters in the larger cities, particularly those in residential sections, undoubtedly would benefit materially from stiffer curtailment, although the effect would not be so great as it would be were the curb to come while the motoring season was in full swing.

Defense May Stymie Conn. Construction

New Haven—Lack of steel and other construction materials on which the Government exerts priority may prevent the announced renovation of the Rivoli, West Haven by the Fishman circuit, and prevent further proposed theater construction in this territory this year, it is reported. Although several Bridgeport theaters have been planned, it is believed doubtful whether construction is any longer possible this year. Construction in this territory will thus probably be limited to the 690-seat New Newington, Newington, opened last week, the 1,000-seat East Hartford, to be ready in October, and the 700-seat Wethersfield, just begun. Renovation and reseating, usually preceded by enlargement, will also be unlikely for some time.

There has been no indication as yet as to what the Senate Finance Committee's attitude on the film industry's suggestions for admission tax changes will be, but the statements of both Abram F. Myers of Allied and Ed Kuykendall of MPTOA are believed to have impressed some members of the committee.

It is reported that in lieu of the House's imposts the Senate is likely to propose higher excise taxes on gas, beer, autos and radios, and, probably tobacco.

Columbus Variety Club and Ohio ITO Want "Male Animal" Premiere Set for Columbus

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—Although "The Male Animal" is yet to go into actual production at Warners, the Variety Club of Columbus, O., has requested WB to stage its world premiere there. Club's request, is backed by P. J. Wood, secretary of the Independent Theater Owners of Ohio, who pledged that the unit's convention would be held on the same dates as the premiere, to make the event even more significant to exhibitors.

Virgil A. Jackson, president of the Variety Club, bases the request for the world premiere upon the facts that Elliott Nugent, one of the play's authors who will direct the motion picture, is a graduate of Ohio State University, and his collaborator is James Thurber, former resident of Columbus who also attended the local university.

Wants Theater to Make Up Lost "Pot o' Gold" Award

Syracuse—An echo of exhib. counter-moves to radio money giveaways, suit in which Aubrey L. Loew of Ilion seeks to hold the Liberty Operating Co., operating the Liberty, Herkimer, for a $1,800 "Pot o' Gold" radio prize, was before Supreme Court Justice James T. Cross, here on a motion.

Loew contends that the theater company advertised that they would make up the difference if any of their patrons happened to be called by telephone in the "Pot o' Gold" drawings.

The plaintiff alleges that on May 1, last, he was at the theater when his residence telephone was called announcing that he was the "Pot o' Gold" winner. As a result, he asserts, he received only $100 when, had he been at home, he would have received a purse of $1,900.

He alleges that he demanded $1,800 from the theater company in conformity with the company's alleged advertising, but that his demand was refused, whereupon he sued.

Motion filed by attorney for the plaintiff, called for an examination of the theater company's books and records before trial. Justice Cross took the matter under advisement.

"Lydia"

with Merle Oberon, Alan Marshal, Edna May Oliver

United Artists-Korda 144 Mins.

ACE ROMANTIC DRAMA BRILLIANTLY DIRECTED AND ACTED. SMASH ADULT ATTRACTION IN ALL SITUATIONS.

At each new season's outset, exhibitors and public set up a loud chant for bigger and better pictures. Producer Alexander Korda answers their hymn of hope handsomely via "Lydia," whose quality and power-to-entertain tag it as the best attraction of its type since David O. Selznick unleashed "Rebecca."

Between the two films there is vastly more contrast than comparison,—the Korda opus marching along magnificently with the accent on romance and the tragedy of partially requited love, building up audience sympathy and understanding for the woman (Merle Oberon) whose heart was capable of being won but once, and who waited hopefully, though in vain, for the promised return of her lover. In the falling shadows of old age, they do come face to face.

Here is the picture's climax, handled with superb dramatic skill and realism by Director Julien Duvivier who penned the original story in collaboration with L. Bus-Fekete. In these terminating sequences, the by-now-aged Alan Marshall fails to even recognize the girl he at one time so lustily adored.

While the ending is not a happy one, the film from first to last is catnip for femme audiences, and packs just as much appeal for the male gender. It is thoroughly adult fare,—a production keyed to both the classes and masses.

On the technical and histrionic sides, "Lydia" is outstanding. In its recounting, this Korda classic follows the pattern of "The Power and the Glory" and the more recently devised "Citizen Kane," which is to say that the life and loves of Lydia, along with her benevolence toward the blind children of the slums, are told through the channels of "cut-backs," with a number of scenes employing off-screen narration.

The photography by Lee Garmes, also the associate producer, is tremendously effective, particularly the close-ups on which the ingenious Duvivier has long relied for the special accenting of character and dramatic punch. Screenplay and dialogue by Ben Hecht and Samuel Hoffenstein sparkle.

Merle Oberon gives a memorable performance in the title role, and is supported by an able cast. Her trio of unsuccessful suitors,—in addition to her great, lost love, Alan Marshal,—consists of Joseph Cotten, a young physician; George Reeves, whom she almost wed in an impulsive, puppy-love mood; and Hans Yaray, a blind concert pianist. Through the latter character, the footage derives some excellent incidental music.

Perhaps the key supporting assignment is that handled by Edna May Oliver as Merle Oberon's aunt. It is she, as the diamond-in-the-rough widow of a sea captain, who carries the bulk of the comedy, and carries it so well that at times she steals the acting spotlight. In summation, "Lydia" has decidedly a gold "ring" for the keys, and should line the pockets of showmen in the subsequents just as neatly.

"World Premiere"

with John Barrymore, Frances Farmer, Eugene Pallette

Paramount 70 Mins.

UNHERALDED PROGRAM FILM TURNS OUT TO BE A SURPRISINGLY GAY AND ZANY COMEDY

Lot of factors go into making this an enjoyable farce. For one thing, the film has Hollywood poking fun at itself with little damage done. Then there is a novel idea carried off by a good cast with a great deal of relish and gusto. Producer Sol C. Siegel and Director Ted Tetzlaff can rightly feel they have scored and scored well.

Comedy arises from efforts of two dictator nations, whose identity is not hard to guess, to sabotage an epic production made by the epic producer so ably played by John Barrymore. Sig Rumann and Luis Alberni are assigned to do the dirty work under the supervision of Fritz Feld. They make a torrid trio and garner most of the laughs.

Hollywood innovation of junkets to a premiere comes in for a ribbing. Most of the fun takes place on the train where the saboteurs are busily at work. In addition Scripter Earl Felton has introduced a number of romantic complications. It affords Ricardo Cortez the opportunity for contributing a swell portrayal as the ham star. Frances Farmer, looking very stunning in a black wig, has little to do as the female star. Virginia Dale is adequate in a supporting role while Don Castle as the publicity man who is always getting fired by the producer, impresses in a secondary part. Cliff Nazarro's double-talk successfully registers for laughs.

There are occasional lags in tempo of film as situations become more involved. Satire, however, is always on the bright side and the picture ends with a punch scene. Time bomb which is supposed to go off at premiere turns out to be a dud. Upon inspection by Rumann and Alberni, they notice "Made in Japan" label.

EDGAR WALLACE MYSTERY THAT FAILS TO RECAPTURE NECESSARY MELODRAMATIC INGREDIENTS.

Approach to this mystery yarn is unimaginative and dated from a technical standpoint. While British relish good murder stories, they certainly have not served this one up in style. There are a number of incredible situations implausibly linked together.

British cast is unknown to American audiences and of the minor league variety. Hero of the yarn is Peter Murray-Hill who is the detective assigned to locating a counterfeit ring. In fact, he goes to jail for two and one-half years in the line of duty and as a result loses his fiance, Sally Gray. However, he finds out about the gang and sets after them.

During hero's absence, girl is wooed by son of criminal double-crossed by girl's father. She has no knowledge of her father's background and learns of mess at start of honeymoon. Drive Awards Announced At WMT Convention

Greenfield, Mass.—Business meeting yesterday morning followed by a Hollywood preview at the Garden Theater last night opened the second day of the Western Massachusetts Theaters, Inc., three-day convention.

Prizes for recent 13-week drive went to Edward Smith of the Paramount Theater in Springfield, Francis Faille of the Paramount in North Adams, Louis Levine of the Rivoli in Chicopee, David F. Perkins of the Plaza in Northampton, and Arthur J. Darley of the Broadway in Springfield.

Yesterday morning's session was given over to discussion of the movie new year plan. Under this plan theaters and managers would interest the public, not only in the motion pictures which are to be shown, but also in the idea that vitamins may be obtained in the theater in the form of rest and relaxation from cares of the world.

At the dinner Tuesday night, Maurice Wolf, New England district manager for M-G-M discussed the new block-booking plan and said it was "revolutionary." He also suggested that theater managers get into public life in their cities and towns.

Contracts Highlight Crescent Suit Trial

this time offered an effective and heavy rebuttal to the Government's attempted construction of the illegality of the type of contract and franchise between several distributors and the Crescent Amusement Co.

Objection of Robert L. Wright, special assistant to the Attorney General and chief Government counsel, to Morgan's statement that "franchises are never made for the purpose of keeping pictures away from competing theaters" was sustained by Judge Elmer D. Davies, but the witness was allowed to describe in detail the intended purpose of the hotly contested instrument.

Five-Year Para. Franchise

Crescent's existing five-year franchise with Paramount Pictures, according to Morgan, is on an "accumulative percentage" basis, and on first negotiations the amount asked, on basis of the first year was 50 per cent higher than Tony Sudekum proposed to pay. The negotiators met together after extended bargaining.

The existence of this franchise, according to the man who sold it, has meant the opening or reopening of theaters in several towns in the Crescent area and has enabled the exhibitors to give the public better pictures at a film rental the exhibitors can afford to pay. The witness defended the making of contracts for more than one year as essential to both distributor and exhibitor. He stated that an exhibitor changing two or three times a week can afford to leave any one distributor's production out for a whole year, a condition which the extended contract helps to eliminate. Too, the short film selling season places an extremely heavy burden on film salesmen if every contract has to be negotiated every year.

Morgan described a practice of distributors in making film contract for the same length and concurrent with the exhibitor's own theater lease. This reduces to a minimum the number of contracts not played out because an exhibitor's lease goes unrenewed.

Court Questions Witness

Judge Davies revealed a strong point of contention with him when he himself questioned Morgan about that clause in the Paramount contract which governs re-runs of feature pictures. He wanted to know if "in a town where there are competing theaters the distributor ever sells a second run of a picture before the exhibitor who originally exhibited the picture has been allowed 30 days in which to notify the distributor that a re-run is desired."

Morgan answered that the exhibitor would be given the 30 days, but that this clause did not prevent selling any picture as a part of a second-run contract.

Regarding this "second or re-run" clause in the Paramount franchise, which the Government contends was placed there as a restraint against competition, Morgan insisted that it was intended as a protection to the distributor and to all local exhibitors. It fixes a limit to the time that the distributor has to hold prints available in exchanges as well as affording a better method of handling this source of increased film revenue. The contracting exhibitor is benefitted by being able to obtain the re-run privilege by giving notice to the distributor in 30 days, with 120 days in which to actually play it off. The independent or competing exhibitor is benefited in that all features become available for second-runs in a definite time.

Print Availability

Morgan stated that the distributor encourages holding back a considerable time before a re-run or second-run for one reason because of the availability of prints. For example, the Atlanta exchange will have from 17 to 20 prints with 642 possible playing situations, with about two situations a week the limit for each film. This was given as the reason for extending the playing time allowed for re-runs from 45 to 120 days.

Morgan scored an effective point for the defense when he explained that the terms of a franchise covering any number of situations are determined from the estimated saleability of films in each town individually and not the basis of a combination.

During Tuesday afternoon's session, Louis Rosenbaum, co-partner with Mrs. Anthony Sudekum in Muscle Shoals Theaters, Inc., was questioned by his attorney, W. H. Mitchell, and cross-examined by Wright for the Government. Rosenbaum denied any direct affiliation with Crescent and maintained that he negotiated his own contracts in every case.

Street Car, Bus Strike Hits Detroit Box Offices

Detroit—A surprise strike tied up all street cars and busses here yesterday morning, and has so far hurt show business seriously. Downtown houses were off 25 per cent or more on matinees as shoppers unanimously stayed home. Some additional patronage is appearing downtown in transient trade as hotel guests, etc. are unable to get around city and turn to shows instead.

Neighborhood matinees were reported about normal by circuit operators having shows yesterday, especially in subsequent-runs where patrons can walk to houses, while second-runs and downtowns are likely to be off 10 to 30 per cent during the strike. Doubling of auto traffic has partly offset the effect.

of the contract department of the Sparks circuit in Florida, said yesterday in New York that his organization was one of the few large circuits in the South to adopt duals a few years ago. Believing that the policy might be a "cure-all" for bad business at that time, the circuit found that the grosses increased for a while and then levelled off, not compensating for the increased cost. A partial attempt to go back to singles was made about 18 months ago, Rogers said, adding that the circuit heads were now considering a complete sweep to singles.

Rogers indicated that every circuit apparently was waiting for another circuit to make the first move in order to observe the results.

However, to make it legal, Shreffler will have to present a signed petition containing sufficient number of names to become eligible for the primaries.

"I have been asked to run for mayor of our town for the past 10 years," Shreffler commented, "but politics and show business do not mix in this day and age."

CANADIAN GIFT OFFERS TO PASS?

War Regulations May Be Extended to Place Ban on All Premiums and Giveaways

Toronto—Because there is a shutdown on coupons and other special inducements for the sale of gasoline under the new wartime restrictions imposed by Fuel Administrator Cottrelle, there is a belief that a further step may be made in Canadian war regulations which would place a ban on all premiums or giveaways in other trades.

This is in line with official discouragement on credit buying, installment sales and bargain deals. It would have the effect of tossing out gift offers for theaters, now extensively used.

Exhibitors declare they would have to offer more entertainment, if this is done, to make up for the admission increases due entirely to the new 20 per cent war tax on grosses.

Utilization of the escape clause in the consent decree looms as a possibility in the opinion of some industry spokesmen. SPG and Producers Reps. Huddle to Talk Contract Negotiating Committeee of the Screen Publicists Guild and representatives of the producers met for the first time to discuss contract proposals at the Bar Building yesterday. Conferees adopted a joint statement of policy, and restricted the initial release to the bare statement that a meeting had been held.

Understood, however, that not all companies were represented at the first meeting, but may be later. Time of next huddle is still to be set.

ANPA Charges Gov't Antagonism to Advertising

With the film industry rated as the fifth largest advertiser in the U. S., there was lively trade interest manifested yesterday, particularly in New York home offices, in an American Newspaper Publishers Association bulletin, "The Government Takes a Hand More and More in Advertising Matters."

Bulletin, spotlighting the antagonism of various agencies of the Federal Government toward advertising, cites countless instances of arbitrary action to discourage or prohibit certain types of advertising in the last 10 years, and traces the rise of what, apparently, has become a policy of antagonism toward advertising in Washington.

This policy according to the bulletin, takes the form of:

"Attacks on the accuracy and truth of advertising, taxes on advertising, attacks on the ground that advertising is an economic waste, elimination of advertising by groups which are under the control of some agencies, efforts to eliminate harmless puffery in advertising language, the building up of consumer distrust of advertising and legislation to prohibit certain forms of advertising by certain groups and professions."

Principal Government agencies and individuals found consistently behind these attacks and strictures, the bulletin said, include Assistant Attorney-General Thurman Arnold, chief of the Anti-Trust Division, and, to a more limited degree. certain elements in the Federal Trade Commission.

Disney to Make Animated Training Films for Canada

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—The Canadian Government has commissioned Walt Disney Studios to produce animated films for training purposes. Work has started on five short films, half the films being devoted to a technical military subject, operation of a new anti-blitzkreig weapon.

Disney recently offered to make training films at cost for the United States Government, and he backed up his offer with a sample picture teaching aircraft riveting which uses a revolutionary technique.

Necessity of legislation barring the large influx of Nazi films in this country was emphasized by Prof. James H. New Defense Slant In Minn. Anti-5 Law in the courts here. State Senator E. J. Neumeier of Stillwater, Minn., added this statement to the 60-page briefs filed yesterday in Ramsey County District Court by Allied Theater Owners of the Northwest, acting for the county officials named as defendants in actions begun by the five major motion picture distributors which have signed the New York consent decree.

The majors attacked the law seeking injunctions to restrain officials from enforcing the act and Northwest Allied intervened in defense of the law which it sponsored and lobbied through the legislature.

The plaintiffs now have 10 days in which to reply to statements contained in the lengthy brief of the theatermen. Neumeier outlined the state's policy to protect small, independent business men and cited the Minnesota fair trade practices act, passed in 1937, and the Minnesota trade diversion law, passed in 1941, which prohibits employes, both public and private, from purchasing goods at wholesale through purchasing agents of private business firms, cities, towns or the state.

The Senator also called attention of the court to the fact that the State Supreme Court already has upheld the authority of the legislature to enact laws which carry out this often-stated policy and declared the anti-five law such an act. The balance of the brief, prepared by Fred Strom, executive secretary of Northwest Allied, and Clarence Holton, the organization's attorney, is made up of the various arguments advanced in favor of the measure at the time it was being considered by the legislature.

Judge Hugo O. Hanft is not expected to file a decision unitl late in September or early in October and already it has been intimated an appeal to the higher court will be filed, no matter which way the case goes.

Western Mass. Theaters Approves Blocks-of-5

Greenfield, Mass.—The third and final day of the Western Massachusetts Theaters convention took place yesterday with the main discussion centering around a new junior admission plan. Under this new plan, theaters would allow all youngsters up to the age of 17 years into the theaters at one price. It was stated that many youngsters over the age of 12 could not afford to pay adult prices and therefore were looking elsewhere for their amusement. Enlisting the aid of civic organizations, the plan will be put into effect shortly. The "revolutionary" block-selling in blocks of five was again discussed and met with general approval.

Canada to License "Jukes" for Revenue

Toronto—The Dominion Government has discovered there is such an instrument as a "juke box" and that it might be something which can be taxed as a war measure. The authorities apparently do not classify the playing of the slot machines as a form of amusement because an intimation indicates that the tax will be different, in the form of at an annual license. Move might be called the first break of the war for the theaters.

War Dept. Gives Preview Of Army Training Films

lowed by sound effects of a modern battlefield.

The training films will be used to give the soldiers expert training in the various phases of army activities. The sound effects will be employed to condition their nerves to the noise of battle.

The films shown last night were selected from the 100 reels of training films already completed for the army in Hollywood by the Research Council in conjunction with the Signal Corps. Approximately 40 more reels of training films are now in production in Hollywood, while another 250 reels are being produced by the Signal Corps laboratories at Ft. Monmouth and Wright Field.

Officials pointed out that the training films are valuable in that they will enable them to school vast numbers of men at the same time in correct procedure, and also to standardize procedure.

"The training film enables the men not only to learn how to operate the weapon, but also to know its history, to understand its care, and to appreciate its tactical employment," it was pointed out.

The Army officials, who were headed by Gen. A. A. Surles, director of public relations, highly praised the motion picture industry for its whole-hearted and unselfish co-operation with the Army, pointing out that the industry was deriving no profit from this work.

Darryl F. Zanuck. The 20th-Fox production boss is in Washington in his official Army capacity.

Wobber and Place will go over sales policy with Zanuck while Horne, it was understood, will discuss exploitation plans on "Belle Starr" and "Yank in RAF." All plan to return to New York the same night.

Zanuck, it was reported, will also get a first-hand account of record breaking business of "Charley's Aunt." Film is company's biggest grosser since "Alexander's Ragtime Band," and liable to top the latter's box-office record, it was indicated.

FPC to Stress Paramount, Warner and RKO Product

Toronto — Famous Players Canadian is making preliminary announcements regarding the product which will open its units for the new season under revised policies as to first-run and priorities and otherwise. "Aloma of the South Seas" will open the Hamilton Tivoli under the new set-up while "The Bride Came C.O.D." will play the Century Theater, Hamilton. There is an intimation that "Citizen Kane" will play Shea's Theater, Toronto, when it starts as a de luxe house in place of the Uptown which has reverted to Loew's. These indications show that FPC will specialize with Paramount, Warner Bros. and RKO pictures.

The Uptown Theater, Toronto, will open under new Loew direction on Sept. 1 with the British film, "Come On, George," released through Empire-Universal, which is a Nathanson exchange. Loew's Downtown Theater will continue with M-G-M and United Artists and it is understood that the Capitol and Palace Theaters, Hamilton, will book this product. There is a rumor that Nicholas M. Schenck and Loew's, Inc., have an interest in the two Hamilton first-run situations.

cuit in the Milwaukee field. The move, it was said, was made to bolster the circuit against Fox Wisconsin which will acquire a number of Saxe Wisconsin houses after Sept. 1.

It was also reported yesterday that Fox Wisconsin may reconsider on deal calling for the acquisition of 12 of the Saxe houses and take over only six.

New Eng. Senators Back Probe of Gas Shortage

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—With New England Senators pressing for a Congressional investigation of the gasoline shortage on the Eastern seaboard and reports current that compulsory rationing was fast approaching, Chairman J. W. Bailey, D., N. C., of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday promised an early hearing on the Maloney resolution proposing a formal inquiry.

According to Ralph K. Davies, acting Petroleum Co-ordinator, there is only approximately a 10-day supply of gasoline now in storage in the East.

Producer stated he expected to have his plans pretty well crystallized within the next two weeks when he plans to return to Ottawa from New York.

Pascal said George Bernard Shaw, whom he saw in England, was "crazy about my Canadian program and told me he would visit Canada next Spring if I located on the Pacific Coast."

Pascal declared "Snow Goose," by Paul Gallico, his first Dominion effort, will take in portions of the Hudson Bay region, swinging to Cornwall in England and end at Dunkerque. He said Paul Muni, Robert Newton and Deborah Kerr of "Little Fisherfolk" will be in the cast, according to tentative arrangements. Jack Miner, Canadian naturalist, would be technical advisor. "I plan also a big documentary picture of the life and work of Miner," Pascal said. His plans call for a third Canadian picture but he declined to say what it would be about, although saying some exterior shots would be made in Quebec.

Schad Theaters File $750,000 Trust Suit

Warner Brothers Circuit Management Corp., Warner Brothers Theater, Inc., Stanley Company of America, and Vitagraph, Inc., will be heard by Federal Court Judge J. Cullen Ganey on Sept. 8.

The anti-trust suit, filed on Aug. 20, asks for triple damages under the Clayton Act, amounting to $750,000, and results from what is charged to be illegal acts in the operation of certain theaters in Reading, Pa.

The complaint charges among other things that Warner and Wilmer & Vincent caused the defendant, the Berks Amusement Co., Inc., to sublet the State, Reading, Pa., to Warner and that the theater was renamed the Warner, showing all Vitagraph product. It also charges that Warner then subleased the Arcadia to Wilmer & Vincent, renaming it the Ritz.

The defendants conspired, it is said, to relegate the Astor to a secondary position, damage its reputation and deny it the right and ability to bargain for film.

In addition, it is charged that Warner compelled 20th Century-Fox to enter into an agreement with Warner to terminate the franchise enjoyed by the Astor for one-half of 20th Century-Fox product, and compelled the company to license it to Wilmer & Vincent for the Embassy and Ritz.

When the Warner lease on the Astor expired, it was not renewed, and as a result, the complaint charges, the plaintiffs cannot bargain for film, the reputation of the house has been damaged to the extent of $250,000.

The plaintiffs ask that the alleged combination be declared illegal, and steps be taken to keep "a free, open and untrammeled market" in Reading. Since the Astor reverted to Schad from Warners early this year, it has been a part of a pool involving the Park and the Astor, operated by Jay Emanuel, who has no part in the present action, which is based entirely on events leading up to Schad's taking back the theater. State Sen. Harry Shapiro and William Rudenko are attorneys for Schad.

"Belle Starr"

with Randolph Scott, Gene Tierney, Dana Andrews, John Shepperd

20th-Fox 87 Mins.

TOP-FLIGHT ATTRACTION WHOSE ROMANTIC STORY AND RED-BLOODED EPISODES MAKE IT AN AUDIENCE "NATURAL."

In this tense and exciting story of Missouri's bandit queen, Belle (nee Shirley) Starr, 20th-Fox has an impressive entry in the new 1941-42 season "derby" which gets off shortly round the land. The production is beautifully mounted in Technicolor to set off a tale of bristling action and romance which has to do with the post Civil War reconstruction period in the "Show Me" State.

In the title role in comely Gene Tierney,—her first starring part earned solidly via her performance in the celluloid version of "Tobacco Road." It is an exacting part, for the simple reason that it calls upon her to play scene after scene in wrought-up emotion resulting from her bitterness at the loss of the conflict by the Confederacy; the killing of her father by renegade bands whom she views as being under the Union banner; and the burning of her ancestral home because she and her brother, John Shepperd, have harbored the wounded Randolph Scott.

The latter is interpreter of the role of Captain Starr who, despite the fact that hostilities have ended, raids with his marauders the forces of the North which are attempting to bring law and order to Missouri in the wake of the carpetbaggers' invasion. His views that the war 'twixt the States cannot, in justice, be terminated by any such small factor as the surrender of General Lee, are shared by Gene Tierney.

When her mansion is put to the torch by the dutiful Dana Andrews, a Union army captain, the act drives her to the hills and arms of Randolph Scott. After their marriage, she shares partnership with him in guerilla assaults upon Government transportations, and the driving of the carpet-baggers from Missouri. But there is a rift in the marriage when he refuses to purge the pure outlaw element among his followers. Closing sequences pack a great deal of emotion, springing from her tragic death, and Scott's dramatic surrender to the law.

Technically, the picture is finely fashioned. Irving Cummings' direction is tender and red-blooded as the script demands. Directors of Photography Ernest Palmer and Ray Rennahan turn in a splendid job. Location shots are at time eye-filling and the general tempo of the picture is swift. Perhaps this reviewer may be hindsighted, but it seems that considerably more could have been achieved in the way of the spectacular and audience impression had the Starr band been augmented by a larger number of horsemen.

Notwithstanding, the film is big in stature, dramatics and action, and studded with good performance from the lead players down to the minor character roles. Scott is an ideal choice for his part. Gene Tierney takes a long step in Hollywood and public ranking by her contribution. Other standout performances are turned in by Louise Beavers, Chill Wills, Elizabeth Patterson, Dana Andrews and John Shepperd.

Houses of all size and location can go to town with this one. It's rugged fan fare and highly exploitable.

"Charlie Chan in Rio" with Sidney Toler, Mary Beth Hughes, Cobina Wright, Jr., Ted North, Victor Jory

20th-Fox 60 Mins.

FAIR MURDER THRILLER WHOSE PLOT AND ACTION WILL PROBABLY PLEASE THE MANY CHAN FANS.

This latest saga in the investigating career of the fiction-beloved Oriental detective runs about on a par with his former adventures as far as story, action and thrills are concerned.

The locale of this one is Brazil's colorful metropolis, and there the analytical sleuth is aided by a local police official in solving a killing, although, of course, Mr. Chan needs little outside assistance. The title role is, as usual, enacted by Sidney Toler. The key victim,—there are two in all before the finale,— is Jacqueline Dalya, who plays the part of a night club singer who is engaged to marry a wealthy lad, Ted North.

But before the couple can sprint by air to the U. S. to take their marriage vows, the prospective bride is found done to death by a sharp weapon in her back. After Chan gets busy with his questioning of prospects and subsequent deductions, he concludes rightly that the murderer is the person whose shoe-sole contains the pin portion of a jeweled brooch which the murdered girl had received as a gift from her wealthy fiance.

The assignment of Chan's second son is carried by Sen Yung, whose crush on a little Oriental housemaid leads both to comedy relief and some of the more actionful development before the windup. Casting of the film provides considerable femme pulchritude, including the up-and-coming Cobina Wright, Jr. All in all, the Rio case appears geared to please the Chan fans.

Harry Lachman's direction is spirited and Joseph P. MacDonald's photography okay.

Crescent Co. Scores Point on Franchises of Tony Sudekum, chief defendant to the suit, and the testimony of the day bore out his contention from the beginning of the trial that he hasn't "done anybody any wrong about anything."

Benjamin Kalmenson, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Vitagraph's Western and Southwestern division sales manager, tossed a bombshell into the Government's case when he denied that Tony Sudekum ever told him that if he didn't make a deal with Crescent and Rockwood, that he could not sell to Muscle Shoals and to certain other Crescent affiliates during negotiations here in Nashville in November, 1939, with Sudekum and K. C. Stengel for a three-year franchise for Warner pictures.

Granted Entitled Clearance Only

George H. Armistead, Jr., chief defense counsel, read a letter into the records from Kalmenson to R. L. McCoy, Vitagraph exchange manager at Atlanta, after the Nashville negotiations, in which the witness instructed McCoy to allow Crescent clearances on films to which they, in his opinion, were entitled but no more. Kalmenson denied certain implications, based on a letter to the witness from McCoy on Dec. 4, 1939, suggested by Government Counsel Robert L. Wright, concerning the making of a franchise with Sudekum and Stengel for Crescent and with Rosenbaum for Muscle Shoals.

Defense counsel and disinterested court observers declared that Kalmenson in his testimony completely cleared up the vital issue of second-runs and re-runs in connection with Crescent contracts in competitive situations. The reaction of Judge Elmer D. Davies to his statements concerning this issue were visibly favorable.

W. J. Kupper a Witness

Following the Vitagraph official to the stand was W. J. Kupper, New York City, Western division sales manager for Twentieth Century-Fox since 1932. Kupper began by testifying that he had never met Sudekum or any other of the defendants, had never had any direct correspondence or communication of any kind with them, had never been a party to any agreement or understanding with the defendants in any way leading to any monopolistic control of pictures in restraint of interstate commerce. He denied with equal emphasis that he had the final say on any contract or franchise although each instrument had to bear the signature of General Sales Manager. Herman Wobber.

He discussed the making of the present Twentieth Century-Fox franchise with Crescent which was submitted for his approval by A. T. Balance, Atlanta exchange manager. He described the franchise as "economically sound and good business, a means of getting the most revenue out of any and all given situations and we consider it definitely to our advantage to make every franchise we can."

Judge Davies and even Government counsel were visibly impressed by Kupper's statement that in the Southern district (Atlanta exchange) alone Twentieth Century-Fox has 400 franchises in force out of 2.000 to 2,200 accounts—a lot of illegality according to contentions of the Government—these being with independents and individual exhibitors as well as with circuits.

Competition an Advantage

Another telling statement by Kupper was: "It is very definitely to our advantage to have competition in every situation."

In an argument over an objection by Wright, William Waller, defense counsel. referred to film revenue from Crescent circuits as "only a drop in the bucket" to distributors. Judge Davies picked this up with the amused remark that " it may be just a drop in the bucket. but everybody seems to be mighty anxious to get that drop."

Defense Counsel Armistead says that he will complete his case by next Wednesday, which may mean a decision and an end to the hearing by September 1.

derstanding of the functions of visual education and vocational training through the medium of films; to standardize activities in these fields with respect to equipment; and to supply information on skilled and responsible sources of supply to channels seeking commercial, instructional and industrial film productions.

The new group, which is headed by Herbert Houston, who was reported to have been in this city yesterday from New York, is declared to include several film organizations, some of whom, it is reported, are Jam Handy Productions, Detroit; Ray-Bell Films, Minneapolis; Loucks & Norling Studios, New York City; and Caravel Films, Inc., also of New York.

According to present plans, the Institute, whose general organizational objectives are described as generally similar to those of such groups as film theater operators have set up within filmland,—such as the MPTOA,—plan to have offices both here and in New York, with the latter as headquarters.

It is also understood that any firm active in the so-called industrial and educational film category is eligible to join under certain conditions specified by the Institute, and a number of applications for membership have been received, it is claimed.

Government circles here are eyeing with interest the expressed attitude of certain sources that there is need in official Washington for the centralization of activities having to do with the supply to the Government of film productions, and it is a matter of local speculation as to whether the newly-formed Institute can or will bid on Government films and prints.

Actual details on how survey will be conducted will be mapped out when Collins confers with Korda who will arrive here early next week from Hollywood.

Whitney Latin-American Tour Calls for 8 Lands

Ecuador, Venezuela and Uruguay upon the confirmation of arrangements now being made. Whitney's definite itinerary calls for visits to Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru, the entire trip to span two months.

Prior to his departure by Clipper here, Whitney said he planned to talk with the diplomatic missions, local officials whose special interest is films, local American representatives and South American exhibitors and acquaint them with the particulars and the objectives of the Section's program.

"Every effort will be made," he said, "to enlist their active assistance. Any comments they make will be welcome. We are also interested in finding out all we can about the local motion picture industry, the facilities for exhibition, the character and technique of local productions. The more familiar we are with their methods of operation, the closer we can work together.

"In addition," Mr. Whitney continued, "I'm going to take every opportunity to observe the audience reaction to pictures made in the United States."

Whitney singled out the nontheatrical phase of the Co-ordinator's film program for particular mention. Exchange of this type material would be of "great mutual benefit," he said, adding, "but before embarking on a large-scale program, an analysis of facilities will be necessary. I hope to come back with a clear conception of the requirements."

"Escape" in Decree May Be Utilized

New York equity suit if the Government loses the Crescent anti-trust case. If that should happen, the five companies assenting to the decree would not be required to continue their new selling method nine months after the decree becomes effective on Sept. 1, although arbitration would continue for three years.

Even though there is nothing yet to indicate that the Government will not press its suit against Universal, United Artists and Columbia, executives already are beginning to consider how they will sell product if the three companies are not brought into the fold and the consent decree provisions are dismissed.

Exhibitor leaders are of the opinion that the distributors will not go back to straight block-booking but will offer entire programs with liberal cancellation clauses. It is likely that a compromise with the Government on the selling issue would be effected if the decree is ousted.

The MPTOA long has championed a straight 20 per cent cancellation privilege, while Allied, at various times, has asked for greater cancellation plus advance synopses.

Whether blocks-of-five are eliminated or continued, major company spokesmen yesterday frankly admitted that "peace in the distribution ranks of this business is a long way off."

Effective Sept. 5, six Midwestern outlets will be added to the Fidler web on a sponsored basis while. at the same time, the program will be made available to the balance of Mutual's stations on a sustaining basis.

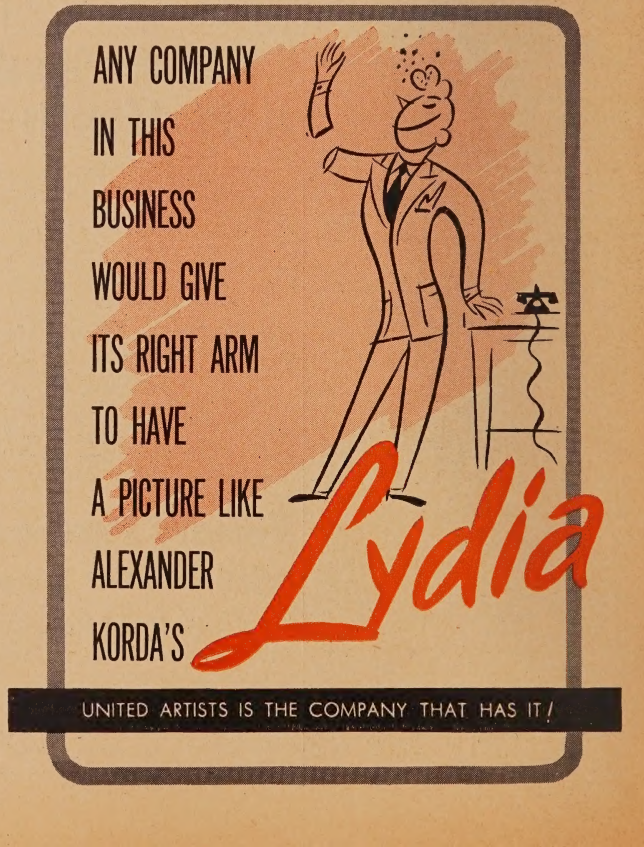
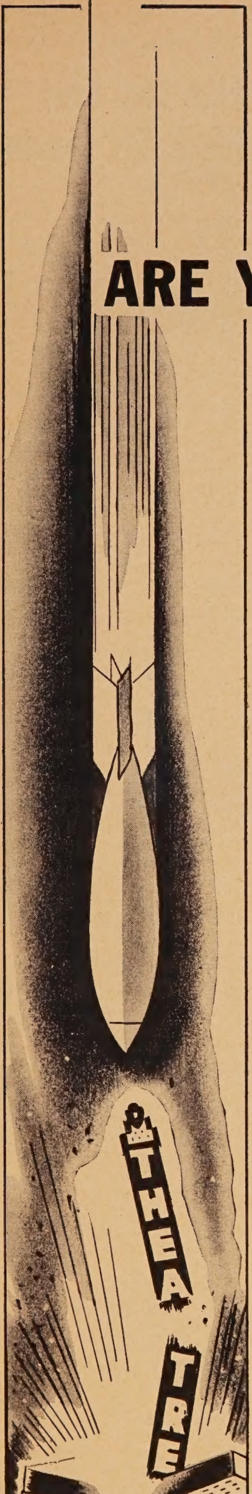
Bob Williams to Coast

Bob Williams, of the Warner home office publicity department, leaves today for the Coast for a spot with the studio publicity department. He will take over Irving Fine's duties as picture contact.



ARE YOU DROPPING YOUR BOMBS ON YOUR OWN THEATRE?



Buying power is the exhibitor's most precious ammunition. He can use it for the good of all — or he can fire it at imaginary enemies and commit suicide by mistake.

Are you dropping your bombs on your own theatre?

When a film buyer drives a bargain that's so sharp that the producer is cut to ribbons, he isn't defending himself — he's annihilating himself.

When an exhibitor follows up a policy of under-buying the producer with a policy of under-selling the public, he has sent down a second deadly bomb on his own property. He may destroy the producer but he himself will be destroyed in the same wreckage.

It is the high-priced films that pay the high dividends. Anything bought cheaply is cheaply valued. If you pay a good price for a great picture, you'll add to its greatness by a great campaign . . . you'll build up the gross to a point where it's adequate to include a sizeable film rental and a profit to your theatre.

You won't skimp on advertising. You'll go after bigger newspaper space. You'll double the scope of your exploitation. You won't just let the picture live or die on a title or on the star names you put on your marquee. You'll do something to increase and expand the appeal the producer put in the picture before you got it.

Constructive tactics let great pictures earn what they deserve. Destructive tactics kill you by killing good pictures first.

Use your buying power constructively. Don't drop your bombs on your own theatre!

Sees USO Campaign Establishing Record

Joseph Bernhard, chairman of USO Theater Week, reported at the week-end that enrollments to date indicate the drive will be the most successffiul campaign in the industry's history. Bernhard stated that although the drive does not start until Labor Day, 8,369 theaters have already been enrolled.

Highlights of the campaign include participation by every theater on Broadway and by every circuit in the New York exchange area, without a single exception. The co-chairmen co-operating with Bernhard in the 31 exchange centers throughout the country have reported to him that every important circuit—affiliated and non-affiliated—in their respective territories, will have been enrolled before Labor Day.

The USO trailer, made by Metro is being supplied gratis to all theaters by National Screen Service.

Bernhard announced that while USO Theater Week starts officially on Labor Day, those theaters which usually change programs on Thursdays, Fridays, etc., may if they wish, start their campaign accordingly on Thursday, Friday, etc., of this week.

WB Said Selling Three Pix As First Group in Chicago

Chicago—Warners, disassociating itself from block-selling as a rigid policy, is selling 1941-42 product either singly or in groups as films are shown to the trade at previews, it was reported here in the wake of the visit last week of Grad Sears, company's distribution chief.

The local branch is understood making initial deals for three pictures, but this does not mean, it was said, that the same proposition will be made elsewhere.

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—Questioned regarding report that while Warners has disassociated itself from selling specified blocks, its Chicago exchange is offering first three films shown in block, Gradwell Sears refused to make any comment. He also declined to make any statement on policy.

going to all 20th-Fox branches calling for careful handling of cases and reels and requesting that carriers be asked to guard against damage. Letter, signed by Jack Sichelman, assistant to Herman Wobber, said in part:

"From now on, there will be a shortage in view of the fact that if we should order 100 shipping cases, we will probably get 20 per cent of that quantity and in due time our stock will be depleted. Therefore, we cannot stress too much the fact that steps must be taken to conserve every shipping reel and case, condition permitting, and as you accumulate a surplus of shipping cases and reels, let us know so that we can transfer them to other branches whose supply may be exhausted."

Vendors of cases and reels have advised 20th-Fox that the Government's priority orders makes it compulsory that the Government approve orders before manufacturers can go ahead with them.

Defense program demands are said to have sent prices of needed materials skyward, while some cannot be obtained.

Considerable difficulty is being encountered in having orders filled for chemicals, almost all types of metal, book papers in odd lots and electrical appliances.

Neither is it possible to match color stocks due to shortage of chlorine.

Joe Lee, mogul of the Fabian theater poll in Brooklyn, never misses a trick on the promotional front. He's launched a popularity contest for the Brooklyn Dodgers at the Paramount there. The poll to date shows Dixie Walker way out ahead. So is Joe Lee in grosses for the house as result of filmgoers' eagerness to ballot. The sports writers have played up the poll in contrast with the selection by Larry MacPhail of the Dodgers' six most valuable players, among whom Walker was not named.

Five pictures now in work will be ready for delivery Sept. 1, Greenblatt said, adding that increased budgets will be in effect all down the line.

Institute Will Seek U. S. Biz

AVEVT to Bid on Gov't Film Work--Houston

cil, and identified with the newspaper business, having served as city editor of the Sioux City Journal, and later with the Chicago Tribune. He also was founder and president of Cosmos Newspaper Syndicate and president of Cosmos Broadcasting Co. In 1918, according to industry records, he authored a book titled, "Blocking New Wars."

Responding to the question as to whether the Institute would bid on the Government film work which is scheduled to be awarded on Wednesday, Houston said it would. Articles or services covered in the Procurement Division of the Treasury Department's invitation to bid include developing and printing of motion picture films from negatives furnished by the Office of Education of the Federal Works Agency.

12,000 Prints Involved

The prints are in connection with some 40 Government productions, about 20 of which are said to be already completed. While no official word has come out of Washington as to how many prints will be involved, estimates of industry channels place the aggregate at around 12,000, or about 300 prints for each production. Government sources say that 90 per cent of the prints will be in 16 mm. and the balance in 35 mm.

It is understood that in any contingency the new Institute will not bid on the production of motion pictures.

Clarification of the Institute's aims, with respect to actively bidding on the contract in light of its general objectives to weld together the non-theatrical field through accepting into membership an eligible firm in that field which duly made application and met the Institute's requirements, was sought because, so far as can be determined, there are only four companies allegedly holding such membership.

The reason given for the small current membership, although the Institute has been in existence for several months, is that those who established it want to find out how the organization will physically operate.

Institute Reaction Varied

Checkup of channels close to non-member companies brought forth on the week-end expressions of opinion which were widely at variance. Some asserted that the organization of a central body to aid in co-ordinating the so-called non-theatrical field and bringing about a code of standards and practices for mutual advancement is a highly constructive step. Others expressed doubt that the Institute is "getting off on the right foot" as far as the non-theatrical field generally is concerned. Spokesman of one company in the West declared that the membership of four firms indicated to him that the Institute is "a closed game of bridge."

Considerable disappointment has issued recently from West Coast non-theatrical interests as well as some directly associated with the theatrical field because of their failure to obtain Government film work. One Coast report recently averred that the complaining companies intended dispatching messages to their representatives in Congress, asking that the latter investigate.

Under the provisions of the approaching print award by the Treasury Department's Procurement Division, "the bidder, at the time the bid is submitted, may plan to sublet portions of the services and products that may be required in the fulfillment of any contract that may result from this invitation to bid." This amendment to the original provision is obviously necessary, trade channels point out, because the contract is to be awarded not only on the basis of developing and printing the films, but on distribution and attending promotion.

U. K. Theaters Operate At 94% of Capacity the damaged houses have been repaired and many are in the process of being rebuilt.

The British official is the former operator of the Granada circuit in England which consisted of 35 theaters. Bernstein last year gave up his theater interests for the important job as film advisor for the Ministry of Information.

Main task of Bernstein is to see the films made by the Government which are of an educational character are distributed to all theaters. He said it takes seven weeks to have these reels of approximately 650 feet in length played in every house in England.

Bernstein admitted he had a long discussion with John Hay Whitney before the latter departed for South America. He would not say whether the topic of the conversation had to do with Anglo-American collaboration against Nazi films in Latin-America.

The British government, Bernstein revealed, had produced a five-reel subject "Target for Tonight" which is one of the best documentaries of the war. He said a few of the distributors here are interested in the film.

While very reticent on his mission, Bernstein did say he was very anxious to obtain as many non-theatrical films as he could. He declared at this time they were very important.

Among the recent productions made by British producers for theatrical distribution, Bernstein touted "Love on the Dole" as "a really fine work."

Operating a theater during wartime presents a number of problems to British exhibitors, Bernstein declared. He pointed out each theater had to have five air raid observers stationed on the roof while shortage of male personnel caused a number of innovations since theater staffs had to be virtually replenished by women.

Bernstein said he planned to return to London later this week.

Senate Probe Bids Unaccepted

Administration Support for Industry Seen

the missives were sent by registered mail.

This could mean either that the executives plan to ignore the invitation pending further developments, or that each is waiting to learn what the others do before accepting. Chairman D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, has indicated they might be suppoenaed if necessary.

In the meantime, Senator Champ Clark, D., Mo., co-author of the probe measure, intimated he knew the identity of the "mystery" witnesses who have been requested to appear, but declined to reveal their identity.

Clark said he didn't think a lot of witnesses would be necessary. He said that of course, he would appear, but that he thought it "perfectly obvious" that the movies have been indulging in propaganda designed to lead the country into war.

"It's obvious to me," he said.

Senator Nye's secretary expressed surprise that anyone should think the Senator would know about anyone other than himself who desired to appear in favor of the bill, or that the Senator was doing anything other than preparation of his own testimony, in behalf of the measure.

In the meantime, Senator Nye has produced a powerful ally for the movie industry, in the form of the national Administration itself. In speeches, Senator Nye has indicated belief that some of the "war propaganda" might have been forced upon the industry by orders direct from Washington.

The Committee itself is stacked with non-interventionists, but the power of the Administration is far flung, and before the final gong has sounded, might bring its influence to bear in favor of the industry if the isolationists go too far with "baiting activities."

ing in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Productions would be of sufficient stature, Carr declared in a press interview, to be successful in the American markets. Through such an investment, Carr said UA producers hoped to recoup some of the money frozen in England. Producers and corporation have about $5.-000,000 frozen in England, Carr stated.

First of the films, "Ships with Wings," produced by the Ealing studios in the deal with UA is ready and will be here shortly, he said. The British studio is now working on "Siege," which features all the leading British players. The Ealing deal allows UA to select for U. S. distribution three of the eight pictures made.

According to Carr, there is a strong likelihood that negotiations with Moscow for UA pictures will be carried on from London. He cited "The Great Dictator," "Foreign Correspondent," "That Hamilton Woman," and "So Ends Our Night" as the films in which the Russians are interested.

Carr said from reports from England more optimistic British morale has reflected itself in increased theater attendance. Cessation of the "Blitz" and entry of Russia into the war are responsible for uplift, Carr declared.

He stated his associate, George Archinbald, will join the Royal Air Force in an administrative capacity when he returns. Carr leaves with his wife Tuesday on the Clipper for London.

UA Institutional Ad Copy to Run 4 Weeks

United Artists' institutional trade paper advertising campaign is under way, calling attention to the fact that the company plans to spend nearly $2,000,000 in advertising its 1941-42 program of 18 to 20 pictures. Of this amount, approximately $1,500,000 will be concentrated on newspaper advertising in key cities.

Arthur W. Kelly, vice-president and general manager in charge of distribution, in a statement Friday, declared that all branches of the business should work together in harmony, pointing out that it was essential that exhibitors assume their rightful responsibility while Hollywood was preparing the product.

"We are openly asking," Kelly said, "all companies to step up their newspaper advertising and exploit all films courageously and intelligently so that good pictures will play the maximum number of days in theaters everywhere."

The trade paper institutional campaign will run four weeks, after which UA will embark on its biggest advertising drive.

Two Gas Rationing Plans Taking Shape

In the face of statements by execs. of leading oil companies that there was sufficient gas and fuel oil reserves on the Eastern seaboard for immediate requirements, it was reported at the week-end that two gas rationing plans were taking shape in Washington.

One would jump the 10 per cent cut to 20 or 30 per cent if necessary, leaving it up to the oil companies to work out a system of doling it out to motorists.

In this connection, it was said a proposal to cut gasoline consumption 40 per cent in the coming two weeks has been recommended by the Eastern Petroleum Marketing Board as a result of two days' deliberation in New York.

The other is the card rationing system whereby drivers would be allotted certain amounts depending on how "essential" their cars are deemed.

The figures quoted by the oil company execs. here directly contradicted the recent statement of Acting Petroleum Co-ordinator Davies, who assailed those who said the gasoline crisis was phony and insisted that the impending shortage in the East was an actuality, with only 10 days' supply on hand.

At Hyde Park Friday, President Roosevelt indicated he had no objections to a proposed Congressional probe of the Eastern gas-oil shortage, stipulating, however, that no war data be revealed.

Questioned 'U' Deal Up At Crescent Trial

reason Universal was not dismissed as a defendant on that date.

It is admitted that in December 1938, John D. Henry applied for a contract for Universal first-run products for 1938-39. This application was sent to the Memphis exchange for approval of J. A. Prichard, then exchange manager, and to be forwarded to the Universal office in New York. Prichard testified Friday that the application was forwarded to New York but with his recommendation to reject because this season's product was already pledged to Crescent Amusement Company, then and before a Universal customer in Union City.

Contradictory Testimony

In his testimony as a witness for the plaintiff, Henry stated that Prichard told him that his application had been approved and he further testified that 10 days later he went to Memphis and to the Universal exchange and there was told by the office secretary that Prichard was out of town but that his contract had been approved and was on his desk at the time, but that she couldn't release it to him.

On the stand Friday, Mrs. L. D. Miller, the "office secretary," testified that to her knowledge Henry's application was never approved and that she did not at any time tell him that it had been. She stated that she handled all incoming and outgoing mail and would know positively about the acceptance or rejection of any application or contract. All statements made by Mrs. Miller, who had been in this position for seven years until March of this year, had previously been made by Prichard as exchange manager.

Court Questions Exchange Secretary

The importance of this testimony to the court was revealed when Judge Davies himself asked Mrs. Miller several questions from which he obtained the information that there was no other one in the Memphis exchange office from whom Henry might have gotten the information to which he testified. He also himself drew from her an emphatic negative to the question: "Did you tell Mr. Henry that his contract had been approved and was on Mr. Prichard's desk?"

According to the testimony given Friday, and on direct testimony by Henry as a witness for the plaintiff, the Union City theater operator on December 30, 1938 made application for a second-run contract for Universal pictures and then, as late as January 13, 1939, telephoned Harry Graham, manager of the Universal exchange at Atlanta, Ga., about the rejection of his application for first-run contract for 1938-39. Henry did contract with Universal for second-run for this season but played only four pictures out of 22 according to play-off sheets.

20th-Fox Manager on Stand

Late Friday afternoon Paul S. Wilson, branch manager for Twentieth Century-Fox, was on the stand and questioned about a franchise made by this distributor with Crescent Amusement Company, Muscle Shoals Theaters, Inc., and Rockwood Amusement Company for three years, 1939-1942. His attention was called to a memorandum taken from the Crescent files and introduced as an exhibitor by the Government on July 31, in which he wrote about the three franchises as if they were related. Wilson explained that this memorandum was made up for his own use and that the three franchises were "wholly separate deals."

Under cross-examination by Robert L. Wright, with letters relating to the deal being introduced, William Waller, Crescent counsel, arose to admit that the witness was in error and that an original contract was submitted which included Crescent and Rockwood. but that this contract was returned by K. C. Stengel with the request that they be separated. This fact was stipulated by defense counsel.

Defense still promised to complete its case by Wednesday, August 27.

Polio Outbreak Hits Biz In Miss. Towns

Yazoo City, Miss.—An outbreak of polio in Yazoo County, has caused a letdown in theater attendance in several towns, particularly here where four conventions scheduled for this week were postponed. In the craw of the eighth fowl . . . . she found her diamond. (Who's that bird they call Charlie Chan?).

Para., RKO Seek Ruggles On One-Picture Deals

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—Charlie Ruggles completed his assignment in "Go West Young Lady" with Penny Singleton for Columbia last week. Both Paramount and RKO are seeking Ruggles for one-picture deals. Ruggles himself has for some time been buying screen rights to published stories which would serve as a foundation for a series of co-starring domestic comedies for him, the story properties to be offered as part of the deal by Ruggles. Success was achieved in such a series a couple of years ago by Ruggles co-starring with Mary Boland at Paramount.

Night Single Bill Policy Clicks in Columbus House

Columbus, O.—Return to a single feature policy at night has brought a sharp upward trend at the box-office of the Palace Theater, RKO City Manager C. Harry Schreiber reported today, six weeks after the experimental plan was inaugurated.

Under the policy, twin bills are shown during the afternoon only, with a single feature and short subject on the evening program.

So successful has the move been that it has been made a permanent policy at the Palace and when RKO's Grand Theater re-opens here shortly, the single feature program will be offered exclusively.

A firm supporter of the single bill, Samuel T. Wilson, motion picture editor of the Columbus Dispatch, sent a photographer to make a poll for The Dispatch and to get candid shots of some of the voters. Not a single person who preferred the double feature was found at the night performance.

In answer to a query whether he had discussed with Herman Wobber and Hermann Place a successor to Charles E. McCarthy, resigned head of the advertising and publicity department, Zanuck stated, "I did not discuss Mr. McCarthy or his successor at all."

Zanuck said he screened "A Yank in the RAF" for the home office executives who conferred with him in Washington on Friday.

Lower Tax Exemptions Causing Exhibitor Worries

Senate Finance Committee Action Viewed as Potential Threat to Box Office

Action of the Senate Finance Committee in Washington yesterday in voting to reduce Federal income tax exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single persons was seen by showmen as a potential threat to the nation's box offices.

It was pointed out that, should the Senate's action stand when the bill goes to conference, it would bring an additional 6,000,000 persons under the income tax structure, with had ever been any agreement or understanding between any distributor or his agents and Crescent Amusement Co., or its affiliates, that could be used in any way to keep pictures away from a competitor.

Stengel denied that any film salesman for any producer had ever revealed to him the terms or conditions of any film deal about to be made to any other exhibitor or that any salesman had ever consulted his wants or wishes before closing a deal with a competitor. He asserted that in the approximately five years that he has been buying films for Crescent, only one picture has been bought and not played—"Dreamy Lips"—which Crescent officials decided "lacked entertainment value."

When Robert L. Wright, special assistant to the Attorney General, attempted to prevent introduction of photos of new Crescent theaters as evidence, claiming that the "camera was crowded close to make the theater front appear larger than it really is," defense attorneys immediately began submitting two photos for each theater, a close up and a more distant shot. Judge Elmer D. Davies over-ruled Wright's objection to the photos.

grounds the film was derogatory to the Communistic system.

After film was authorized for showing at Teatro Alemeda, Mexico's chief de luxe house, by proper authorities, the union rushed its members to picket the theater. At the last moment, the Minister of Interior advised the censorship department the film could be exhibited "but not for commercial purposes."

Union's opposition in the past forced the withdrawing of M-G-M's "Ninotchka," for its satire on Communism and the Italian-made "Scipio Africanus," for being pro-Fascist. M-G-M will probably make no attempt to release "Comrade X," as a result of the union's attitude.

Meeting between distributors and union officials have so far been deadlocked, because distributors are staunchly opposing claims of unions that all severance pay go back to time when company opened its office in Mexico City. Which means if a man were hired and fired after a month he would be entitled to indemnities starting from the year the company went into business in Mexico.

At this writing, there is little hope among the distributors that the walkout of union employes on Sept. 2 can be averted.

225 Michigan Theaters Take First Fox Block

Detroit—Twentieth-Fox has signed deals for its first block of five films with Butterfield Circuit, Co-Operative Theaters of Michigan, and the Schulte Circuit, covering about 225 Michigan theaters, Manager Lester Sturm said yesterday. First-run release in Detroit continues to be divided between the Fox and the Adams under terms of a pre-existing franchise, which has several years to run.

Double showing of new films is being dropped by Fox, which formerly screened the same feature in the morning and again in the afternoon, with only one showing scheduled on future blocks.

which indie producers utilize Western Electric recording re-recording and scoring equipment, which will continue to be offered, either directly by Erpi or through some other medium, it was said.

(In Hollywood, the Erpi decision created a marked stir. It was accepted as meaning that Erpi money no longer would be available for production financing).

Stevenson declared that while Erpi has no definite plans as to the future utilization of the Coast property, taken over in 1933, the company would be glad to enter into discussions looking to its disposition.

In a statement which spoke of Erpi's belief that its customers and Hollywood generally were entitled to an explanation, the company pointed out its "primary purpose in taking over the studio was to protect the considerable indebtedness due from the previous owners of the property."

"Since then," the statement continued, "Erpi's desire and intent has been to terminate operation at the earliest moment consistent with protection of its investment." it was added that this intention has been indicated many times and that numerous efforts have been made to dispose of the property in the past without success.

"Successful operation of the studio during the past several years, however, has sufficiently reduced Erpi's remaining investment in the property to justify the belief that it can now be disposed of at a figure which would substantially clear the company's remaining investment," the statement continued.

Under such circumstances, it was added Erpi "does not feel justified in longer delaying termination and operation of the plant."

Producers using space at the studios included Alexander Korda, Edward Small, Boris Morros, and Richard A. Rowland.

FDR Selects Biddle As Attorney General

Washington Bur., THE FILM DAILY

Washington — Forecast by THE FILM DAILY weeks ago, President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Solicitor General Francis Biddle to be Attorney General, succeeding Robert H. Jackson, now a Supreme Court associate justice.

See Threat in Lower Tax Exemptions

estimates made that this would add up to $350,000,000 to Federal revenues.

For married persons now in low tax brackets, the lowered exemptions would mean an additional tax of $49.50.

From the theater operators' viewpoint, the difficulty is this: Most of the increase would come from persons already paying income taxes, and it is reasonable to suppose that they would be required to reduce their expenditures for entertainment. Moreover, it is the so-called "white collar" workers, on low salaries, who will be added to the tax-paying roster. They, in the past, have been a substantial factor in the film audience.

Meanwhile, there was cause for further exhibitor worry over the effect of the Federal tax program on grosses in the announcement by Senator George, Senate Finance Committee chairman, that it was possible the committee might later consider proposals for boosting the tax rates for lower bracket incomes.

The bill, as now framed, retains the present 4 per cent rate and adds new surtaxes starting at 5 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income. After the first $2,000 of taxable income the surtaxes jump to 11 per cent, and are graduated upward in subsequent brackets.

The Treasury, which also advocated the lowering of exemptions, has proposed that surtaxes start at 11 per cent.

The Senate committees expected to report the bill some time this week, sending it to the floor next week.

Expect Action This Week On Admission, Excise Taxes

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—The Senate finance committee moved closer yesterday to consideration of admission and excise taxes, with indication that these questions will be put out of the way before the end of the week, and may even be taken up today.

Indications are that admission taxes will be rewritten in line with industry recommendations, and that the tax on films also will be revised. Elimination of the nine-cent exemption on admissions was viewed in reliable committee sources as being virtually certain.

written decision, declared that "it is not sufficient, however, that a distributor has merely offered some run to an exhibitor; it must be a run upon terms and conditions fixed by the distributor which are not calculated to defeat the purpose of this Section (VI). The requirement that the terms must be such as 'are not calculated to defeat the purpose of this Section' could not well be expressed in more general and comprehensive language. This clause is to be broadly construed for the purpose of ensuring good faith on the part of distributors in the exercise of their right to designate runs, and the terms and conditions offered by the distributor must be fair and reasonable.

"It is the duty of arbitrators to scrutinize carefully situations of this sort and to inquire thoroughly into all the facts bearing upon the question whether the offer of a run and the terms and conditions offered to an exhibitor are calculated to defeat the purpose of Section VI. Merely offering a run on obviously impossible terms would certainly indicate an intent to defeat the purpose of the Section."

Departure of Harry Buckley, vice-president of United Artists, for San Francisco last night on what was described as an important theater deal was regarded in trade circles as a final step in the acquisition of the United Artists Theater in the Coast city.

all users," it was learned yesterday that New York State officials are developing a rationing plan, anticipating that it will be effective about Oct. 1.

The scheme as outlined provides for issuance of monthly ration booklets with one coupon for each week entitling purchase of one unit of gasoline, the amount to be determined later. Owners of motor vehicles would have to apply to some branch of the Motor Vehicle Bureau, display their motor vehicle registration license and the plate number of the vehicle would be stamped upon the booklet and coupon ration books would be issued by registration license number only, thus making the motor vehicle and not the operator the theoretical recipient.

Mayor LaGuardia yesterday named Grover Whalen as New York City's gasoline co-ordinator and directed him to survey the situation and recommend a "sensible" conservation plan.

Claim 20th-Fox Used New "Aunt" Material in Pic

Claiming that 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. had appropriated original material from the play, "Charley's Aunt," which recently showed on Broadway, Carly Wharton and Martin Gabel, producers of the play brought suit yesterday in the New York Supreme Court for an injunction and damages. Plaintiffs assert they added a number of new dramatic situations, scenes and sequences to the classic version of the play, and in addition gave it a fresh treatment.

According to the complaint, the defendant after unsuccessfully seeking permission to use this material conformed the picture to the play without the necessary consent of the plaintiffs. Plaintiffs contend 20th-Fox obtained from Brandon Thomas Co., owner of all rights, the rights to a screen version of the original play only. Application for temporary injunction will be argued before Justice Ferdinand Pecora tomorrow.

Hal Roach Will Resume Production in December

Hal Roach has completed the first five of the "streamlined" features and will start on the next group of five during the first week in December. Roach returned to the Coast last night after several days in New York.

Roach said he was convinced that his program of shorter-length features would be the answer to exhibitors' needs. First of the streamliners to be released is "Tanks a Million," which is to be booked with "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" over the Loew circuit.

Running time on the pictures will vary with the requirements of the stories, but no footage will be kept in just to pad out a picture to 50 or 60 minutes or more.

UA Witness Heard At Crescent Trial

evidence in the records against United Artists.

Principal witness was F. David Prince, Southern district manager for RKO-Radio, Atlanta, formerly branch manager and later district manager in the same territory for United Artists.

Asked the same question put to every other distributor's representative placed on the stand, Prince declared that he knew of no agreement, expressed or implied with any exhibitor to keep any pictures away from any independents in any situation with which he had been connected. The objection of Robert L. Wright, D of J attorney, to this question was overruled by Judge Elmer D. Davies.

Questioned on Miller Deal

Prince was questioned at length about negotiations in May and June, 1938, with W. P. Miller, independent exhibitor operating the Palace Theater, Rogersville, Tenn. Miller wanted four pictures at $12.50 and was willing to take two others but objected to a rental of $22.50 each. He finally bought the block of six paying $17.50 and $20 respectively on the top pictures. However, he failed to play off two of the six. A ream of correspondence was sifted thoroughly to show that the deal was made in a perfectly legal manner.

Questioned about the other United Artists situation at Athens, Ala., Prince testified that Max Buchanan, an independent exhibitor, attempted to contract for UA product for 1937-38 even before he had been able to lease a theater. Later Buchanan presented a lease and proposed a deal. Prince stated that at the exhibitor's request he submitted an approximate list of film rental prices. Buchanan, according to the witness, then stated that these prices were entirely too high and submitted to P. N. Lazarus, United Artists, New York, and immediately rejected. Prince admitted that at this time United Artists was negotiating with Louis Rosenbaum, head of Muscle Shoals, Inc., for a contract covering Athens and four other towns for this season's products, adding, however, that Rosenbaum's circuit was then and had for some time been a consistent customer of United Artists, playing out all contracts, and paying all bills.

$1,385,541 in Theater Improvements

Completing his testimony on Monday, K. C. Stengel, official of Crescent, Rockwood, and other circuits, revealed that during the period between June 30, 1935 and June 30, 1941, Crescent Amusement Co. expended $1,385,451 in equipping, constructing and remodeling theaters in towns in which it operates outside of Nashville.

Frank W. Salley, Atlanta, Ga., RKO film salesman out of the Atlanta exchange, following Stengel, was questioned in detail about this distributor's dealings with W. F. Roth at Gallatin, Tenn., bringing out the fact that plenty of good feature pictures were available to him and that nothing was done to keep them from him.

It is believed that Judge Davies may attempt to get the hearing completed even if a Saturday session is necessary. He would then have until Tuesday, Sept. 2 in which to formulate his decision. He has said that his decision would be ready within 24 hours after the close of arguments.

M-G-M announced between 44 and 52 and delivered 48, the windup feature being "When Ladies Meet," release date of which is Friday.

RKO announced 53 and delivered 47, the last of the group being Goldwyn's "The Little Foxes," an added feature to the original lineup. Picture is being released nationally today.

platform on my return from the Coast. What I did state was that I would be very glad to see exhibitors generally return to single features—one expression of a wish I have always harbored.

"As you know, Loew's, Inc., did not initiate the practice of double features, but to protect its business followed the lead of other theaters. I still cherish the hope that the day may come when the various exhibitors of this country will see the wisdom of a single feature policy, but you will readily understand that Loew's, Inc., could not participate in any arrangement with the operators of other theaters to accomplish this purpose."

Showmen Exploiting "B" Pix, Says Richey

much tried-and-true formulae that worked in the past and, naturally, as there is really nothing new under the sun, giving them a new twist and finding that they still work."

In stressing his point, Richey quoted a manager of a large circuit who said that it didn't take much of a showman to put over a "Boom Town" or a "Sergeant York," but the "test of the value of a theater manager lies in his ability to put over pictures below this bracket—not necessarily the 'C's'—but particularly the 'B's' that have excellent value and need only selling to make them successful." This, Richey said, exhibitors are beginning to do.

In pointing out M-G-M's drive to capture the pubic's good will, Richey said that all but two of the company's managers belong to civic clubs and take active interest in their activities. More than 1,000 of the M-G-M personnel are identified with 600 civic, national and fraternal organizations, Richey said, adding that each of the company members is aware of the necessity of speaking "well of our business."

Richey said that the industry had a defense job of its own to do. He referred to the defense of the industry from those on the outside "who seem to utilize every excuse to dig our business." There is something sinister in the realization, Richey said, that now the business is to be investigated because of its patriotism—the fact that "the motion picture business hates Hitler, stands for national defense and has co-operated with the Government in carrying the message to the American people of defense activities is now the subject of investigation in Congress."

The West Virginia group last night ended a two-day conference of general business problems and conditions.

Attendance at the convention was 95.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: president, Sol Hyman; vice-presidents, J. C. Shanklin and five others; secretary and Treasurer, W. H. Holt.

Shanklin was also elected to a directorship in the national convention representing the West Virginia organization.

A resolution was passed commending William F. Rodgers, Loew's general sales manager, for the splendid work he has done for the motion picture industry and naming him one of the industry's outstanding leaders.

Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA prexy, addressed the meeting, reporting on the national convention and discussing the consent decree. He said that while many may not like it, they should go along and make the best of it.

Claude Lee of the Paramount home office was among the guests. The convention closed last night with a banquet and dance.

"Unfinished Business" with Irene Dunne, Robert Montgomery, Preston Foster

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

Universal 95½ Mins.

SOPHISTICATED STORY WITH UNUSUALLY WIDE AUDIENCE APPEAL SHOULD CLICK IN ALL LOCALITIES.

"Unfinished Business," Gregory La Cava's first picture since "The Primrose Path," is another great production to the credit of this master craftsman. Mr. La Cava's expert direction is evident in the entire production—and it can be truly said that Irene Dunne never performs better than when under his guidance.

The screenplay, by Eugene Thackery, besides offering something solid in plot material, intermingles some socko laugh lines with good, human, dramatic situations—accenting the sort of situation that happens to all of us at times.

Robert Montgomery, with the successes he has been making during the past year, is difficult to comment on, so let's be repetitious and say he is excellent in this. Preston Foster and Eugene Pallette, in roles entirely different from what they usually play, do such a grand job that their stars should rise considerably for some time, from their work here.

Irene Dunne, a small town singer, who has mothered her younger sister from childhood, realizes her life-long ambition when she takes a train for New York the day after her sister's wedding. On the train she meets the first "fast worker" she has ever met in her life, (Preston Foster) and after a two-hour courtship falls madly in love with him.

Upon her arrival in New York she realizes she was just a toy as far as Foster was concerned—so after a hasty elopement she marries his younger brother (Robert Montgomery) while they are both tight.

Montgomery falls in love with her, but she can't forget his brother and when she is discovered kissing him at thir first reception for their friends, they separate.

After a year, during which Montgomery joins the army to forget, they find each other and after a bit of unfinished business is wound up they get together again with a sound little reason why they should stay together.

As is his custom La Cava delves a little deeper into the lives of his characters than most movie-makers and he uncovers many little things which are responsible for his pictures having a wider audience appeal than most sophisticated films of this type. "Unfinished Business" is no exception. It will be liked by young and old, and will prove a profitable booking in all localities.

Joe Valentine's camera work is particularly realistic although the sets by Universal's Jack Otterson, because they are so beautifully, believably executed are probably one of the main reasons for the standout backgrounds.

Nazi Drive Against U. S. Pix Intensified In Unoccupied France, Says J. H. Westreich

Nazi drive against American films in the Unoccupied zone of France is becoming more intensified, according to J. H. Westreich, formerly assistant to Robert Schless of Warner Bros. in Europe. Westreich, who served with the French Army and was demobilized in February, said theaters were forced to tear down photos of American stars. He stated there was a general apathy by the population toward German films.

Regular full length shows will be provided by each unit which is manned by professional operators and sound technicians. Center of each bus is so constructed that it may be elevated to present a screen easily viewed by an outdoor audience of several thousand soldiers.

Mobile theaters will furnish relief to soldiers on maneuvers who are usually too far from a theater or when they get to a town house it is far too small with only small percentage of troops afforded opportunity to attend.

Figures furnish a barometer, too, of the large sales effected by manufacturers and dealers in film equipment from the first of the current year to Aug. 1. Such sales have kept up well, it has been noted, with the 413 projects augmenting orders calling for theater supplies ordered where no new building or alteration was involved.

The seven-months statistics for this year, the Ebersons point out, are not very much at variance with the corresponding span of 1940. In that year's first seven months there were 467 projects recorded East of the Rockies, entailing an expenditure of $12,845,000, approximately.

Sosna Hearing on Sept. 4; Memphis Files vs. Metro

Nazi-Fascist Clash Near, De Whol-Pathe Prediction

First issue of Pathe News to include predictions by Louis de Wohl, noted astro-philosopher, will be released today. De Wohl, who has been given wide newspaper attention because of his accurate forecasts, made the newsreel clip last week and will make others for Pathe News. He recently arrived here from England.

In today's release, de Wohl contends that Hitler is mentally ill and projects his illness on others, predicting that within two weeks several of Hitler's close collaborators will have fallen into disgrace because Hitler suspects them to be insane.

In a second prediction, de Wohl contends that the relations between Germany and Italy will rapidly deteriorate and that Italy will become more and more of a liability to the Germans. De Wohl in Pathe News predicts that the first clash between German and Italian troops is due before the middle of September and will happen almost exactly on the 24th degree, Eastern longitude.

versity system of Georgia, having been given to the Georgia School of Technology by the Atlanta Constitution in the early 1920's. The FCC had demanded the school take an active voice in the operation of the station. Under the new setup, L & J will be operating for the school.

The agreement, Governor Talmadge said in signing the contract, would become effective immediately the FCC approves the transfer of the 5,000-watt station.

The FCC has requested a new contract with the Southern Broadcasting Corp., Clarence Calhoun, president, be negotiated to adhere to a new regulation requiring radio station owners to maintain complete control of operations. The Georgia Governor negotiated an entirely new contract giving the station to Lucas & Jenkins, both of whom are on his staff. That is Arthur Lucas, who owns some stations in South Georgia himself, and William K. Jenkins.

Calhoun, who has a contract with the Board of Regents until 1950, announced he would file suit to force the Regents to fulfill their obligations in the contract with him.

Editing Crew at Army Film Lab on 2 Shifts

Fort Monmouth, N. J.—Because of the overload of cutting work to be done on the training films at the Signal Corps Film Lab here, the editing department does a speed-up starting this week with two crews working in two shifts. First Lieut. William H. Rivers heads the Editorial Department and has split his personnel for a 7 A.M. to 3 P.M. shift, and a 3 P.M. to 10 P.M. shift.

Due to the rigid Army routine, regarrisoning of the men was required in the 20th Signal Service Company, headquarters of the cinematic soldiers. All cutters have taken over the top floor of the first barrack, where the usual reveille and other calls will not prevail.

This new system will gear the Film Lab to a greater production than heretofore.

Sergt. Gil Scott, one-time assistant to Darryl Zanuck at 20th Century-Fox, has stepped into a familiar executive groove at the Army's Training Film Lab for 16 days while Master Sergeant Tom Paolozzi takes an equipment-convoying trip to San Francisco. Scott is set to move into similar service in the new production unit set-up under Maj. Robert R. Presnell.

"War Propaganda" Com. Still Awaiting Acceptances

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington — The sub-committee investigating war propaganda in motion pictures said yesterday that but a single acceptance has been received from the movie executives who have been invited to appear, and warned that unless the acceptances are forthcoming on the basis of the "invitation," that subpoenas will be issued.

Identity of the single person to accept it is still being withheld.

Scores Point for UA At Crescent Trial

made another deal similar to the "61 situation blanket contract" made with Crescent Amusement Co. for 1938-39. Yesterday, Raftery offered an exhibit showing 300 such deals made by United Artists in the Atlanta district alone since 1933.

Wright attempted to prevent admission of this exhibit after challenging Raftery to produce such evidence. He had contended that the United Artists-Crescent "61 situation" deal was illegal because it involved subsidiaries not entirely owned by Crescent. It appeared convincingly that Wright lost this argument when Judge Elmer D. Davies admitted the exhibit after the statement by Raftery that the exhibit included numerous deals made with corporations with subsidiaries and that the distributor would not know if the subsidiaries were wholly owned by the corporations.

Neil Agnew on Stand

Neil F. Agnew, New York City, vice-president of Paramount Pictures Corp., was added to the list of top-flight distributor officials to testify in the Crescent hearing. On the stand yesterday Agnew, as has each of the others, emphatically denied that Paramount Pictures Corp. has had any arrangement or understanding with Crescent Amusement Co. or any of its affiliates to suppress competition among local exhibitors. He declared that his firm considers it to its advantage to have local exhibitor competition of a substantial sort.

Stating that there were "certain exceptional circumstances" in the making of Paramount's five-year franchise with Crescent in 1937, Agnew declared that it is not now Paramount's policy to make new franchises for longer than one year. However, he upheld the longer Crescent franchise as "assuring the distributor company a steady, full revenue from situations where no steady revenue had been received in the past."

David Prince Recalled

David Prince, Atlanta, RKO Radio's Southern district manager, formerly United Artists branch and district manager for the same area, on the stand most of Tuesday, was called back yesterday and questioned further about United Artists deals in 1938 and 1939 with Crescent and affiliates. Numerous questions were asked about film rentals involved in an application made by Max Buchanan, Athens, Ala., as compared with film rentals paid by Louis Rosenbaum in four situations in the same terri-

UA Multiple Pix Deals

W. M. Richardson, Universal's branch manager at Atlanta, who held the same position there for United Artists for seven months in 1936, testified to film negotiations in that year for United Artists product with Robert Hill, head of Hill circuit, Rogersville, and later with W. P. Miller, Cumberland Amusement Company, Rogersville, for 1936-37. He testified that the Hill Circuit deal, for 30 feature pictures and shorts in each of the towns of the circuit, involved $11,000. A deal for 27 pictures sold to Miller for 1936-37 amounted to $485 for Rogersville alone. This testimony was introduced to show the availability of United Artists product to both independent exhibitors and for circuits other than Crescent or affiliates.

It became evident yesterday that the rest of the week will probably be required to complete the case for the defense. This will apparently mean use of part or all of the first week in September to complete the trial.

Heavy Buying of Amusement Stocks "Within the Industry" Reported by Wall St. Journal

Heavy buying of amusement shares "within the industry" is reported by the Wall St. Journal, which lists Paramount, Warner Bros. and Loew's favored by the investors. Financial paper yesterday said:

"It was reported one Hollywood star had made a substantial purchase of Paramount common around recent tops, and was in the market for more stock which is understood to be bought for income purposes over the long pull, rather than for market profit possibilities."

"Parachute Battalion," "Citizen Kane," "All That Money Can Buy," "Father Takes A Wife" and "Lady Scarface." Contract includes 267 theaters from San Diego to Seattle.

This is said to be the first contract closed by FWC under the terms of the consent decree. It was signed by Spyros Skouras, Charles P. Skouras, and Ned E. Depinet. Attending the negotiations were Andy Smith, RKO sales manager; Cresson Smith, Western Division manager; Eddie Zabel, Larry Kent and Al Fink representing FWC in Seattle and Arch Bowles representing FWC's San Francisco area.

Other deals are expected to be closed shortly in Fox situations in Denver, Kansas City and Milwaukee.

Despite reports to the contrary, negotiations between Fox West Coast and Universal on new product have not broken down and a deal is expected to be closed shortly after the arrival of Spyros Skouras in New York, it was reported yesterday.

Pathe Film Six Months' Net Shows Slight Dip

Pathe Film Corp. reported a net profit of $50,166 for the six months ending June 30, compared with $53,722 last year. DuPont Film Manufacturing Corp., of whose common stock Pathe owns 35 per cent, had a net profit of $822,818 for the six months this year against $909,210 last year.

Its net profit before the Federal income and excess profits taxes was $1,308,718 for six months this year, against $1,154,760 last year.

Portion of these earnings which accrued to Pathe's 35 per cent common stock interest was $287,986 against $318,223. Of these earnings $217,986 was undistributed in 1941 and $248,223 in 1940, which undistributed amounts are not reflected in the income accounts of Pathe.

ed yesterday. Exhibitor units throughout the country will be asked to co-operate in the action. George P. Aarons, UMPTO attorney, has been instructed to file the suits individually.

Twentieth Century-Fox is being charged with breach of contract for not delivering "Sun Valley Serenade," "Belle Starr" and "How Green is My Valley" on the 1940-41 contracts. Similar action is planned against RKO for non-delivery of "Citizen Kane" on the 1940-41 program, and another against Paramount in connection with "Nothing But the Truth" which UMPTO charges was resold.

Pictures involved are in current and forthcoming blocks of the companies. UMPTO asserted ysterday that all exhibitors in this territory, regardless of affiliations, will be circularized with the suggestion that they make no deals on the mentioned pictures at this time under the guise of being 1941-42 releases.

Office of the chairman of the board of UMPTO was declared vacant at a luncheon meeting yesterday when President Lewen Pizor was delegated to assume the duties until the annual elections in January.

"Aloma of the South Seas" with Dorothy Lamour, Jon Hall,

Lynne Overman
(HOLLYWWOD PREVIEW)

Paramount 77 Mins.

LAMOUR AND HALL IN TECHNICOLOR SOUTH SEAS ROMANCE SHOULD PLEASE MOST AUDIENCES.

For those audiences that like Dorothy Lamour in these sarong operas—and obviously there are many of them—this latest epic of the South Seas should be great stuff. While the story is simple, screened without attempt to make it a tale with a moral or message, it affords a pleasant relief from the dramas of the South Seas which have had as their premise the suffering of the people of that part of the world.

The Technicolor photography is dazzling—this is an ideal location for a color crew—and the smooth performances of the leading actors, Miss Lamour and Jon Hall, leave little to be desired.

Director Alfred Santell has given a good account of himself. His smooth, easy style is responsible for making the simplicity of the tale one of its assets. This is the first picture Producer Monta Bell has done for Paramount and it is a definite credit to him.

Jon Hall, son of an Island King, is taken away from his home as a small boy to study the white man's ways in America. Before he goes he is betrothed to a little girl (Dorothy Lamour) and he is to come back to marry her when they both grow up.

Fifteen years later, a grown man, Hall comes home with his foster father, Lynne Overman ,and there begins a romance which is very nearly blasted when his cousin, Phillip Reed, attempts to capture the island and the girl for himself.

Just as he is about to succeed a still volcano which has been the god of fire to the island folk, erupts and destroys the villain and most of the island. The lovers and their friends, however, escape.

This film is just as pretentious as the former Lamour Technicolor pictures, but it lacks the punch of its predecessors. However, it is good entertainment and will please most audiences.

"When Ladies Meet" with Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor,

Greer Garson, Herbert Marshall

M-G-M 108 Mins.

HANDSOME PRODUCTION WITH EXCELLENT CAST HAMPERED BY TOO MUCH TALK.

Rachel Crothers drawing room comedy drama about a prominent woman author who falls in love with a married man may have seemed to have been a witty dissertation on the subject when produced on Broadway in 1932 but in its present screen form few of those virtues are apparent.

Producton from a physical standpoint is a handsome one. The sets are ultra in smartness. Costumes worn by Joan Crawford are both beautiful and fashionable.

Film, however, is one of the talkiest to hit the screen in some time. Screenplay prepared by S. K. Lauren and Anita Loos is marked by a continual flow of dialogue which, however, generally lacks sparkle. Director Robert Z. Leonard who produced with Orville O. Dull apparently could only keep in step with the pedestrian qualities of the script.

The cast is a good one with all principals contributing capable performance. In a supporting role, Spring Byington supplies a number of the brighter moments aided no little by Rafael Storm.

Miss Crawford portrays the role of the author who is supposed to be an expert on love and then proceeds to foolishly fall in love with her publisher, Herbert Marshall. Boy friend Robert Taylor does not give up so easily. He accidentally meets the publisher's wife, Greer Garson, at a dinner party and becomes friends with her. Taylor knows Miss Crawford and Marshall are guests at Miss Byington's home in the country for the week-end. So he tricks Marshall in coming into the city, drops in on Miss Byington with Miss Garson. Identity of Miss Garson is concealed until Marshall interrupts a deep conversation between the two women. Comes the denouement and the reconciliation between the two couples.

Worthy of note are the attractive hair styles created for Miss Crawford by Sydney Gularoff. Edwin B. Willis deserves mention for his set designs.

CAST: Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Greer Garson, Herbert Marshall, Spring Byington, Rafael Storm, Mona Barrie.

CREDITS: Producers, Robert Z. Leonard and Orville O. Dull; Director, Robert Z. Leonard; Screenplay, S. K. Lauren and Anita Loos; Original, Rachel Crothers; Cameraman, Robert Planck; Musical Score, Bronislau Kaper; Art Director, Cedric Gibbons; Film Editor, Robert J. Kern.

"Under Fiesta Stars"

with Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Carol Hughes

Republic 64 Mins.

STANDARD GENE AUTRY WESTERN; WILL PROVE PLEASING TO HIS FOLLOWERS.

Gene Autry's latest is a satisfactory film. While cowboy purists may claim there is too much emphasis on Autry's singing and not enough on shooting and riding, Director Frank McDonald makes sure audiences get a liberal quantity of both.

Duo of Autry and Smiley Burnette has new addition slanted for laughs. Burnette gets a kid brother, Joseph Strauch, Jr., who is a portly miniature of the comic. The kid apes Burnette with the pair adding to the comedy.

Autry is good for five songs which he delivers in his competent manner. Burnette and the youngster team up to do a number called "Keep It in the Family."

In this one, Autry is left ranch and mine by benefactor. He has to share estate with the niece, Carol Hughes. Neighboring rancheros share mine with Autry. But Miss Hughes, anxious for money, attempts to sell her share.

She falls into the hands of a pair of unscrupulous lawyers. They attempt to drive Autry and the miners away by employing a gang to shoot up the place. The girl in meantime realizes she'd rather stick it out with Autry. After a fierce gunfight, the sheriff, due to efforts of the youngster, arrives in time and the lawyers and gang are rounded up.

among others, have been kept off this country's screens because of their admitted anti-Nazi and anti-Fascist implications in keeping with the Government's policy of attempting to steer a middle course diplomatically.

Importation of the pictures and their scheduled release by American distributors was the signal for totalitarian pressure to prevent circulation, with both the German and Italian embassies making representations.

Only recently, the British film, "A Voice in the Night," was banned in Argentina because it might endanger the country's friendly relations with "other countries."

Lifting of the ban on "The Great Dictator," "Pastor Hall" and "Nazi Spy" would not only represent a distinct victory for American distribs. but a diplomatic defeat of the first magnitude for the Axis powers here and throughout Latin America.

The stay is sought until a decision is made in Blumenthal's action against Paramount now pending in the English courts. PLAIN TALK

. . . about equipment

By GEORGE H. MORRIS
Equipment Editor, THE FILM DAILY

A CAREFUL look around the exhibition field discloses that there is a smart section of theatermen who have been doing some careful looking around of their own. They obviously have vision. And they're using it.

What they have perceived is the rather clear evidence that, because of the current national emergency, it is wise to buy theater equipment now, and thus anticipate the needs of their houses.

— o —

WITHIN the realms of possibility, if not probability, the pressure of the preparedness program and all-out aid to the beleagured democracies on which the Government and the people of the U. S. are vigorously embarked is likely to increase as defense and lease-lend measures are given the right-of-way along the industrial front in ever increasing degree.

To date, the equipment field has been far steadier than some quarters have contended it would, and this in the face of the fact that the manufacturing firms, strong auxiliary channels to the defense setup by virtue of their skill in engineering as well as their mechanical facilities, are patently in the front line of Government plans.

THAT what has been true will continue to be true is a perilous philosophy for theatermen to embrace, for at the single shake of a lamb's tail, if the international situation becomes bleaker as far as all of us are concerned, the sources of supply which are here today may be gone tomorrow. That such MIGHT happen is sufficient justification for the far-sighted circuit and exhibitor to put in stock to meet contingencies. To advocate such a step is not to be an alarmist. It is to apply common sense.

. . . about equipment

If no contingency outcrops, no loss is faced. The sinews of theater operation will not deteriorate, and can be employed as needed.

—o—

THERE are some who may read into the advocacy of preparedness by the nation's theater interests an encouragement to hoard. That is poppycock. For a business enterprise, whether it be one or a dozen theaters, to establish a reasonable operating reserve, as far as supplies are concerned, is no more hoarding than to put a reasonable sum of money in the safe keeping of a bank, in order that normal operation during an assumed future span can be assured, can be tagged as hoarding. The miser perversely keeps going to save. The businessman sensibly saves to keep going.

BY setting up a reserve of equipment, the theaterman stands to save . . . his stand. It may well be that he also stands to save the difference twixt current and future prices of equipment. There is an immutable economic law that as the supply decreases the demand increases, with consequent higher prices.

To those who may still construe our advocacy of "buy now and anticipate the needs of your theater," we call to the witness-stand the Good Book to testify to the morality of preparing for a rainy day:

"Laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come."

their facilities in such a way that all normal demands by filmland itself can be adequately met.

The only inconvenience customers are now facing, as far as deliveries are concerned, is in point of time, and trade sources assert that there is no foundation for the belief in some quarters that orders are reaching a "when and if" status on the manufacturing end.

Checkup also reveals that the programs of both major and indie circuits, aimed at keeping projection in their houses on an up-to-the-minute standard, are progressing smoothly, and that many orders have lately been received by supply sources from individual exhibitors seeking the same end.

Such circuits as Loew's, Warners, National Theaters, and Paramount and its affiliates, have been embarked for some time on projection improvement programs. These have been progressively carried out over a considerable period and are by no means steps initiated because any economic contingency loomed.

San Francisco's Fox Renews Renowned Carpet

San Francisco—Fox Theater here, $5,000,000 super deluxe house built by William Fox in the flush twenties, has just had to dig up another $750 for its sidewalk carpet. The red carpet, 55 by 22, is believed to be the only thing of its kind in the world. It has to be renewed every year or so, taking a terrific beating from rain and millions of muddy feet.

Fox West Coast, present operators of the 5,000-seater would, down in their hearts, like to ditch the infernal carpet—but fear maybe the Fox would lose "face."

Strand In Montreal Closed for Remodeling

Montreal—One of the oldest picture theaters in Montreal, which has been in operation almost 30 years, the Strand, located at the corner of St. Catherine West and Mansfield St., has closed to undergo a modernizing treatment and will reopen in about a month with a new front and new chairs.

Workmen are busy tearing out some of the old construction that is to be replaced as well as removing the old chairs. A new marquee, illuminated, will feature the renovated front of the theater. Seating capacity will be reduced somewhat under the new arrangement as the new seats will be larger than the old ones.

The Strand, now one of the United Amusement Co. chain, was one of the better known movie theaters in the city during the days of the old silent films. In later years it has survived in a district where the big movie theaters have centralized.

Eastman, British P. O. Launch "Airgraphs"

cost 30 cents for each half ounce, and average a month to five weeks in transit. Airgraphs cost only six cents, and take 10 days, or less to arrive at their destination.

Here's how the new service operates:

A soldier writes his letter on a special sheet measuring 8½ inches by 11 inches and prints his address in block letters on a panel at the foot. The completed sheet is then photographed on a considerably reduced scale,— one-half an inch by five-eighths of an inch,—with a Recordak. The film is then dispatched by airplane and upon arrival in England, a four-inch by five-inch enlargement is made. It is then placed in a paneled envelope leaving only the address exposed.

Seventeen hundred letters can be photographed on a single 100-ft. roll of micro-film, at the rate of 40 to 50 a minute. The film weighs only 1/100 as much as the 1,700 letters. The miniature film images are enlarged on a roll of continuous photographic paper and processed at the rate of 1,200 letters an hour. An automatic chopper, actuated by a photoelectric cell, separates the letters.

The first 50,000 Airgraph letters weighed only 13 pounds, whereas a similar number of ordinary letters would have weighed over 1,600 pounds.

Two Missouri Chains Seen in Bldg. War

New Stadium Theater Co., which incorporated several weeks ago by G. Carey of Paris, Ark.; E. R. Gillett of Memphis, Tenn., and Scott Carey of Deering, Mo., is the awarding of the general contract for the construction of a new 1,200-seat modern motion picture theater to be erected in the 200 block on Ward Ave.

The awarding of the contract was announced by G. W. Lincoln, manager of the Rodgers theaters here, which now include the 650-seat Rodgers and the 300-seat Bijou.

The contract for the new theater went to Oscar Stephens of Cairo, Ill., where the headquarters of the Rodgers Circuit is located. The new building of brick and concrete construction will be one-story, with part basement, and measures 49 x 200 ft. It will cost about $50,000.

In the meantime the New Stadium Theater Co. plan to award contracts soon for the construction of a $40,000 motion picture theater building in the 1400 block on Ward Ave. It will be of brick and concrete block construction, with steel trusses, concrete floors and built-up roof. It probably will have about 1,000 seats.

It is probable that when the new Rodgers house is completed either the Rodgers or the Bijou will be closed permanently.

Theater Fires

Davenport, Wash. — Fire which started in the boiler room of the local Davenport Theater on Aug. 22 was the contributing cause of an explosion which totally destroyed the house and caused severe damage to several adjoining business properties. No one was injured in the mishap. The theater was covered by insurance.

Sheridan, Ark.—Projection booth of the local Rex Theater was damaged by fire when 6,000 feet of film burned during a performance. Thomas Burton, manager, suffered painful burns on both hands while fighting the flames. The 300 patrons present exited in an orderly manner without incident.

Greensboro, Fla.—Damage to the Greensboro Theater by fire has been placed at $3,000. House had been in operation only three weeks. Previous to that it had been used in a special program to advertise community stores. Fire started in the projection room.

Fire did slight damage backstage at the Orpheum Theater, 578 Fulton St., Brooklyn, this week. Blaze was discovered by the watchman, and was extinguished by firemen. A short circuit is believed to have been the cause.

Defense Priorities May Nix New Theaters

equipment; that the industry will have to curtail on uses of, or find substitutes for, certain other materials which are needed in the defense program; and that there will be little or no material available for the construction of theaters.

The Office of Production Management and its Priorities Division have taken no definite steps with regard to the industry as yet, but some attention has been given to the situation, and it is likely that action will be taken before any acute shortage develops.

Defense orders for any material must be accepted, even if it means dislocating civilian orders already on the books, under the terms of a broad new priority regulation going into effect immediately.

This new regulation—priorities regulation number one—extends to all materials or equipment the same kind of preferential treatment for defense orders already provided for pig iron, copper, steel and chromium.

However, while OPM will probably deal as leniently as it can with the industry, nothing can be certain, particularly in view of the rapidly mounting requirements for defense, and the uncertainties of the international situation. OPM is consequently having to revise its predictions as to defense requirements, and its priority ratings, and the motion picture industry will likely have to feel the pinch along with all the rest. Extent of the pinch depends, highly authoritative channels here point out, on the situation as it develops from day to day.

Loew's Rochester Buys Projection Equipment

14 Submit Proposals For U. S. Film Work

into consideration a number of intangible factors.

The bidders in addition to the Institute, included: Motion Pictures Productions, Inc., Cleveland; Pathe Laboratories, Inc., New York City; Commerce Picture Corp., New Orleans; Producers Laboratories, Inc., New York City; Modern Talking Picture Service, Inc., New York City; General Film Laboratories, Inc., Detroit; Rapid Film Technique, Inc., New York City; De Luxe Laboratories, Inc., New York City; Consolidated Film Industries, New York City; Castle Films, New York City; and Kin-O-Lux, New York City.

The Institute, which is composed of Jam Handy, Lucks Norling, Ray-Bell, and Caravel, in a letter accompanying the bids, stressed its desire to render public service, its facilities, and its lack of desire to make a profit out of the work.

"The Institute was incorporated and is financed by a group of producers and distributors with reputations for quality work and financial responsibility established over a period of many years," the letter stated.

"The object of the Institute is to help to maintain high standards in the industry. Within the coming year it is expected other leading non-theatrical motion picture producers throughout the country will be members."

"Operating on a non-profit basis," the Institute continued, "we will apply all revenues to the furtherance of these principles. The extent of our services in publicity and distribution will be unlimited by profit motives and expanded as made possible by the volume of print purchases developed."

Representative of competing companies at the bid opening commented on the coincidence of the formation of the Institute just at the time when this considerable volume of business came along, and wondered how, if the Institute is truly a non-profit organization, others "which are trying to make a living" will be able to compete.

Officials of the Office of Education were unable to predict the volume of business involved, but indicated belief it would be much greater than appeared at first glance. They said it is expected that several thousand school systems alone will buy copies of the films, and that a number of business organizations also will make purchases of prints for their own showings.

Well, Doggone, Them Southeasterners Is Plannin' Jamboree to Let Their Hair Down

Nat Williams, publicity chairman of the Southeastern Theater Owners Association convention in Jacksonville, goes "rustic" on us in plugging the big event which takes place Sept. 7-9. In a bulletin addressed to "Fellow Theatrical Share-Croppers," Williams declares that "as usual, it's an all-industry affair, open to anyone making a living out of this business, honestly (that's thinning out the customers) or otherwise (but that opens it back up); providing they have the registration fee. Anyone from Darryl Zanuck to your popcorn girl (if she's a blonde) will be welcome."

Williams contends that by next year anything can happen and probably will, so suggests that everything be laid aside, "get together once more, let the back hair down and talk about one another."

Judge Davis' Third Trial "Too Costly," U. S. Decides

Philadelphia — There will be no third trial of J. Warren Davis, retired U. S. Circuit Judge, and Morgan S. Kaufman, Scranton attorney, on charges of conspiring with William Fox in a scheme to "sell justice," the Government disclosed here yesterday. In explanation, it was said that further prosecution would be too expensive; the two trials, which ended in jury disagreements, set back the D of J some $10,000, it was said.

Davis and Kaufman were indicted on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the U. S. The D of J presented testimony designed to show that Fox made unsecured loans to Davis during the time the Fox bankruptcy proceedings were before the Appellate Court. Kaufman was named as the "go-between."

Fox, who pleaded guilty to the same charges on which Davis and Kaufman were tried, is awaiting sentence.

Anti-Nazi League Denounces Pix Probe

Veterans here. Sheldon charged the true purpose was not to expose propaganda but to "strangle the agencies of democratic expression in this country and to distort those agencies away from the policy for which the vast majority of Americans have expressed their support."

The speaker declared that despite repeated requests by the Anti-Nazi League, Wheeler and his subcommittee headed by Clark, "have not yet requested the appearance of several companies which have been actively and openly engaged in circulating and exhibiting films which everybody acknowledges to be barefaced Nazi and Fascist propaganda."

Sheldon Instances Ufa

Ufa was pointed out by Prof. Sheldon as a significant example of the companies not called. He asserted the company was openly controlled by the German Government until control was driven underground and that it is now engaged in distributing propaganda films in this country and Latin-America.

"It is a known fact that Nazi films and radio propaganda have been permeating Latin-America, not only placing obstacles in the way of commercial relations between this country and the countries of Latin-America, but also building up a back-log of anti-Semitic, anti-American and pro-Hitler feeling to the South of us, which has from time to time flared up in actual revolution," asserted Prof. Sheldon.

"These dangers are what a really patriotic Senator deeply devoted to the cause of democracy would concern himself with, in investigating the field of the cinema and the radio."

Nazi-Minded "Invitations"

Referring to the list of 15 industry executives "invited" to appear before the Senate subcommittee which starts its inquiry next week, Prof. Sheldon commented, "it is interesting, incidentally, and a good illustration of Nazi minds, that all except one of those invited, bear a conspicuously Jewish name."

"The requests to appear," he continued, "were not issued to companies, as might have seemed natural, but rather to individuals, thus making it possible to emphasize the Jewish origin of the persons concerned."

Prof. Sheldon told the convention the Anti-Nazi League intends to be in Washington when the hearings take place and confront the committee with the charges he outlined yesterday afternoon.

May Ask to Clarify Section X of Decree

no award shall be made against a distributor defendant unless the arbitrator shall first find that a refusal of the distributor to license its features for exhibition in the complainant's theater on the run requested by the complainant continued during a period of not less than three successive months.

Exhibitors contend that it is not clear as to whether the three-month period referred to begins on Sept. 1 or at an earlier time if a request for a specific run was made. That is, if an exhibitor made the request on July 1, did the three-month period begin then or does another request have to be made after Sept. 1? That is a frequent question which even experts on the decree say that they cannot answer.

Complaints have been made on the belief that the entire Section X is written in language too legal for the average layman to understand. However, whether understandable or not, the section becomes effective on Monday.

Section III, dealing with tradeshows, already has been placed in operation, as has Section IV which defines the method of selling pictures in blocks-of-five.

It is believed in some trade circles that an increase in the number of demands for arbitration will be in evidence shortly after the decree is officially in force, inasmuch as new conditions for arbitration will be in effect.

SCG May Picket Disney in S. Amer.

State Sumner Welles and Francis Alstock of Council for National Defense:

"After strike lasting 62 days the Screen Cartoonists' Guild and the Disney organization accepted arbitration of their difference by the conciliation service of the Department of Labor. On Aug. 20 decision was handed down. Company to date refuses to abide by any part of the Government award. The award called for a wage increase, 1,000 hours back pay, vacation with pay, severance pay. The latter is due men who have been called up for Army service. Besides refusing to comply with the Government's award, the company is in violation of two Federal statutes—Wages and Hours and NLRB. The company owes each of its employes approximately four weeks' pay. Further, the company owes many employes salary adjustment wages. In all, the company owes employes on seven counts or approximately three months' salary each.

"Labor organizations in South America are being contacted and arrangements made to picket Disney's tour and his pictures. It is not our desire to embarrass the administration program in South America, but we must insist the company comply with all terms of the Government's award and make immediate adjustment of monies due employes.

"The State Department should also insist that Disney comply with the Government award and American standards of fair treatment of labor including all Federal statutes before permitting Disney to represent the United States as a good-will ambassador in South America."

Chamber of Commerce Finds It Impossible To Intervene in Film Arbitration Action

Who said there's nothing new under the sun?

Request of a Chamber of Commerce in a Western town to intervene in a local arbitration case has been politely denied by the AAA, which is reported to have advised that the rules of the arbitration code permit intervention only by industry interests which might be affected by proceedings instituted.

Case in question is understood to involve day-and-date availability. According to the C of C communication, it seems that its officers are consistent patrons of the house now enjoying the availability edge.

A F of L's Anti-Browne Movement Said Growing

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—There is a strong movement within the American Federation of Labor to drop George E. Browne, IATSE prexy, as vice-president and executive council member of the A F of L it was learned in authoritative sources here yesterday on the heels of a story in the N. Y. Evening Post.

If Browne is dropped it will not come in the form of an official ouster, but rather in failure to re-elect him. The convention is to be held in October, and it is reported the movement against his re-election is growing with leaps and bounds.

Officials at the A F of L would neither confirm nor deny the report, pointing out that it is up to the delegates to elect whom they please, and that they naturally are unable to forecast what the delegates would do. In spite of this non-committal attitude on the part of executive officials however, there was strong indication that all is not well with Browne's position within the Federation.

Suit Would Block Arbitration by 306

wage scale of operators employed by the Harris circuit.

According to the petition, the contract was made between Local 306 and nine theaters on March 23, 1938. On Aug. 13, 1941, the plaintiff alleges, a notice of arbitration was served upon the houses which called for the submission of the question of wages for a period from Sept. 1, 1940 to Aug. 31, 1942.

Suit attacks the legality of arbitration, claiming notice was issued too late; that the contract called for demands for increases only in the months of August of even numbered years; that the notice seeks retroactive increases allegedly illegal; and finally, four of the theaters included in the circuit are not being operated.

"The Forgotten Village"

Mayer-Burstyn 67 Mins.

DOCUMENTARY OF SIMPLE MEXICAN FOLK IS DONE BEAUTIFULLY AND SLANTED SOLID FOR SELECT AUDIENCES.

There are no professional actors in this full-length documentary. Just the simple folk of Mexican pueblo high in the mountains. As John Steinbeck describes the film: "This is the story of the boy Juan Diego and of his family and of the people who live in the long moment when the past slips reluctantly into the future."

Steinbeck wrote the story and the script. It is a tribute to his artistry that with such simple materials he has wrought a memorable tale. Under the direction of Herbert Kline and the camera work of Alexander Hackensmid, the film attains a rare eloquence. All of which is magnificently underlined by the perceptive music of Hanns Eisler.

No happier choice for the role of the narrator could have been made than Burgess Meredith. His resonant delivery is clear, unaffected and at times moving. Meredith's is the sole voice employed in describing the sequence of events.

Far from the civilized centers of Mexico is this pueblo of Santiago where resides the family of Juan Diego. The well is filled with typhoid germs and the children become sick. First Juan's brother, Paco, dies and then his sister becomes ill. The people rely on the Wise Women whose ancient and mystic ways are powerless.

Juan sets off for the big city where he enlists the aid of the rural medical division. When the doctor arrives, the Wise Woman, afraid of losing her business, arouses the people against the newcomer. The people hide their children. At night, Juan carries his sister to the doctor's car for a saving injection. His father then drives him from the house. But Juan is consoled by the doctor that the government provides schools where young men and women like himself can learn new things and return and save his people from the ways of darkness and ignorance.

Among the more vividly, graphic screen portraits is the controversial sequence dealing with birth. It certainly is not objectionable for adult audiences. Considerable detail is devoted to expressions of facial anguish on part of the mother with the remaining portions done with frank realism. In any case, sequence is not very important to the film.

A word for the Mexicans who lend themselves with disarming friendliness and charm to the camera. And Juan Diego, who has a winning native ease and assurance.

"The Blonde From Singapore" with Florence Rice, Leif Erickson, Gordon Jones, Don Beddoe

Columbia 67 Mins.

ACTION-PACKED ADVENTURE MELLER OKAY FOR ANY DUAL; DMYTRYK'S DIRECTION SWELL.

"The Blonde From Singapore" is one of those sure-fire adventure mellers that can hardly miss if the actors play their roles enthusiastically and the footage is not permitted to run too long. In this case both of those details are attended to.

Scripter George Bricker, working from a story by Houston Branch, has packed all the suspense elements into his yarn and has kept the dialogue just corny enough for the action fan trade. Edward Dmytryk's direction is perfect for the yarn. He holds the cast down on the eyebrow acting and gets plenty sock into the action sequences.

Leading man Leif Erickson looks better in this than in anything this reviewer has seen him in. This sort of thing appears to be his forte. His pal and foil, Gordon Jones, is excellent in a dumb comedy role. Together they are a "natural." Florence Rice, who hasn't been seen much lately, does a neat job of the wicked little gold-digger who plays innocent so she can snatch some gullible man's poke.

Deep-sea diving off the coast of the Malay peninsula so they can earn enough money to buy a plane to fly for the RAF, Erickson and Jones decide to quit, take what pearls they have, and pick up a bargain fighter-plane in Singapore. However, their partner decides they shall stay, but after trying to keep them with violence—and getting nowhere—he confesses that they have all been poaching in the oyster beds of a local-ruling Sultana.

Jones and Erickson snatch their share of the pearls and escape. They meet a stranded young lady on the road (Florence Rice), who says she is the orphan daughter of missionaries who until their death a short time before were stationed in the interior.

Thinking he is trapped by the police, Erickson gives Miss Rice his pearls to keep for him—and then discovers that she is a thief. The boys follow her to Singapore in the hope of retrieving their savings.

Everything happens from then on. They are thrown in jail, kidnaped, save the Sultana from taking Miss Rice into her home as a daughter-in-law, and eventually wind up in the RAF with Erickson married to Florence.

With no "names," "Singapore" is probably not a good bet for top-billing, but okay for lower half of a double bill anywhere.

"Badlands of Dakota" with Robert Stack, Ann Rutherford, Richard Dix

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

Universal 74 Mins.

STELLAR MARQUEE NAMES PLUS GOOD WESTERN ACTION MEANS AUDIENCE AND BOX OFFICE SATISFACTION.

Throwing "name" talent, western action, drama and comedy before the cameras against an 1874 background of wild Deadwood City days, Associate Producer George Waggner provides for sufficient entertainment value in his initial Universal picture to assure audiences solid entertainment, and good box office possibilities.

Placing Robert Stack against a western background as Marshal of gun-ridden Deadwood City, with the task of bringing to justice his brother (Brod Crawford), who goes beserk after Stack marries the girl (Ann Rutherford) who had been promised to Brod, the action, as provided in Gerald Geraghty's screenplay from Harold Shumate's original story, is zestful. There is continuous movement, with introductions of "Wild Bill" Hickok (Richard Dix), General Custer (Addison Richards), and the many quaint characters as portrayed by Frances Farmer as "Jane," and others by Hugh Herbert, Andy Devine, Lon Chaney, Jr., and Fuzzy Knight.

Photographic values as provided by Stanley Cortez added much to the picturization of the Shumate story, with Alfred E. Green responsible for its directorial unfoldment. Art direction of Jack Otterson, musical direction by H. J. Salter, additional comedy sequences and dialogue by Victor MacLeod, all fit well into the setting and mood of the George Waggner production.

Ray Taylor's direction of the outdoor sequences is worthy of special note.

"Reg'lar Fellers" with Billy Lee, Carl "Alfalfa" Switzer, Buddy Boles

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

PRC 65 Mins.

ENTERTAINING STORY BASED ON CARTOON STRIP SHOULD PLEASE THE FAMILY TRADE.

A fair programmer for any bill and a cinch bet for the youngster trade, "Reg'lar Fellers," taken from the comic strip character by Gene Byrnes, was given a nice production in its film bow by Producer-Director Arthur Dreifuss.

While it is an extremely low budgeter and probably was originally designed more to accent the cuteness of a crew of moppets, than to tell a serious tale, the picture—because of the clever screenplay by Arthur Hoerl, Arthur Dreifuss and William C. Kent, which is written right down to kid level in lines to read and in story values, gets rolling quickly and makes you forget it's all an audition.

The youngsters carry the entire burden here with just a few scenes requiring grown-ups, and even then the juves top the elders. If any one of the cast stands out it is little Billy Lee. An unusually precocious lad, he pleases in all branches of comedy and drama, and in the tag sequence sounds off with a song number which exhibits a rare set of pipes. Another of the boys, Billy Boles, who plays "Jimmie Dugan," should have a lot of young feminine hearts at his feet by the time the film has played its early dates.

Yes, Mr. Dreifuss and Producers Releasing Corporation's George Batcheller, have a fine property here, and, if it is their plan, should have a fast-selling series, because they have all the appeal and draw of the former "Our Gang" comedies—just as clever a group of performers—as clever a pilot—and as sound a basis for sequels as any of the money-making series films.

The yarn tells of how the "Reg'lar Fellers," through their knack of invention, capture a couple of crooks and clear the name of a friend and restore him to his family.

There is a lot of extra entertainment and the right kind of material for family trade here, too.

CREDITS: Executive producer, Joe Eudemiller; Associate producer, Ethel Meglin; Producer-director, Arthur Dreifuss; Based on the cartoon strip "Reg'lar Fellers" by Gene Byrnes, by special arrangement with Reg'lar Fellers of America, Benjamin Lindner, director; Original story by Arthur Hoerl; Screenplay, Arthur Hoerl, Arthur Dreifuss, William C. Defense Rests in Crescent Trust Suit fishing vacation beginning at once. Through today the hearing will have consumed approximately seven weeks, plaintiff taking four weeks and defense three. In an effort to put all the weight possible behind their rebuttal of Government charges of discrimination against certain independent exhibitors, Edward H. Raftery, counsel for United Artists, put on the stand Paul N. Lazarus of New York, manager of the contract division of United Artists, to affirm testimony already offered concerning deals at Rogersville, Tenn., and Athens, Ala. The testimony involved communications between Lazarus, David Prince, United Artists branch manager at Atlanta, and others concerning applications for contracts coming from W. P. Miller and Robert Hill, of Rogersville, and Max Buchanan, of Athens, Ala.

Lazarus' testimony confirmed contention of this defendant that rejection of any applications was for legitimate business reasons and not because of any "restraining" agreement.

Harry Gold on Stand

On the witness stand Wednesday afternoon was Harry L. Gold, New York, vice - president of United Artists, who denied the existence of any agreement or understanding between his firm and either of the defendant exhibitors in this suit. He admitted familiarity with the application of Max Buchanan for the 1938-39 product of United Artists and stated that it was rejected mainly because the price was too low but on cross-examination he frankly admitted that he would have rejected it because of the possibility of selling Muscle Shoals Theaters, Inc., for Athens and three other towns.

Also called to the stand Wednesday to discuss the same situations were Lynn Dunn, Atlanta, United Artists film salesman, Hugh Owen, Dallas, Texas, until recently Dallas branch manager for United Artists, T. L. Davis. Atlanta branch manager for United Artists, and R. J. Barnes, Atlanta, United Artists film salesman.

Stengel Recalled

Last witness offered for Crescent Amusement Co., was K. C. Stengel, Crescent and Rockwood official, called back to the stand to enable defense counsel William Waller to introduce and discuss certain exhibits concerning the profits of the Crescent and Stengel was also questioned by Rockwood corporations. A purported breakdown of Rockwood's net profit for 1939 showed only 55 per cent for operation of the theater, including leasing and rental of real estate. Popcorn and screen advertising was credited with 29 per cent and dividends from other corporations 16 per cent.

Exclusive of the dividends, 34.4 per cent of Rockwood's net profit came from popcorn and screen advertising. Defense counsel claim relevancy of the "popcorn" testimony on the fact introduction of income tax returns for defendant corporations and principals was allowed to be introduced by the Government.

Everyone of the defense attorneys express the firm conviction that the Government has completely failed to prove a single one of its charges against any one of the defendants.

Dutch 'Kane' Trailer

West Coast Bur., THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—It has been learned that "Citizen Kane" has a trailer being made in Dutch by Fred McGuire. This as far as known is rather a unique procedure. Trailer is to be shown in the Netherlands East Indies.

The Long Arm-y of Coincidence, Maybe?

In Times Square opposite the Rialto Theater where RKO Radio's "Parachute Battalion" opened Thursday there is a mammoth board with lettering "For Individual Preparedness Invest in U. S. Defense Bonds." The illustration is that of a parachute jumper. RKO Radio made "Parachute Battalion" with the co-operation of the government, and at Atlanta the entire 501st Parachute Battalion turned out to aid them in a ballyhoo. Maybe RKO is making its own breaks. Anyway, the army air thriller got off to a big start at the Rialto's box-office.

W. W. Smith's Terrapin Wins Okla. V. C. Derby

Oklahoma City — More than 600 members of the film fraternity turned out at Belle Isle Park here to attend the Variety Club of Oklahoma's first annual Turtle Derby and picnic. Exchanges, supply houses and circuit offices closed their doors at noon to allow their staffs to attend.

First prize of $525 in the Turtle Derby went to W. W. Smith, president, Park-Inn Theaters, Camden, N. J., whose terrapin, "Earl Sande" led the field in the final heat. About 850 turtles were run in the derby. Second prize of $275 went to Charles Edwin Lamka, Pampa, Tex., who entered a turtle named "Doll."

Other winners of the ten heats who each won a $25 cash prize were Kenneth Taylor, Clinton, Okla.; Sam Tannebaum, "Dewey" Gibbs, Columbia branch manager; James Burge, M-G-M exploiteer; Eugene McKenna; Walter O. Wortham, National Theater Supply; Horace Falls, Griffith Amusement Co.; and C. H. Schweinle, Jr., all of Oklahoma City.

An estimated $4,000 was raised for the club's charity fund, used to operate the Variety Club's Health Center.

Further Gas Cut Effective Monday

nounced yesterday by Ralph K. Davies, Acting Petroleum Co-ordinator. August reduction is 10 per cent.

The announcement came as Davies appeared in Washington before a Senate Commerce sub-committee investigating threatened gas and oil shortages. Davies, who said that the East Coast faces a deficit of 27,800,000 barrels of petroleum products during the last four months of 1941, warned that unless the present moves were successful, a rigid rationing plan was certain.

Although Davies expressed hope that the latter could be avoided, the general belief in informed quarters here yesterday was that September will see a rationing system of some sort in effect.

TO MY FELLOW EXHIBITORS

In the next few days you will be making final arrangements for U.S.O. Theatre Week. The Drive officially begins next Monday, Labor Day. However, those theatres which start their week on Thursday or Friday, etc. may start showing the U.S.O. trailer on their opening day this week.

While you are making these arrangements, let your mind slip back 24 years ago when YOU were in the service, or had relations and friends wearing the uniform of Uncle Sam. Just try to recall how you felt about having some wholesome recreation at the end of a hard day. Just try to remember how much you wanted some good, clean fun, away from barracks, hiking and maneuvers.

I am sure you will want to help the boys of '41 as you wanted to be helped in 1917. To do this - you will run the U.S.O. trailer at every performance. You will spot it away from the break of your show, when most of your patrons are seated and can be reached by the collection basket. You will collect in the audience because you get the most money that way. You will keep the house lights up until the collection basket reaches the last row.

For the honor of our industry which has so generously cooperated in helping other causes, for your own satisfaction as an American - together with the thousands of other exhibitors throughout the country who are uniting during Labor Day Week - let's make sure we will collect all the people want to give.

Up to date, we have the largest exhibitor enrollment in the annals of the industry. Now - let's make it the greatest collection in movie history. Let's do a man-size job for our boys in uniform.

Sincerely yours,

JOSEPH BERNHARD,
Chairman.

N. Y. Theaters Hit New Holiday High

New York theaters in general, and Broadway houses in particular, had their biggest holiday week-end in years, if not in history. Business far exceeded the Labor Day turnout last year when the World's Fair was an added attraction for the hundreds of thousands of visitors. Number of out-of-towners who spent money for amusements in Manhattan was said to be the greatest on record.

Washington—Stiff opposition which was expressed even in the Senate Finance Committee against that body's action in materially increasing admission tax rates, grew over the week-end as solons pondered the warning that the increases, instead of increasing revenue might indeed "kill the goose that laid the golden egg."

Over the week-end, both Senate and House members heard from the folks back home in no uncertain terms, it was learned. Theater operators in the Congressmen's bailiwicks by long distance telephone, by telegram and by special delivery air mail letters protested the Committee's 5% jump, stressed its crippling effect on exhibition and hence on the entire industry, and pointed out that, from the morale standpoint,

Army Sending Capt. Wing For Film Duty in Manila

Fort Monmouth, N. J.—Terminating his connection with the Training Film Production Lab here, Capt. Paul Wing will leave for Manila next month to take up photographic duty in the Pacific hot-spot. Capt. Wing has been heading a Coast Artillery shooting crew for the Army's movie outfit.

This will not be the first time Capt. Wing has seen overseas service. He headed a Field Artillery Battery in France in 1918 and also served in Panama before his discharge in 1922. Before the new Army call came to him in November last year, Wing was a familiar and well-liked figure on both the Mary Pickford and Paramount lots. He is the father of Pat and Toby Wing.

Warners Plan To Have Six in Work Every Day

Gradwell L. Sears, Warner Bros. general sales manager, returned to New York over the week-end from studio conferences. Production plans were set so that a minimum of six pictures will be before the cameras on every working day during the coming year.

New schedules call for the starting of 12 features within the next two months and screen play preparation of 12 additional for the following two months.

Stars, featured players and stock actors will be made available as needed for better assignments under the new system, and the necessity for doubling on current pictures avoided. Use of stage space, lighting equipment and general manpower also will be staggered, cutting down to a minimum layoffs between pictures.

Michigan Co-Operative Adds Seven More Houses

Detroit—Membership of Co-Operative Theaters of Michigan is being increased by seven to an all-time high of 107 theaters, according to General Manager Carl W. Buermele. New members include two houses still under construction in the suburban area—the Mel in Melvindale by Louis Schlussel, and the Berkeley in Berkeley by John Igna; two houses recently opened—the Clawson in Clawson, by Irving Belinsky, and the Shores at Saint Clair Shores, by R. R. Shook; two houses acquired by existing Co-Op members—the Town in Detroit by Ben and Lou Cohen, and the Apollo in Detroit, by Saul Korman; and one previously unaffiliated Detroit house, the President, operated by Bernard Brooks.

Will Restrict Attendance At Army Camp Theaters

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—Attendance at Army post theaters will be restricted to military personnel and civilian residents of camps, under the new clearance agreement by which the camps will get pix as soon as they are available to commercial exhibitors, it was announced here Friday by the War Department.

"Previously civilians were permitted but not encouraged to attend War Department theaters, and then only on payment of the established price at nearby civilian houses," it was said.

The War Department said its ban on civilian attendance was in consideration of the new clearance arrangement "the Army motion picture service and civilians interested in providing clean, wholesome entertainment for men in the Army camps have been working for months on the plan to obtain concurrent feature showings, and the agreement was entered into with the complete confidence in the patriotic acquiescence of commercial exhibitors," the Department said.

on Aug. 8 dismissed the complaint on the grounds that the cutting of the clearance would change the run. He ruled that he could not act on a request for a specific run inasmuch as Section X (specific run) did not become effective under the consent decree until after Sept. 1.

Singer appealed the case and it will be up to the appeals board to decide whether an arbitrator can change a run by changing the clearance of a theater.

UA Signatures Reported Delaying S. F. Opening

er, wants to see the United Artists Corp. signature before he turns over the keys.

Papers are reported to have been signed by Blumenfeld and McInerny, but the UA signature was still missing at the week-end.

Approximately $150,000 in cash is said to have figured in the deal, with UA putting up 50 per cent. If the proposition goes through without any more delays, it is believed in trade circles here that UA will have launched its announced plan for a national theater circuit.

Opening program will be "Major Barbara" and "Tanks a Million." House always has had a single feature policy and the trade is wondering where it will get product if a duals policy is adopted.

Begin Crescent Case Arguments Dec. 1

Aug. 8, to dismiss the suit against R. E. Baulch, an official of Crescent and other corporations, was granted Friday by Judge Davies, with the statement that the Government had offered no evidence incriminating Baulch as an individual.

Defense counsel George H. Armistead, Jr., proposed to renew motions for dismissal of other defendants denied on Aug. 8, but withdrew his proposition when Judge Davies indicated that he was not ready to consider such motions. Defense counsel felt that a denial in the record would to some degree prejudice the whole suit.

Argue "U" Dismissal

The greater part of the day was spent in arguments on a motion to dismiss Universal as a defendant, which Judge Davies indicated that he would like to dispose of at this time. Finally, after lengthy arguments by Robert L. Wright for the Government and Edward H. Raftery and J. D. Mosby for Universal, Judge Davies stated that he must have a brief from counsel on "findings of facts" before acting on the motion. Defendants counsel then withdrew the motion, but will, of course, submit the "findings of fact" and a brief on legal authorities involved.

It is admitted that Universal remains in the suit only because of the "isolated instance" of the rejected J. D. Henry contract at Union City.

Judge Davies instructed a court order to be drawn requiring both Government and defendants' counsel to file their findings of fact by Oct. 15, with the defendants' brief to be filed by Nov. 15 and the Government's brief by Nov. 30.

Might Cause Postponement

Questioned by Raftery about the possibility of either the Schine case at Buffalo or the Griffith case at Oklahoma City being in progress on Dec. 1, Judge Davies assured that in that event he would of course, consider a postponement. However, it was stated by a member of Government counsel that they had received no notification of any kind of any possibility of the beginning of the Schine suit in October as reported in the film press.

Judge Davies made this revealing statement, that may forecast his ultimate decision: "The distributor has a right to sell his product to any individual or to any circuit and in order for the distributor to make the best possible contract, he has a perfect right to play one prospect against the other."

☆ ☆ REVIEWS OF THE NEW FILMS ☆ ☆

"The Pittsburgh Kid"

with Billy Conn, Jean Parker, Dick Purcell, Alan Baxter

Republic 76 Mins.

GOOD PRIZE RING MELLER WITH MAGNET OF CONN'S NAME. SHOULD DO WELL AT MOST BOX OFFICES.

With public interest high in heavyweight contender Billy Conn, this production in which he stars has an uncommon type of box office names. This fact, together with the picture's entertainment values,—chiefly melodrama and copious action—, tag it as a gross-grabber of considerable power.

Additionally, it lends itself well to exploitation, and its appeal is to virtually all age-brackets, considering that the up-and-coming generation is thoroughly sports-conscious along with their elders.

Conn does a good job with his role, especially in view of his having no claim to professionalism in the realm of histrionics. He moves through his assignment, however, with naturalness, and this is to his credit. Jean Parker plays adequately the role of the daughter of Conn's manager who had brought the young and talented fighter along rapidly in the art of fisticuffs.

When this veteran manager dies, Conn finds Jean holding his contract. She takes over the reins to prevent him from falling into the clutches of the crafty big-time manager, Max Ellison, who has a reputation for gold-snatching and turning many young pugilists into stumblebums by bringing them along too rapidly in the ring game. Ellison's associates are of the underworld stamp, and his daughter, Veda Ann Borg, usually gets what she wants, and she wants Conn.

The story moves through the Conn-Parker-Borg triangle to the point where Billy, shortly before his shot at the championship, is accused of murder. Through the efforts of Jean Parker, he gets out of the mess, but she sells his contract. In the big bout, he is dejected and being beaten until Jean comes in to coach and inspire him from the sidelines. He wins the title and the happiness of both. Fight scenes are very realistically done.

Direction is okay as is the photography. Some of the dialogue is vapid, but on the whole the attraction runs along smoothly for average tastes.

UA Promotes Otto Eber

Cincinnati—Otto Eber, Indianapolis, is in line for head booker for United Artists, succeeding Mitchell Blackschlager, promoted to sales force.

"Scattergood Meets Broadway" with Guy Kibbee, Mildred Coles, William Henry

RKO 68 Mins.

SERIES PICTURE OF MODERATE APPEAL IS HAMPERED BY SLOW-MOVING STORY.

Scattergood Baines comes to Broadway to protect an investment which he does in his own sage manner. Kibbee as Scattergood fulfills all requirements but has little to work on in the way of a story. Execution of yarn is on same level as script.

Direction takes calm and casual character of Scattergood too literally because unreeling of story appears to be conducted at similar tempo.

Romantic leads as portrayed by William Henry and Mildred Coles are properly youthful and refreshing. Joyce Compton offers a good portrayal of the dumb blonde anxious for a chance on the stage. Comedy parts by Frank Jenks and Bradley Page as the shyster Broadway producers fall flat.

Reason for Kibbee coming to Broadway is because he has loaned money to a widow who is anxious to finance her son in a playwriting career. When son, Henry, comes to town, he meets, Miss Coles, secretary to a pair of shysters. She is unfamiliar with their background.

They accept Henry's script because main part is for a woman and they hope to have Miss Compton inveigle her sugar daddy into backing the show. She does that but he walks out on her later. The partners and the blonde skip with the check and leave Henry holding the bag. Kibbee comes to his aid by backing the show. Miss Coles is given the lead and the show proves a success.

DIRECTION, Fair. PHOTOGRAPHY, Good.

☆ SHORTS ☆

"Carnival of Rhythm"

Warner Bros. 20 mins.

Colorful and Exotic

Here is a subject of unusual interest and certainly one for adult consumption, for a change. Katherine Dunham and her colored dance troupe are presented in splendid Technicolor. Miss Dunham is known for her native dances and is one of the leading and probably most exciting exponent of her art. She and her group present four Portuguese numbers. The dancers are attired in attractive colored costumes. Background settings are ideal. Hackneyed interpretation by the commentator tends to emphasize the obvious in the dance numbers instead of dealing with anthropological background which audiences would have found more enlightening. Subject is a great improvement from the run of the mill two-reelers and a handsome addition to any program.

"The Screwdriver"

Universal 7 mins.

Only Fair

Walter Lantz cartoon deals with a kind-hearted policeman who attempts to be courteous to all screwball drivers and ends up in a padded cell. One particular rooster with a jaloppy imitates a careless driver in such a manner that it causes the downfall of the policeman. Little humor can be found in the situation.

"Inki and the Lion"

Warner Bros. 7 mins.

Gay Cartoon

These Merrie Melodies cartoons just keep on rolling along with happy abandon and swell animation. Nothing much to the tale, but many a laugh, which has a little native boy hunting a lion. Inki faces many perilous situations but a cute cartoon character, the Mina Bird, saves him. It is good program material.

"Is Everybody Happy"

Universal 17½ mins.

Okay Program Material

Of course the only one who could ask that question musically is Ted Lewis and his battered top hat. It is hard to get tired of Ted Lewis' style and he pleases as he always did. Lewis is supported by a colored dancer, Charles "Snowball" Whittier, Kay, Katya and Katy, dance trio, Jeanne Blanche and the Four LeAhn sisters.

"Dizzy Doings"

Universal 17 mins.

Average Entertainment

A number of variety acts presented with not too much imagination. Easily best of the entertainers is comely Mary Healy who clicks big with her rendition of "The Breeze and I." Rhythm Rascals, four men and a girl, and Jimmy Dodd, a vocalist, impress favorably with their renditions. Other acts are Frank Gaby, vaudevillian; The Theodores, a dance team; Ted Arkin and Dorothy Roberts, and Bert Prival and Maytna Palmera, individual dance artists.

"Moby Dick's Home Town"

Universal 9 mins.

Fair Travel Pic

Camera depicts the town of New Bedford, one-time home of the great whaling ships. The subject attempts to recapture some of the old glamour which surrounded New Bedford. There is a visit to a whaling museum and a contrast between the new and the old.

"Trouble in Store"

Warner Bros. 10 mins.

Rather Flat

The Grouch Club admits another member. This time it is a portly and henpecked gentleman whose wife sends him to the department store to exchange some silk stockings. At the store, the man runs into the more formidable form of female species—the early bird shopper. He gets more than he bargained for. Slapstick is done with a heavy hand.

"Lions for Sale"

Warner Bros. 10 mins.

Just Fair

Reel about lion farm is done in natural color. Locale of the subject is at lion's farm near Los Angeles. How the lions are trained from the time they are cubs is followed by the camera. Lions are then loaned to film companies or sold to circuses. Commentary is by Knox Manning.

"We, The Animals, Squeak"

Warner Bros. 7 mins.

Snappy Takeoff

A Looney Tune cartoon which has more than its share of gags and laughs. Deals with introduction of Kansas City Kitty, a cat known for her mouse-catching ability. How Kitty almost lost her title is the situation responsible for the chuckles.

"Snow Time for Comedy"

Warner Bros. 7 mins.

Sprightly Cartoon

Another in the Merrie Melodies series which should please but is not as amusing as the others. Two pups lead a wild chase for an elusive bone over snowy hills and frozen lakes. After a while situations assume repetitious quality.

"Those Good Old Days"

Warner Bros. 10 mins.

Pleasant Reel

Nostalgic subject about the good old days in vaudeville. Reel uses cutback technique as William Orr tells his grand-daughter all about the days when he and Jan Clayton, his wife, were the rage of vaudeville. Orr goes through a number of familiar vaude routines.

Zanuck Plans To Supervise "This Above All" in U. K.

Winter to personally supervise company's British production of "This Above All," at the Shepherd's Bush studio in London, it was learned at the home office over the week-end.

While in Washington last week, Zanuck conferred with high British officials now on war missions in this country, regarding the availability of certain facilities necessary for the production which is budgeted at $1,500,000.

It is understood Zanuck was promised full assistance by British officials which prompted his decision to make the trip. Also likely, is possibility that Richard Greene, who had been serving with the British Tank Corps, may be available for a leading role.

Robert T. Kane, producer, and R. C. Sheriff, who is writing the screen play, are scheduled to leave at the end of this month for London to get picture under way.

Coast Variety Club Will Induct Officers Sept. 29

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—John H. Harris, national chief barker and R. J. O'Donnell, first assistant chief barker, will attend a banquet here Sept. 29 at which officers of the new Los Angeles Variety Club will be inducted. The slate, just named, includes:

Club will remodel a wing of the Ambassador Hotel for headquarters.

James Balmer and "Chick" Lewis will also come on from the East for the induction dinner.

8 Active Tele Sponsors; Expect 12 More in Month

National Broadcasting Company's commercial television outlet WNBT will on Sept. 1, after two months of operation, have eight active sponsors of tele programs. Twelve more sponsors are expected to be signed within the next 30 days. Two new commercial stations will take to the air on Sept. 1—one in California operated by Don Lee, the other in Chicago under the Zenith banner.

At the present rate of advancement, tele officials believe that the new medium will be in full swing by the first of the year, and that, by June 1, 1942, less than a year after the formal inaugural, commercial tele will be operating on a paying basis.

Columbia Broadcasting System is expected to get into the commercial end of television by the first of the year. It may apply for a commercial okay for its New York station on Sept. 16 when its current experimental license expires. It may be forced, however, to renew its experimental license for a month or two until material for the completion of its station can be delivered by the manufacturers.

"From Ships of the Air"

U. S. Marine Corps 8 mins.

Fascinating Reel

This subject will have marked interest to all audiences, because it discloses the moulding of the United States Marines, traditional soldiers of the sea, into skilled parachute troops. The footage shows the calibre of men selected for such training, and, while the current numbers are not large, this fascinating reel assures the onlooker that the ranks will be greatly augmented as time goes on, and the National Defense Program with it.

Locale of the "story" is Lakehurst Naval Air Station in Lakehurst, N. J., and there the Leathernecks learn how to handle and care for their chutes. After several weeks grooming, including the practice of mass jumps from planes, they are ready to look forward to become airborne troops to take part in daring and important operations, should emergency arise.

The film was directed by Lieut. William Halpern; narrated by James Clemmenger; photographed by Sergeants John Rogers and Alfred Rhode; edited by Corporal Morris Abrams; and produced from the script by Sergeant Stanley Kops.

"Buddy Rogers" May Make One in London for RKO

Charles "Buddy" Rogers will leave for New York following his current assignment in "Sing For Your Supper," at Columbia, to discuss with his representatives, a possible trip to London for one of the two picture commitments for which he is obligated to RKO.

William Sistrom, executive producer in charge of RKO-Radio-British Productions, and Director Paul Stein, are negotiating with Rogers to co-star in an original story by Stein, tentatively titled "Nine Were Saved." Production would be made in London.

Start Propaganda "Witch Hunt" Tues.

Champ Clark, D., Mo., or Sen. Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., acting as lead-off man in the witch hunt.

Following these two are expected to be an array of "mystery" witnesses who will be called in an attempt to substantiate them in their charge that the movies are indulging in propaganda designed to drag this country into the war. Names of the other witnesses are being withheld by Nye and Clark, apparently for the surprise publicity angle.

Another theory is that the names have been withheld, because Clark and Nye have been holding back to see what offers to appear would be brought forth by the publicity on their bill.

Arthur W. Kelly Accepts

At the committee's offices on Friday, it was announced that Arthur W. Kelly, vice-president of United Artists, had forwarded an acceptance of the invitation to appear during the inquiry. Kelly's was the second to be publicly disclosed, that of J. Cheever Cowdin, Universal board chairman, being the first.

It was understood—although the subcommittee was silent—that Will H. Hays, MPPDA prexy, would appear; others whose names were mentioned included Walter Wanger, Y. Frank Freeman, George J. Schaefer and Darryl F. Zanuck. All were among the 15 industry figures "invited."

It was said that the subcommittee had been supplied with a smaller list on behalf of the industry, with the suggestion that the men named could speak on behalf of various industry divisions, thus making unnecessary the lengthy parade of witnesses. However, there was no hint of the subcommittee's reaction to this Friday.

Coast Attorneys in Washington

Advance guard of the Coast contingent, now here, comprises three attorneys, Herbert Freston, Maurice Benjamin and Mandl Silverberg, representing the producers. They arrived via New York where they joined in conferences Friday.

The film executives, however, won't go on the stand before next week in all likelihood, since Nye and Clark, together with their "mystery" witnesses, are expected to take up the remainder of this week.

Chairman D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, said he is not informed as to the other witnesses who will appear in behalf of the bill in addition to Nye and Clark. He said they are handling that end of the show. And they won't talk.

Jury Reported "Stacked"

One thing is certain in connection with the hearing: the industry certainly will not be on trial before an impartial jury. In fact, the jury is stacked against it just about as much as it can be, at least four of the five-man sub-committee being well-known as isolationists, and the fifth having tendencies in that direction. The committee was appointed by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, so nothing else could be expected.

Whether the Administration will attempt to come to the aid of the industry in any way is not yet known. However, Senator Nye has indicated the Administration will come in for its share of the knocks, by insinuating that possibly Government leaders forced the industry into producing war propaganda pictures.

On Labor Day Odeon took over the Capitol and Palace at Hamilton, where the Savoy is still undergoing structural changes.

Famous Players opened the new Palace Theater, Guelph, and re-opened the Grand at London. The new Park Theater at Sarnia is nearing completion and the opening will take place soon. The Grand Theater, Sudbury, has been transferred from FPC to 20th Century Theaters, an affiliate. One indie theater is under construction, this being the house at Cornwall, Ont., to be owned by Sam Fingold, the completion of which was delayed by the Priorities Board.

The new season locally is heralded by changes in the immediate vicinity of the City Hall. Practically a new theater, the Ace, was opened on Queen St. West by Sam Ulster, this being the long-operated Photodrome with a new name and dress. The nearby Broadway Theater, formerly the Roxy of burlesque fame, was also modernized while Shea's Theater, to be the new ace house of Famous Players, is already in the hands of the building contractors for remodelling although it does not close until Saturday. Shea's will re-open Sept. 25 with an entirely new policy under the management of Fred Trebilcock.

of a film blockade as a result. One reason is that the 1940-41 product deals were generally signed late in December in several important instances, and there is a heavy backlog of product still waiting to be played by most local houses.

First deals under the consent decree are accordingly slow, with negotiations largely waiting upon setting of first-run deals for Detroit. Only one company, 20th-Fox, has announced actual details of product signed, although other companies have signed some contracts, particularly for smaller houses in fairly non-competitive situations upstate.

Negotiations are now under way with Co-Operative Theaters of Michigan for some 100 local theaters—about one-half of the houses in Detroit and suburbs, on the part of Universal, United Artists and Columbia. Co-Op has so far signed only with 20th-Fox.

Opposition Stiffens to Increased Admission Tax

Fight Looms in Conference If Senate Accepts Committee's Proposal for 15%

the committee's action was highly questionable.

Committee Not to Reconsider

It was indicated as Committee members left the capital for the holiday period that there would be no reconsideration of the 15% rate. The bill is scheduled for a reading today, and undoubtedly will go to the Senate for debate and action tomorrow. Upon Senate passage, it will go to conference.

The increase carried in Committee by a bare 10 to 8 majority, and on the House side, it was indicated that a bitter battle will be waged in conference for the lower rate, if the Finance Committee plan carries in the upper chamber.

While the committee vote was in secret conference, it was learned in reliable circles that the eight Senators voting against the increase warned that the jump would further burden an industry which already has trouble enough, and might in addition, cause an actual decrease in revenue, instead of the $72,000,000 increase, which Committee experts estimated would result from the increase.

Warns Burden Too Great

And on the House side, Rep. Bertrand W. Gearhart of California, a leading member of the Ways and Means Committee, warned that the increase is a "greater burden than admissions can carry," and Chairman Doughton of Ways and Means, while unwilling to make a definite statement because of his position, said it sounded as if the increase made the rate too high.

The new schedule as voted by the Committee would charge 15% on admissions over 50 cents, with fractions of more than one half cent being considered as a full cent, and fractions under one half cent being ignored.

Schedule on admissions under 50 cents were established as follows:

Not more than 10 cents—1 cent
More than—
10 cents but not more than 15 cents—2 cents
15 cents but not more than 20 cents—3 cents
20 cents but not more than 25 cents—4 cents
25 cents but not more than 35 cents—5 cents
35 cents but not more than 40 cents—6 cents
40 cents but not more than 45 cents—7 cents
45 cents but not more than 50 cents—8 cents

Kills Soft Drink Tax

While conceding the necessity for increased revenue, those opposed to the increase on admissions charged that this was placing a disproportionate burden on movie-goers and sports fans. They pointed out that the Committee while voting this increased burden on this category of our citizens, wiped out the proposed tax on soft drinks, which was estimated to bring in considerable revenue.

If the soft drink tax had not been eliminated there would have been much less necessity for the increase on admissions, and it is likely that a drive to reinstate the soft drink tax will play a large part in the battle against the increase on admissions.

Irate members who asked not to be quoted at this stage of the game said they thought it entirely out of line to exempt the soft drink industry while imposing additional burden on the motion picture and sports industries.

Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee, while pointing out that because of his position he could make no positive statement until he confers with other committee members, many of whom were out of town over the week-end, said he thought soft drinks should bear their share of the load, and that he had considered the 10 per cent tax about all admissions could bear.

"Don't Want To Kill the Goose"

Congressman Gearhart, indicating he would wage a strong fight against the increase said: "There is a limit to all things, and I believe 10 per cent all admissions can bear. We certainly don't want to kill the goose that laid the golden egg."

While admissions were taking a licking, newsreel companies got a break from the Finance Committee which voted to exempt them from the 10% tax on photographic film and equipment by providing for rebates on film used for newsreels.

Other "surprise" actions by the Senate Finance Committee which gave the industry varying degrees of concern at the week-end included:

1. A 6% surtax on the first $25,000 of corporate earnings and a 7% surtax on all earnings above this level, estimated to yield an additional $110,000,000. The rates provided in the House bill were 5% and 6%.

2. A 10% tax on local telephone bills, estimated to yield an additional $28,600,000 The House bill rate was 5%.

3. A new manufacturers' excise tax of 10% on electric light bulbs, estimated to yield $8,000,000.

Enactment of the tax measure in final form will not mean the end of the tax threat. The Treasury on Friday informed the committee that a second tax bill will be proposed shortly after the present legislation becomes law, and while it will be designed to chiefly solve administrative problems, it may be made a vehicle for raising additional millions.

Broadway Producers Join Film Interests In Attacking Proposed 5 Per Cent Tax Increase

The proposed 15 per cent Federal admissions tax faced general attack from the amusement industry at the week-end, Broadway producers joining with film interests in pointing out that the additional 5 per cent would undoubtedly materially reduce attendance and thus diminish the revenue to the Government.

The League of New York Theaters, headed by Marcus Heiman, former Orpheum circuit prexy, will meet this week to map a course of action.

Will Hays Denies Propaganda Charges

Charges that the motion picture industry was engaged in war-mongering and that producers were interested in involving the United States in war were denounced at the week-end by Will H. Hays in a letter to Senator D. Worth Clark, chairman of the sub-committee which is to investigate the alleged war propaganda in motion pictures.

The president of the MPPDA said he welcomed the opportunity to state the industry's position at the hearings which get under way in Washington tomorrow. Hays declared that the accusations against the business were "baseless" and that the industry would prove that the charges were "wholly unsupported by the facts and constitute an unjustified attack upon, and challenge to, the fundamental principle of freedom and expression."

Continuing, Hays said:

"The freedom of the screen, like the freedom of the press, radio and other means of expression, is an essential pillar of American liberty. No freedom is secure if the motion picture may not dramatize what the press prints, what the air carries, what the magazines serve to their readers, what book publishers present in current literature, or what the living stage portrays of the world scene of today.

"Regardless of how great the pressure, the industry cannot cease to resist every attempt to prevent the exercise of such rights. The industry recognizes the distinction between liberty and license as is evidenced by its self-regulation in the field of morality, decency and good taste, and by its impartial presentation of economic and political issues.

"It has been charged that the industry has been engaged in a 'gigantic campaign of propaganda to get this country into war.' The pictures which have been produced are the best proof of the utter falsity of this charge. Upon this we will present complete and detailed information."

Kuykendall Says MPTOA Will Fight New Tax

Columbus, Miss.—The 15% tax on admission was declared "outrageous" and out of line with all other business by Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president, at the week-end. Kuykendall said the MPTOA would fight it to the limit and declared that all exhibitors, regardless of affiliation, should register their protest with their Senators and Congressmen. "There is no time to lose," he warned.

Broadway's 500,000 See Records Tumble

Thursday until Monday night. While not a five-day record for the theater, where "The Little Foxes" is playing, a new one-day mark was set on Monday and the management described the business for the period as "terrific."

The Rivoli opened its Fall season on Monday with "Unfinished Business," registering about 10,000 customers who gave the 2,096-seat theater capacity business throughout the day and coming close to a record.

"Aloma of the South Seas" on the screen and Tommy Dorsey on the stage set a new week-end record at the Paramount where 75,000 fans paid out $52,300 in the four-day period. Business momentum kept up yesterday so that the week's receipts are expected to hit the $73,000-mark.

"Dive Bomber" at the Strand played to 54,600 persons and grossed $39,400 for the Labor Day week-end, a 10-year record for the house. Indications are that the picture will roll up $50,000 on the week.

More than 70,000 patrons saw "Wild Geese Calling" at the Roxy which had its best Labor Day week-end in the history of the house.

The Capitol had its best business in several years with "Life Begins for Andy Hardy" which clocked more than 43,000 fans from Saturday to Monday.

"Fantasia" in its 43rd week at the Broadway drew more than 12,000 customers at the week-end, while "Sergeant York" in its third week at the Hollywood attracted almost 50,000 persons in the four-day holiday period. Overflow crowds stormed the Astor where "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" played to 27,000 fans.

Other theaters in the Times Square section also did standout business. The Rialto had its biggest business for the summer with "Parachute Battalion."

Tax Boost Action 'Sneak Punch'--Myers

for Allied, said his members are pressing for a revision of the tax. He stated his group considered the increase a "sneak punch" put over on the industry without any chance to explain what the effects would be.

Other industry representatives on the scene include Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA prexy, and Charles Pettijohn, MPPDA general counsel.

The bill goes to the Senate floor today, but the admission tax item is far down the list, and likely will not be reached before Friday, the day before the Senate's final vote is now expected to come. In the meantime, it is understood the industry representatives are leaving no stone unturned in an effort to replace the rates approved by the Senate Committee with the lower 10 per cent rates voted by the house.

Strategy Hinges on Support

Whether they will bring the fight out into the open on the floor of the Senate, or wait and try to get the amendment in conference likely will depend on the amount of support they are able to turn up in the Senate in the short time remaining to them. If they can garner in that time sufficient support to defeat the higher rates, they unquestionably will carry the fight to the floor. But that they will gather any such support seems highly unlikely.

With so many more important items, from the general standpoint, to be debated, and in view of the tremendous drive to raise new revenue, few Senators likely will be willing to come out and advocate on the floor a reduction of the tax.

However, the conference meetings are secret, and here the members can say what they think. And there is every reason to believe many of them think the admission tax imposed by the Committee entirely too high. Furthermore, it is expected that the industry will have more support for the lower levies in the House than it will in the Senate. The House has already voted for the 10 per cent levy, and committee members have indicated they prefer it to the higher rate.

House Com. Favors Drink Tax

Furthermore, the House Committee feels that there should be a tax on soft drinks, while the Senate Committee voted against this item, though it is understood there was considerable disagreement there over eliminating the item. It is considered a good bet that this item might yet be restored to the bill. And if it is, even in part, some of the pressure for additional taxes on admissions would be removed.

President Roosevelt yesterday, after a conference with legislative dealers, endorsed the tax bill.

REVIEWS OF NEW FILMS

"Birth of the Blues" with Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Brian Donlevy

Paramount 85 Mins.

CORKING MUSICAL WITH GAY TUNES AND MANY LAUGHS; BING CROSBY AT HIS BEST IN B. O. SMASH.

While the screen biography of the American origin of jazz may remain to be written, enough of the absorbing background of the beginning of the blues which the Dixieland Band and its kind made famous after the turn of the century is utilized to serve as ideal vehicle for Bing Crosby.

That's not intended as carping comment by any means but just to keep the record straight for followers of true jazz. Background of the blues is a fresh field for a musical and Buddy De Sylva with an eye for production values has helped create an entertaining musical which should do smash b.o. biz.

Victor Schertzinger a composer himself, has directed with true appreciation of the song sequences. There is one scene where Schertzinger's directorial ability is very much in evidence. That is when he has Eddie "Rochester" Anderson explaining to Mary Martin what makes "blues" different from regular music. Another has Bing Crosby singing "My Melancholy Baby" in the best Crosby style.

Cast is strong in all departments. Mary Martin, looking more becoming than ever, is really good. She does one blues number with Crosby and a comedy number with Crosby and Jack Teagarden. Most of the sock lines which register for laughs come from Rochester who delivers solidly as Crosby's aid.

Brian Donlevy turns in another fine performance as Memphis, the hot cornet player. Little Carolyn Lee is well spotted as the six-year-old aunt of Miss Martin. The girl is cute with a pleasing turn for comedy. Ruby Elzy, as Rochester's wife, deserves mention for her rendition of "St. Louis Blues."

Script by Harry Tugend and Walter DeLeon is refreshingly well-written. It affords Crosby a substantial role as the young clarinet player specializing in low down blues. All Crosby has is his home where his band lives and which used to be among the better residences of New Orleans. This new music fascinates him as it does his band. They bail Donlevy out of jail when Rochester relays word of Donlevy's fine cornet playing.

Miss Martin and Miss Lee are forced to stay at Crosby's home since the latter borrowed her fare for Donlevy's bail. She stays and helps get the band a job through her singing. The band encounters some difficulty because proprietor of cafe uses strong-arm methods to keep the band there after they have become successful. And Crosby discovers he is the one Miss Martin loves all the while and not Donlevy.

CREDITS: Producer, Buddy G. DeSylva; Associate Producer, Monta Bell; Director, Victor Schertzinger; Screenplay, Harry Tugend and Walter DeLeon; Original, Harry Tugend; Sound Mixer, Earl Hayman; Film Editor, Paul Weatherwax; Art Directors, Hans Dreier and Ernest Fegte; Cameraman, William Mellor.

"Law of the Tropics" with Constance Bennett, Jeffrey Lynn, Regis Toomey

Warner Bros. 76 Mins.

AVERAGE YARN ABOUT LOVE IN A TROPICAL RUBBER CAMP SALVAGED BY SOUND CAST.

Here is a good instance when a good group of performers can lift a weak story to a fairly plausible level. Film, nevertheless, is a minor effort of minor consequence. It also serves as a vehicle for the return of Constance Bennett to the screen.

Miss Bennett still retains her touch and performs with assurance before the camera. She is chic and wears her clothes as well as ever. Not even an unorthodox place like a jungle setting can faze Miss Bennett whose coiffure is always becoming and in order.

In film, Miss Bennett plays role of woman wanted on circumstantial murder rap in New Jersey. She is entertaining at a hotel in a tropical seaport town where she encounters Jeffrey Lynn, drunk because his financee failed to arrive. When the detective shows up, Miss Bennett takes the river boat. She again meets Lynn and she agrees to act as Lynn's wife in order to help him save face before the natives.

Meantime, boss of the rubber camp is Hobart Bosworth who kills himself when he is deposed because rubber company is anxious to increase rubber output. Lynn, who is very loyal to company, is outraged when the owner comes down to put his son in charge. They have a fight and Lynn is discharged. Miss Bennett helps save his job. Shortly after the detective appears on the scene and Miss Bennett can no longer hide the secret from Lynn. Since they have fallen in love with each other, he joins her to help prove her innocence.

Regis Toomey and Mona Maris, as the married friends of Lynn and Miss Bennett, are sincere and convincing in their respective roles. Bosworth is good in a brief part. Frank Puglia helps contribute some of the lighter moments as the faithful servant. The detective is portrayed by Thomas Jackson.

CAST: Constance Bennett, Jeffrey Lynn, Regis Toomey, Mona Maris, Hobart Bosworth, Frank Puglia, Thomas Jackson, Paul Harvey, Craig Stevens, Charles Judels, Roland Drew, Cliff Clark, Rolf Sedan.

CREDITS: Associate Producer, Ben Stoloff; Director, Ray Enright; Screenplay, Charles Grayson; Original Story, Alice Tisdale Hobart; Cameraman, Sid Hickox; Asst. Director, Jesse Hibbs; Film Editor, Frederick Richards.

tors immediately closed their offices.

Partially fulfilling its strike threat, the Motion Picture Workers Union Mexico struck yesterday against the Mexican offices of M-G-M and Columbia. It was explained here union selected only two companies in order to prevent a complete shutdown of the industry in Mexico.

Union until Tuesday had declared it would shut down all major distributors. Observers are inclined to believe M-G-M was singled out because it attempted to distribute "Ninotchka," and Columbia, "He Stayed for Breakfast," both considered by the union as "derogatory to the Communistic system."

Other companies, it was reported, were given several days notice by the union to agree to terms. Distribs. consider union's demands exorbitant.

features. Also reinstated will be a large, probably 40-piece, orchestra, to which Henry Kalis, who formerly directed the "Met" pit shows, will return as conductor, and it is reported organist Arthur Martel also comes back. Martel has since been playing at various night spots in and near Boston. John W. Carroll remains as managing director.

Free Show "Not Cricket" Complain Hub's Exhibs.

Boston—Local exhibs. have been asked to aid a gigantic free show at Boston Garden next Sunday when gifts of cigarettes, books or candy for soliders will be the sole admission fee. Since more than 20,000 are expected to crowd the Garden, picture men believe it unfair to ask them to participate in an event which virtually kills their own Sunday business. They direct attention to the fact that all of them have cooperated in every way to aid the USO.

Siler City, N. C.—Board of commissioners has under consideration a petition to allow the operation of Sunday films here and is expected to act at a meeting to be held Sept. 12. Sunday movies were banned some two months ago, but the board later allowed their operation through August.

May Cross-Examine In Propaganda Probe

Willkie's appointment, rumor was abroad here that the ex-presidential candidate would request permission to cross-examine witnesses. Chairman Clark said, however, that he had received no such request. He declined to say how he would view such a request pending its receipt.

Should the sub-committee vote to permit Willkie the right to cross-examine it would be a very unusual thing, the senators ordinarily reserving to themselves alone the right to ask questions.

While the chairman refused to comment, it was learned in authoritative quarters that some other members of the industry had informed the sub-committee they could not accept an invitation, and would appear only if subpoenas were issued.

An acceptance to appear before the committee was received over the week-end from Nate J. Blumberg, of Universal, it was revealed.

It was reported that subpoenas have been served on the presidents of two major companies. Other likely starters, in addition to those who have accepted the invitations, are reported to include Barney Balaban of Paramount and Darryl F. Zanuck of 20th Century-Fox.

Nye to Denounce Film Industry

Senator Nye will lead off on Tuesday with a ringing denunciation of the industry. He likely will be followed by Senator Clark of Missouri who declares: "It's perfectly obvious" the movies are engaging in war propaganda. Others favoring the probe, though Chairman Clark said he couldn't name them yet, are expected to consume the rest of the week.

The industry will have its say commencing the following Monday.

New names were introduced as potential witnesses yesterday. They included Henry R. Luce, chairman of the board of Time, Inc., and Louis De Rochemont, managing editor of the March of Time, and Jimmie Fidler, Hollywood newspaper and radio columnist, who recently charged that his "censorship" difficulties with CBS were linked to certain studio interests.

Just how long Nye, Clark et al plan to hold the floor is not known, but the best bet is that the so-called "prosecution" will take up all or the greater part of the first week. That could mean that industry execs., headed by Will H. Hays, MPPDA prexy, whose forthright statement over the week-end made a generally excellent impression here, might not be called for examination until the following Monday.

Isolationists Stunned

Unexpected announcement of Willkie's appointment, which came from Austin C. Keough, chairman of the law committee, Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, burst like a bombshell in the ranks of the isolationists, who likely were glad of the week's postponement in order to reform their own battle lines.

There is considerable speculation here whether the presence of Willkie in the hearings might not divert attention from the movie angle of the probe, and turn the sub-committee into a forum for a battle royal between the ex-presidential candidate and the isolationist Senators over the administration's international policy. But whether the movie angle is entirely obscured by such debate, it is certain to play a leading part that will attract far wider publicity to the hearings than they would have received had not Willkie been in the case.

Chairman Clark discounted fears which have been expressed by some that the probe would be turned into a witch hunt. He indicated he was after facts rather than individuals.

Industry Request Fails to Click

It as confirmed yesterday that there had been industry overtures to the sub-committee suggesting that the industry be represented by four qualified spokesmen, each drawn from a considerable segment of the trade. The suggestion, however, failed to click with the sub-committee, whose members want the opportunity of grilling at least all the 15 execs. whose names graced the "invited" list.

The powerful Washington Post meanwhile came to the defense of the industry yesterday with a lead editorial answering the charges of war propaganda. Calling attention to the investigation and the answer of Will Hays to the charges, the Post declared:

"His is a substantial answer to the propaganda charge. But it does not take into account the chief reason for the appearance of films to which the isolationists object. And that is that people like them—which has been and always will be the basis of the Hollywood success formula. It is a discouraging thought for the committee members."

Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen whose syndicated column, Washington Merry-Go-Round, last week first "broke" the story that Willkie would be the industry's counsel, followed up today with the assertion that the sub-committee would question Will H. Hays about his recent Hollywood statement deploring screen propaganda. Cited in particular was the Haysian statement, "There are those who would muse rather than amuse".

The sub-committee, according to Pearson and Allen, interprets this as meaning "certain producers" and plans to put Hays on the griddle and ask him which."

Price-Terms Squawk to Gov't

Ia.-Neb. ATO Authorizes D of J Complaint

ing the meeting authorized the Department of Justice be notified that unreasonable prices and terms demanded for film "have definitely increased the pressure on the small exhibitor"; that the practice of consenting distributors of putting one or two desirable pictures in each block along with weak and undesirable pictures and refusing to sell the desirable picture without the others was "a return to block-booking with a vengeance."

Charges "Forcing" Attempt

A charge was made by one of the exhibitors that he had been advised by a salesman he could get the feature deal agreed upon approved if the exhibitor would also contract for some shorts. The decree forbids forcing of shorts.

Discussing film terms it was declared that small exhibitors cannot pay over a top of 28 per cent for any film and still make a profit and denounced the demand of 30 and 35 per cent claiming in the future it would be raised still further.

It was claimed that percentage pictures with checkers result in about 15 per cent of the rentals going into the hands of the checkers with a result both the exhibitor and distributor lose that amount.

Republic Policy Lauded

The board also went on record as praising Republic pictures for protecting its regular customers by refusing to sell 16 mm. rights on its features and condemned other companies making this practice. The exhibitors urged all companies selling 16 mm. rights to reserve rigid control for the protection of regular theaters against the unfair competition of the portable circuits.

Fire hazards also came in for a discussion with the result it was authorized that the MPPDA be notified of the "hazardous and deplorable conditions of many theaters and portable circuit operations in this territory." A committee also will be set up to work with the State Fire Marshal toward adequate theater fire regulations.

Other actions of the board included approval of the USO theater drive; approved the plan of Abram F. Myers for formation of a national joint committee; commended the movie vacation idea.

Preview Privileges Restored on Coast printed until a day after the general release date.

The present trade paper reviewing setup is not affected.

Home office advertising-publicity departments asserted they had no information, following the publication Sunday via Douglas W. Churchill's Hollywood column in the N. Y. Times that the practice, knocked out about two months ago following squawks by exhib. organizations and leaders, is to be re-established.

Decision restricting preview privileges to the trade press was reached in the East, with the formal assertion made that "previewing of pictures, for exhibitors, trade press or lay press, is strictly a function for distribution."

Churchill's version of what transpired, as published in the Times, follows:

"During subsequent weeks the producers discerned a pronounced apathy in some quarters to films that were about to be launched. Some local papers and nationally published columns contained interviews with stars, but the names of pictures frequently were omitted.

"Publicity without picture titles is lost publicity. Analyzing it, the studios found that previews constitute the climax of publicity campaigns and that enthusiasm, without which Hollywood could not exist, could be revived only by re-establishing the climactic event of a picture's manufacture."

Clifton Springs Theater Added to Schine String

Rochester—C. C. Young, district manager in Geneva for the Schine chain, has announced the leasing of the Clifton Springs Theater in nearby Clifton Springs. Robert Emory, formerly manager of the Riverside in Buffalo, will operate the house. Young said alterations and repairs will be made.

All Palsy-Walsy

Toronto — An evidence of good feeling between Famous Players Canadian Corp. and Loew's in the transfer of the Uptown Theater to direct Loew operation after a 15-year lease by FPC was seen in the screening of a trailer during all performances during the week prior to the termination of the lease to announce the next attraction, "Come On, George." This is the first feature for what has again become Loew's Uptown.

Theater vestibule was also undergoing alterations to conform with Loew style while FPC lease still had a week to run.

Warners Asking 50% For "Sergeant York"

sirable policy in establishing a minimum admission base.

Sears explained that the company had spent over $3,000,000 in making and merchandising the production. "Whatever public demand has been created for the picture has been created by us," he declared. "We have put so much time and effort into it and we think we should share in the public response. We believe our share is 50 per cent."

The Warner exec. then cited the run of the picture at the Astor as an example of the merchandising undertaken by the company. He said it was really "an advertising run."

According to Sears, pictures are usually booked in the Astor for eight-week minimum run. "Sergeant York" was booked for maximum of eight weeks and moved over to Hollywood after six. Although pix played to capacity house entire time, total money expended for various mediums was $15,000 more than receipts. He said company is first realizing profit from pix during Hollywood run.

Will Share on Extra Advertising

He added there were no restrictions as far as single billing was concerned and the company would share equally any advertising above normal advertising budget.

While Sears admitted he had virtually closed a deal with FWC for the first three pictures tradeshown by Warners, "International Squadron," "The Smiling Ghost" and "Navy Blues," he shied away from allocating pictures into groups or blocks.

Asserting his organization was geared to sell pictures, not blocks, Sears stated, "I don't propose to use the consent decree to force unimportant pictures into the theaters."

Production Is Flexible

Sears said company would make as many pictures as market could absorb. There would be no set number. If lesser budgeted pictures were undesirable, company would stop making them. There was no sense in marketing pictures which exhibitors did not desire, he explained.

Observing that sales were generally slow, Sears stated, "Production, distribution and exhibition are all feeling their way. I don't find no pat formula. We will just try to merchandise the pictures as efficiently as possible."

Wood's Whodunit

A nation-wide contest titled "Who Was the First Gazabo to Show a Double Feature?" is suggested by Pete Wood, secretary of the ITO of Ohio. Wood contends that the question could be placed in the same historical niche as "How Old is Ann?" and" Why Does a Chicken Cross the Road?"

NICK-WESTON SENTENCES UPHELD

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Rules Anti-Racketeering Statute is Constitutional

St. Louis—The five-year prison sentence and $10,000 fine imposed on John P. Nick, former first International vice-president of the IATSE, and the similar sentence and fine of Clyde A. Weston, one-time business agent of Local 143, operators, following conviction in Federal Court here for labor racketeering, were affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals in an opinion just filed.

The decision of the Appellate Court, awaited with marked interest, swept aside all of the defense contentions of error and held specifically that the Federal anti-racketeering statute is constitutional.

The only recourse that is now open to Nick and Weston is an application for a writ of certiorari for a review of the decision by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Sigmund M. Bass, who, with Bryan Purteet, defended Nick and Weston in the Federal court trial here last Fall, said yesterday it had not been decided by the defense whether the Appellate Court would be asked to grant a rehearing or to make direct application for certiorari to the Supreme Court.

The opinion was written by Presiding Judge Kimbrough Stone, with Judges Harvey M. Johnsen and Joseph W. Woodrough concurring.

The Circuit Court dismissed as unsound the defense contention that the anti-racketeering statute abridged in any respect whatsoever the right of Nick and Weston to enjoy their constitutional privilege of freedom of speech.

"The law covers no action by a labor leader honestly acting for the members of his organization," the opinion read. "It does cover the compulsory payment of graft to a labor leader for his own individual enrichment. Thus construed the act is clearly as protective to labor organizations and their membership as it is to employers.

"Payment of graft to a labor leader is clearly the purchase of his loyalty to his organization, and the result is betrayal of his organization. Labor is likely to suffer more through such a sellout than the employer who, willingly or unwillingly, pays the bribe. By punishing the traitorous leader, who uses his power for his personal enrichment at the expense of his organization, the act is truly at least as protective of employes as of employers."

four of the circuit's ace houses,—Ambassador. Fox, Missouri and St. Louis—, whereby broadcasts by news commentators are to be presented in the auditoriums as part of the regular house programs by hook-up with KXOK, the St. Louis Star-Times station. Idea back of the step is to meet the tremendous competition of the news periods which are held to be hurting film theater attendance.

F & M's investment in the radio reception equipment is said to be already some $3,500, and in addition to this sum the circuit intends to use an advertising budget to drive home the availability of the newscasts to fans in the sector, convincing them that they can have their commentators and movies, too, via their admission tickets.

The new service will become effective commencing next Monday.

The Critics Speak Out

. . . on production, exhibition, publicity

By CHESTER B. BAHN

NOT the last intriguing aspect of the 1941 Critics Forum, a digest of which is found in today's second section of THE FILM DAILY, is the striking critical and columnar insistence upon better story material and the elimination or reduction in double feature programs.

In order of frequency, these recommendations topped the replies to the "If I Were a Producer" and "If I Were an Exhibitor" questions, respectively. Significantly and pointedly, much the same suggestions finished in the identical order in the last Forum, that of 1936.

To be sure, the 1936 conclusions were differently worded, but the sense was the same. It would be splitting hairs to say that 1941's "Seek better story material" differed from siderable interest centers around the award because one of the bidders was the recently-formed Institute for the Advancement of Visual Education and Vocational Training, Inc., which purportedly was formed for the object of "maintaining high standards in the industry" but which, competitors allege, was formed for the purpose of obtaining a monopoly on Government film work.

Thirteen other bidders submitted proposals for the work which officials indicate will run into tremendous volume, but because of the complicated nature of the offerings, it was impossible to determine which was low bidder That is what Treasury experts have been studying, and the answer to which they expect to have ready by today.

Proposition of the Institute that it operates on a non-profit basis raised considerable comment from competitors at the time bids were opened, and it is likely that quite a furore of protests will be heard from firms "trying to make a living" in competition with the Institute, if it gets the award.

May Solve Gas Shortage By Use of Tank Cars

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington — With Benjamin L. Jacoby, president of the Associated Gasoline Retailers of Philadelphia and vicinity, asserting before an Eastern dealers' conference in Philadelphia that there is no gas shortage on the Eastern seaboard, J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, told a special Senate investigating committee yesterday that by the use of 20,000 railroad tank cars the East's gas problem can be solved in a fortnight.

Pelley, revealing that Ralph K. Davies, acting petroleum co-ordinator, had asked representatives of oil companies, railroads and tank car owners to meet with him today, expressed the view that agreement to use the 20,000 tank cars might be reached.

The Pennsylvania Railroad announced yesterday that it had made new arrangements for delivering by tank cars sufficient crude oil to Eastern refineries to meet the daily requirements of 280,000 passenger automobiles.

former head of Famous Players Canadian Corp. If he joins the company, a new office, possibly chairman of the finance committee, will be created for him to fill. It is believed by some that Nathanson will be able to give considerable time to UA affairs inasmuch as he may not have to fill a Canadian Government position mentioned previously.

While official confirmation was lacking yesterday, it is understood that the deal for the United Artists Theater in San Francisco has been completed, the board having cleared all last-minute details.

Harry Buckley, UA vice-president, who has been the key man in the theater negotiations, said yesterday that the San Francisco house was the first in the contemplated UA circuit and that others would be announced as deals were completed.

A company spokesman branded as unfounded a published report that with the closing of the David O. Selznick deal the name of the organization might be changed to Selznick-United Artists.

"Mexican Spitfire's Baby" with Lupe Velez, Leon Errol, Charles "Buddy" Rogers

RKO 69 Mins.

BROAD, SLAPSTICK FARCE THAT SHAPES UP AS FAIRLY SUBSTANTIAL PROGRAM FEATURE.

Film has one of those complicated plots with much confusion and lot of laughs. Customers should find antics of Leon Errol and Lupe Velez amusing. Although gag situations at times are drawn thin, Leslie Goodwins' direction keeps proceedings moving at a swift pace.

Burden of film is carried by Errol who contributes a dual performance geared for guffaws. His portrayal of Lord Epping is a splendid piece of comedy work. Errol gets some good support from Miss Velez and other members of the cast, notably Fritz Feld as the Frenchman who desires to avenge the affront to his honor.

All complications arise when Errol, as Uncle Matt, believes his nephew, Charles "Buddy" Rogers, and the young man's wife, Miss Velez, need a child to solve their problems. He wires his friend Lord Epping, who is coming to America, to bring with him a French war orphan which Rogers and his wife can adopt.

The yarn becomes involved when Lord Epping arrives with attractive blonde Marion Martin, an orphan from the last war. In order to hide her presence, Errol takes her to a country hotel as a hideaway. At that point everybody arrives on the scene, Errol is busy impersonating his other character, and there is no sense in trying to unravel what ensues. But it is enough to say, the situations are hilarious.

Good performances are also registered by Rogers, ZaSu Pitts, Miss Martin and Elizabeth Risdon.

CAST: Lupe Velez, Leon Errol, Charles "Buddy" Rogers, ZaSu Pitts, Elisabeth Risdon, Fritz Feld, Marion Martin, Lloyd Corrigan, Lydia Bilbrook, Jack Arnold.

The committeemen had hoped to work out a plan whereby Hollywood correspondents could see pictures 10 day to two weeks in advance of general release date, but instructions were to give present setup a further trial.

Hotchkiss stated his publication had no quarrel with the industry and wished to co-operate. General news breaks and other mutual problems were discussed.

"Sign of the Wolf"

with Michael Whalen, Grace Bradley, Mantan Moreland

Monogram 69 Mins.

OUTDOOR ACTION PICTURE WHOSE TWO CANINE STARS HELP MAKE IT A PROGRAM TREAT.

Smoky and Shadow may not get top billing but these two intelligent and attractive German police dogs are responsible in good measure for a major share of the entertainment provided by this action picture. Considering limitations, film under Howard Bretherton's direction is absorbing and interesting.

Leads are capably played by Michael Whalen and Grace Bradley but there is a colored comedian, Mantan Moreland, who virtually steals the film. An old hand at acting, Moreland has been featured in films with all-colored casts. He is the gifted type of comic who can make ordinary dialogue sound funny. When caught at the New York theater, audience appeared to enjoy him immensely. There is another good supporting performance by Louise Beavers.

Dogs, who are descended from the Strongheart line, figure strongly in the story. They belong to Miss Bradley who shows them at exhibitions. Returning from a show in her plane, accompanied by Moreland, they all crash in the Canadian wilderness. Smoky runs into the wilderness but Shadow attracts attention of Whalen and his younger brother, Darryl Hickman, who rescue Miss Bradley and Moreland.

While Miss Bradley is recuperating, Smoky is used by a couple of fox hijackers to raid farms in vicinity. They throw suspicion on Shadow but Whalen discovers who the real villains are and with Shadow's help downs them. In interim, romance has flowered between Whalen and Miss Bradley, Moreland and Miss Beavers, and it all ends on happy note, especially since kid can have the dogs.

CAST: Michael Whalen, Grace Bradley, Mantan Moreland, Darryl Hickman, Louise Beavers, Wade Crosby, Tony Paton, Smoky, Shadow.

CREDITS: Producer, Paul Malvern; Director, Howard Bretherton; Screenplay, Elizabeth Hopkins and Edmond Kelso.

Clark to Subpoena Radio Commentators

the sub-committee investigating war propaganda in films and radio.

Senator Clark told THE FILM DAILY that he also intends to have Walter Winchell, famous gossip-columnist, radio commentator, and actor, appear before the committee.

Dorothy Thompson, leading woman columnist who frequently has taken to the air with her views, also will be summoned, if she is in the country at the time the sub-committee gets ready to hear her, Senator Clark said.

He said that Winchell and Miss Thompson would be summoned later on. as a part of the inquiry into war propaganda on the part of the radio industry, which will follow the sub-committee's probe into the motion picture industry.

Senator Clark said that aside from these, and Jimmy Fidler, who he revealed Tuesday had been subpoenaed to appear, he does not think of any other columnists or radio commentators who might be called.

The emphasis at the present time is all on the motion picture angle with the radio probe to come, he said. He said that Fidler and Fisher have been summoned now because much of their comment has been on the subject of motion pictures.

Addition of the name of Fisher and revelation that Winchell and Miss Thompson will be called confirmed the impression prevalent here since the probe was first announced that the hearings will be a name show that will be widespread publicity to everything that is done and said before the sub-committee. And the fact that Wendell L. Willkie has been retained to represent the industry should assure an SRO sign at virtually every meeting, if only newspaper men are admitted to say nothing of the general public, which is as avid here as any place else to glimpse celebrities.

The fact that these celebrities will be appearing before a Senatorial committee on a subject as important as the international situation should be sufficient to bring headlines for the hearing in papers throughout the country.

"Glamour Boy"

with Jackie Cooper, Susanna Foster,
Walter Abel, Darryl Hickman
Paramount 80 Mins.

YOUTH, LAUGHS, SONGS AND CLEVER STORY MAKES THIS STRONG ALL-AUDIENCE COMEDY EVERYWHERE.

When the guns roar, the wise producing company will make the public do ditto through the medium of wholesome laughter. Paramount does just that in "Glamour Boy," which is in sharp and happy contrast to the world's cares and woes. Hence this comedy should score squarely with all who seek diversion. It is more than a comedy and more than an antidote for tribulations; it is a mirthful (and by no means far-fetched) peep into the inner workings of Hollywood.

Producer Sol C. Siegel has put the footage together in a thoroughly showmanlike fashion, and Ralph Murphy's direction, in face of a difficult assignment which called for versatility, is standout. Jackie Cooper has the male lead, and opposite him is cast the onrushing-to-stardom Susanna Foster, whose singing adds lustre to several scenes. The yarn recounts how Cooper, who was the kid star of the original film, "Skippy," is selected to coach young Darryl Hickman in a remake.

Jackie is down on his luck in Hollywood and hoping for a chance to come back. While on his coaching chore, he meets Susanna, who has been given a screen test, and selfishly aids her in taking a role away from Ann Gillis to forward his own career. The Cooper-Foster romance is budding fast when Jackie pulls a fast one at the instigation of Ann Gillis's agent, and rockets Susanna right out of her big chance. Toward the finale, young Hickman, a super-precocious kid, launches a wild scheme to bring the estranged lovers together again, and it works in an hilarious way.

Throughout is a load of clean, crisp comedy; plenty of action, and, at times, bellylaugh situations. Set "Glamour Boy" down as one which will send patrons of all types and ages homeward wreathed in smiles. Dan Fapp's photography is skillful, and so are the cast's performances.

More Rochester Houses May Turn to Usherettes

"Night of January 16th"

with Robert Preston, Ellen Drew, Nils Asther
Paramount 79 Mins.

WELL-MADE MURDER MYSTERY OKAY FOR STANDS GENERALLY AND MELLER ADDICTS PARTICULARLY.

Close to a decade ago, Paramount wheeled out a screen version of a successful spine-chilling stage opus, "Night of June 13," and the story had sufficient appeal and power to justify the company remaking it. One of the changes now is that it's June in January,—but the thrills are there just the same. Robert Preston has the role of a gob whose rich uncle dies leaving him a theoretical three millions, but the sum's tangibility is questionable because a big business's prexy, has allegedly feathered his own nest with more than six times the lad's legacy.

The former gob, as a result of his inheritance, is made a director of the swooning enterprise and sets forth to find out what has happened to his dough, and also who killed the big biz baron by pushing him over the parapet of a penthouse. In the course of his quest, he meets the murdered man's confidential secretary (Ellen Drew) whom he suspects of having had a hand in the homicidal proceedings. Being progressively convinced of her innocence, they try to solve the money-and-murder mystery together, and, in the process, fall in love.

Their investigation takes them finally to Havana where they clear up the case, and, of course, wed. In between the fore and aft sequences there is a lot of creepy stuff designed for hair-raising. Like numerous contemporary mellers, this one moves along showing results while tripping lightly over important details. But no matter, fans who like the spine exhilarated will probably pronounce "Night Of January 16th" as shivery as the season it suggests . William Clemens direction is okay, as is John Mescall's photography.

"Among the Living" with Albert Dekker, Susan Hayward, Harry Carey, Frances Farmer

Paramount 68 Mins.

SPINE-CHILLER ABOUT PATHOLOGICAL MURDERER IS ABSORBING PROGRAM PICTURE.

Horror angles in this melodrama lean toward the gruesome but it is type of yarn which chills and thrills average audiences. For awhile, film has all the earmarks of a slick psychological study of a mad murderer on the loose. Then it bogs down at the finish to an ordinary climax.

There is a fine directorial effort by Stuart Heisler who keeps the film at an absorbing pitch. Unfortunately he was unable to surmount a script that sagged at the end otherwise he would have had film that would have been above the ordinary.

Acting honors go to Albert Dekker who plays a dual role of both the sane and mad, twin brother. It is a difficult portrayal but Dekker's characterizations are effective and convincing.

As the sane brother, Dekker discovers when he attends his father's funeral that his twin brother, supposedly dead for 25 years, is alive but a maniac secreted in the basement of the old house. Only the family doctor, well-played by Harry Carey, and an old butler know the secret. Carey tells Dekker about his mad brother.

In the meantime, the mad brother has murdered the butler and escapes into town. Some of the film's most interesting sequences are those when the insane brother wanders about the streets and becomes the object of the romantic attention of pert Susan Hayward.

When a night club hostess is murdered, Dekker posts a reward at the suggestion of Carey. Miss Hayward, who does not know the new boarder in her house is a murderer, persuades him to look for the killer at his old home.

There the insane twin attempts to strangle Miss Hayward who is saved by her boy friend, Gordon Jones, who has followed them. Meanwhile, the sane brother wanders on the scene and as mad twin escapes, the mob grabs Dekker. A kangaroo court is set up but Dekker breaks away and when the mob catches up with Dekker they discover the mad twin lies dead on his mother's grave.

Commendable supporting performances are turned in by Frances Farmer, Gordon Jones, Jean Phillips, Maude Eburne and Ernest Whitman.

"Nine Lives Are Not Enough" with Ronald Reagan, Joan Perry,

James Gleason
Warner Bros. 63 Mins.

FAST-MOVING NEWSPAPER YARN THAT SHAPES UP AS SATISFACTORY SUPPORTING FEATURE.

In keeping with breezy tempo of film, murders are committed with reckless abandon. Although yarn places strain on one's credulity, Director A. Edward Sutherland has handled proceedings with light enough touch to bring film home in good shape.

Yarn follows formula so well that typical exaggerated newspaper background is included. One of the busiest and personable stars of the lot Ronald Reagan, has the lead as star reporter who is always getting a big story and the paper in a jam because he fails to check the facts.

Howard da Silva is the suffering city editor. Considering the general level of the role, da Silva's performance is a testament to his acting ability. Joan Perry, as the wealthy daughter of the slain millionaire; James Gleason, as the police officer; Faye Emerson, as one of the murdered parties; and Edward Brophy, as the dumb cop, all register favorably.

While demoted because he tried to buck the town's big gangster, Reagan along with Gleason and Brophy discover the body of the missing millionaire. It looks like it is a suicide but Reagan and Gleason believe it is murder. As a result of calling it a murder, Reagan is fired.

He then goes to work with Gleason in checking the clues. They are successful in forcing the murderer's hand into the open. He turns out to be the millionaire's partner and friend of the family. Just an idea as to what the script did not miss, Miss Perry, who has fallen in love with Reagan, buys the paper for Reagan and the city editor is forced to conduct a lovelorn column.

Tax Jump 'Injustice,' Congress is Told

13,500 theaters in the United States."

Wood Asks House Schedule

Wood's letter urged the disapproval of the Senate commitee's 15 per cent levy and called for re-establishment in the bill of the lower 10 per cent House schedule.

On the floor of the Senate yesterday attack centered on other provisions of the tax measure, with Senator LaFollette terming the bill "a vicious assault on the rank and file taxpayer" and Senator Clark of Maryland joining with him in assailing the lowered income tax exemptions which directly hit the screen's mass "white collar" audience.

The film industry's attack on the higher admissions levy found ready support yesterday from a committee representing the legit. theater's organized groups. The committee, comprising Eddie Dowling, Herman Shumlin, Milton R. Weinberger and James F. Reilly, is functioning for the National Association of the Legitimate Theater, the League of New York Theaters, the Dramatists Guild, the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, covering stagehands and box-office men; the Theatrical Managers and Agents and the Actors Equity Association.

Exhibs. Must Fight, Says Myers

Abram F. Myers, general counsel for Allied, reported that the exhibitors are doing a fine job in stirring up interest in the tax in both House and Senate. "They realize that if they don't hit this one, they will get another one later—that they are about to become along with gasoline, cigarettes, and liquor, the whipping boys of taxing bodies."

At the same time, official report of the Senate finance committee on the new tax bill which was reported to the floor of the Senate yesterday, revealed just what the hike in admissions means to theater owners.

The official report said that the bill as written would bring in $191,000,000 from admissions taxes, as compared with $83,000,000, which would be brought in under the present law. It said that the new schedule of taxes imposed by the Senate committee was 45.9 per cent higher than the tax voted by the House.

Light Bulb Tax Upped 8 Per Cent

The official report said also that the Senate committee increased the tax on light bulbs eight per cent over the present rate, as against no increase by the House; lowered the rate on photographic equipment one-tenth of 1 per cent from the House increase of 10 per cent; and left unchanged the increase of 2.7 per cent voted by the House on electric signs.

The committee knocked out the 1.7 per cent increase on outdoor advertising voted by the House.

Satisfactory barrage of protests against the admission tax increase was said in authoritative sources to virtually guarantee a fight on the floor of the Senate to void the increase. Heretofore, leaders have been undecided whether to try for lower rates in the Senate or wait until the bill got to conference.

A Senator to Lead the Fight

Yesterday, however, indicative of increased confidence of ultimate victory, it was said by a reliable source that a Senator had actually been selected to head up the drive, and had given his consent to lead the fight. But his name was withheld pending commencement of the actual battle, against last minute change in plans.

The Senate yesterday accepted the proposed new surtaxes, approved an amendment increasing the tax on local telephone bills to 10 per cent and further okayed an amendment eliminating the House tax on soft drinks.

Yesterday the Senate body among other things voted to uphold the committee in voiding the House proposal to tax time sold by radio stations, which would have yielded $4,800,000 net revenue and the billboard tax which would have raised $1,170,000.

Indications now are that the Senate will not get around to consideration of the admission tax until tomorrow at the earliest, and possibly not until the first part of next week.

Today, however, a number of highly controversial items are set aside for debate, including lower exemptions on income tax, the community-property-states controversy, and others.

Charges Theaters "Penalized"

Wood's letter, which reflected generally the exhibition attitude otherwise expressed, charged the Senate committee's action in effect penalized theaters for their patriotism by overloading the industry "with a burden far out of proportion to that imposed on other lines of business."

It was pointed out that the virtual 50 per cent increase came during the closing minutes of the final session of the finance committee and gave the industry no opportunity to show the unfairness of upping the tax and the damage which would result from this action.

The letter follows in full:

"A grave injustice will be perpetrated upon a patriotic and willing industry if the amendment to the admissions tax section of the pending tax measure (H. R. 5417) as approved by the Senate Finance Committee is adopted and becomes a law.

"This amendment seeks to increase the rate of tax upon admissions from one cent for each ten cents or fraction thereof to what in effect is substantially a sixteen and two-third per cent tax. (In addition thereto, theaters in many states are compelled to pay a state admissions tax ranging upwards from three per cent.)

"On July 1, 1940, the motion picture theaters of the country accepted, without complaint, an additional impost upon their business of approximately $50,000,000 per annum, the result of the lowering of the exemption from 40 cents to 20 cents. A few months ago when it was announced that in order to obtain additional revenue the Congress would recommend a further reduction in the exemption figure, the industry again, in a spirit of patriotism, voiced no objection.

"It was therefore a shock to learn that during practically the closing minutes of the final session of the Senate Finance Committee, it was voted to increase the rate of the admissions tax by approximately 50 per cent without giving the industry an opportunity to show the absolute unfairness of the increase and the damage which would accrue to a business that is suffering immeasurably as a result of the additional tax imposed by the Congress on July 1, 1940.

"We have been informed that the books are closed insofar as any appeal to the Senate Finance Committee is concerned and that the only consideration we can hope for is through the medium of the Conference Committee which will be appointed by the Senate and House to work out any differences. It is for this reason that this memorandum has been hurriedly prepared and is being submitted to every member of the Congress.

"Our record of co-operation in all national emergencies speaks for itself but it would appear that we have been severely penalized for our patriotism because, in reading over the record of what transpired at the hearings held in connection with this revenue measure before both the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, we learn that many of those interests which protested the enactment of new or additional Federal taxes upon their business have gone scotfree.

"We realize the seriousness of the existing emergency and the stupendous job which the members of the Congress face in attempting to find the money called for in the pending revenue measure, but this is no reason to overload a patriotic industry with a burden which is far out of proportion to that imposed upon other lines of business.

"Speaking, therefore, for the 13,500 theaters in the United States, I respectfully urge that the increased admissions tax suggested by the Senate Finance Committee be disapproved and that the rate approved by the House be re-established in the bill."

Six Distribs. Keep Mex. Offices Open

Mexican offices of all distribs. except M-G-M and Columbia are still operating, foreign managers were advised here yesterday. The Motion Picture Workers Union of Mexico has allowed other companies until Sept. 17 before fulfilling strike action.

Six companies, which are still operating, have given Mexican exhibitors 30-day notice as stipulated in the contract that they will be unable to conduct business there because of labor conditions, reports stated.

Unless the Government takes a firmer stand, close to 1,000 theaters will have to cease operation because of lack of product. Distribs., this time, feel a showdown is necessary if they are going to run their own offices in Mexico.

Columnists Fire Broadsides at Propaganda Probe

David Lawrence, Samuel Grafton Blast Senate Sub-committee in Sun and Post

from two such widely divergent editorial viewpoints as those held by David Lawrence, whose New York outlet is the Evening Sun, and Samuel Grafton, whose by-line graces the editorial page of the New York Post.

Lawrence, handling the inquiry without gloves, assailed it as "a precedent" which "can be used in the future to intimidate all forms of expression in America."

"No Right to Investigate"

"Congress has no right to legislate on the subject of moving picture themes," wrote Lawrence, adding, "And where there is no right to legislate, there can be no right to investigate."

Asserting that the committee members "are about to conduct an inquisition to determine who the movie producers are and to publicize their family history, religious background, etc.," Lawrence contends the inquiry "may well be the beginning of a wave of intolerance and recrimination such as the nation has heretofore not witnessed."

Lawrence continues in his copyrighted "Today in Washington" column:

"The principal objection to the proposed hearing is that it assumes the right of Congress to pass judgment on editorial expressions. The motion picture producers have already decided to submit to the jurisdiction of the Senate sub-committee, but they have made a mistake in judgment in adopting that attitude. They are not obliged under the Constitution to submit to such an inquisition and it is not too soon for the courts of the United States to pass on the question of how far a congressional committee may go in smearing American citizens by idle innuendoes and injuring their business standing. The charge that the movie men are trying to drag America into war is as baseless as the charge that the isolationists are under the influence of Hitler or his agents. To take cognizance of baseless charges and start a publicity campaign through the means of a Senate committee hearing is to hit below the belt in the forum of public debate on national or international questions.

Shoud Drop the Inquiry

"The sub-committee would do well to drop this embarrassing inquiry, for it may prove of more harm to the minority than the majority, and while the motion picture men will doubtless make an excellent case for themselves, it will only afford the reactionary forces and opponents of liberalism a chance to use the same devices to break down public confidence in all other mediums of editorial expression."

Grafton in his scathing arraignment of the investigating committee declared, "Every consideration of morality and ethics requires that the witnesses be impudent enough to turn this into an investigation of the investigators."

Pointing out that "This is a stacked probe. It smells to heaven," Grafton affirmed that the industry witnesses "are under a moral duty to be contemptuous and even fractious."

Turn Tables on Probers

The New York Post writer goes on to say:

"I trust that Hollywood will not follow its immemorial custom of crawling on its belly. It is being summoned to Washington to answer the dreadful charge of harboring anti-Hitler sentiments, during a fifty-billion-dollar anti-Hitler defense program. There will be a national revulsion of disgust if the industry attempts to prove plaintively that it is not really so very anti-Hitler after all.

"Hollywood must say, in a clear, strong voice: 'Yes, we are anti-Hitler. And where do you stand, Mr. Senator? Are you pro-Hitler, by chance?' The question must be asked. It is time to create a Legion of Decency to get after the Senate when it puts on obscene spectacles such as this, beside which the cinematic display of Marlene Dietrich's shin-bone is as nothing."

The Critics Speak Out

. . . on production, exhibition, publicity

1936's "Give more attention to stories." On the exhibitor side, the "Drop double features" of five years ago was perhaps more emphatic than the present "Eliminate or cut down duals"; offsetting that, however, is the fact that the critics who are anti-dual are far more numerous today.

RE-EXAMINATION of the 1936 Forum findings in the light of those of 1941 permits more pertinent comparisons. Six other criticisms were repeated on the producer side, eight others on the exhibitor side. In one recommendation to producers there was a complete reversal. Whereas five years ago the critics were appealing for new versions of silent hits, today the cry is for fewer re-makes of old pictures. And of course a wide variety of new suggestions replaced many voiced in 1936.

The order of frequency where criticisms are repeated is far from uniform, although there is some approximation of regularity on the exhibitor side. For example, "Eliminate games and giveaways" finished second in both Forums and "Survey the film tastes of their locality" was third in 1936, fourth in 1941.

On the producer side, this year's No. 2, "Make fewer and better pictures" was No. 6 in 1936, while "Adhere more closely to published works when filming," the No. 2 in 1936, is now No. 7. "Seek new personalities for supporting as well as star roles," No. 7 in 1936, drops this year to No. 13, and "Produce more biographical films," No. 3 five years ago, is now No. 14. Still farther down is 1936's No. 5, "Be more original and not follow 'cycles'," now No. 16, while "Use more color," now No. 17, was No. 13 in 1936.

RECOMMENDATIONS reiterated for exhibitors, in addition to those already noted, embrace "Watch out for patrons' comfort," No. 8 in 1936, now placed sixth; "Avoid over-selling," No. 7 in 1936, now rated eighth; "Shorten programs," No. 14 in 1936, now No. 11; "Enter community affairs," No. 11 in 1936, now No. 12; "Balance programs," No. 6 in 1936, now No. 15, and "List starting times of features accurately," No. 5 then, No. 19 now.

In addressing themselves to advertising and publicity directors, the critics repeat three recommendations which, in the present digest, are fused as one: "Work closer with motion picture editors giving them local items, exclusive stuff, less and better (No. 5 in 1936)—shorter and better written material (No. 1 in 1936)—more fresh items for smaller town newspapers (No. 9 in 1936)."

The extent to which these and other criticisms set down on paper by the critics of the nation are justified when applied specifically may or may not be debatable; the professional integrity and the eager willingness to serve the industry of the Forum participants are not.

Editorial

Headwaiters

. . . at theaters?

By CHESTER B. BAHN

HOLLYWOOD having set the sequel example in the long ago, your columnar observer of the cinematic scene follows through this Friday morn with a second pillar stemming from the 1941 Critics' Forum, digest of which was published yesterday.

As was to be expected, the critics, columnists and commentators who contributed to the Forum, and in certain rare instances, others who did not, carried the discussion of the industry's needs in production, exhibition and advertising-publicity into their own local channels. The result, across the country, was a general stimulation of newspaper and reader interest in the motion picture.

Sifting the hundreds of clippings and letters that flowed across the editor's desk during the Forum period has been a pleasant, enlightening and profitable chore. The published resume necessarily was restricted to the replies submitted. But in the columns of such modest non-contributors as W. Ward Marsh of the Cleveland Plain Dealer there are suggestions, particularly as regards exhibition, worth passing along.

It is W. W. M. taking the floor:

"I HAVE always felt that a little of friendlier feeling which once existed between owner and patron in the old days would still be a great asset to any house. 'Good-will' soared to fabulous financial heights when the Dodge Brothers sold out to Chrysler. It could be turned into the backbone of theater's box office again if any manager were so minded, but it would take such a phenomenal fellow these days that he would probably be snapped up by some other business at three times the money the theater felt it could afford to pay him.

"To greet people and to convince them the greeting is an earnest one; to make them believe they are welcome and then remember them, and delight their vanity by remembering them—these are great and noble feats and any theater manager who does it today knows that he often has patrons come to his house when his feature is lousy.

"They come because they feel at home and because it gives them a strange thrill to be remembered and to be spoken to and to be told, confidentially, that next week's show will be better than this one. Remember, there's not a man alive today who doesn't go back to some restaurant simply because the headwaiter remembered him after the first visit and called him by name on the second visit.

"Maybe a few headwaiters at the door would help, but that may be just a silly suggestion."

Brother Marsh may have something there at that.

The six pictures which are now in release or will be before Nov. 1 are "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," "Our Wife," "You'll Never Get Rich," "Ladies in Retirement," "The Men in Her Life" and "Texas."

Dupont De Nemours in consideration of 56,750 shares of the latter company's stock has been postponed until Sept. 12 at request of applicant. Following these domestic meetings, McCarthy will leave for a visit of the Canadian branches.

Would Quiz DeSylva, Meyer Before Trial of Suit

M. Witmark & Sons yesterday filed notice of motion returnable on Sept. 10 to require the presence of B. G. DeSylva and Joseph Meyer in New York to testify before trial in the latter's $50,000 damage suit against the music publishers. The plaintiffs charge the defendant with selling synchronization rights to the plaintiffs' song. "California Here I Come," to 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. for film "Rose of Washington Square" for $150. Complaint claims that the price was inadequate and did not represent the value of the rights.

Kelly Returns; Silent On Selection of Prexy

Arthur W. Kelly, vice-president of United Artists, returned from the Coast yesterday but would make no comment on a selection for the presidency of the company. Kelly said there was nothing definite on the issue at present.

Five pictures are currently in production, in addition to the last of Hal Roach's streamlined features, Kelly said. Edward Small is shooting "Twin Beds" and "The Corsican Brothers"; Alexander Korda is shooting "The Jungle Book"; Walter Wanger is making "Eagle Squadron" and Arnold Pressburger has "Shanghai Gesture" before the cameras. Roach, Kelly said, was completing "Fiesta," the Technicolor streamliner.

Tinney Ribs Senate Probe in Broadcast cause of the war propaganda charges that have been made.

Starting with the appointment of Wendell L. Willkie, Tinney ribbed the Senators by saying they liked nothing better than be thrilled getting on a sub-committee. He said the Senators wanted to find out "why the movies have Nazi villains in them" and why "the movies paint the British in a friendly light," although he said that the President and high economists were painting the British in a friendly light, too.

Tinney said some Senators thought the movies were trying to get us into war, and although Tinney thought that movies had made as many pictures as might be possible on the last war, he doubted that the industry wanted to get us into another one just to get more plots for pictures.

Generally, Tinney's tone was one of derision of the Senators, and he wound up by getting in mention of his narration in "Thumbs Up Texas", declaring that the people of Texas wanted to know why M of T had to go to Oklahoma for a commentator for a picture about Texas.

Forms Guild Authority On Radio Appearances

Hollywood—Screen Actors Guild has established a Guild Authority which will consist of members of the board of directors to pass on requests for free radio performances.

Tobey's Pot-Shot

First Senatorial pot-shot at the industry's retention of Wendell L. Willkie as counsel for the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee's investigation into alleged film war propaganda was taken by Sen. Charles W. Tobey, R., N. H., a committee member, the AP reported yesterday.

The wire service quoted Tobey, an isolationist, as making during an interview, "Why should the industry need a counsel to tell it what to say, especially if there is nothing to conceal and everything is as pure as snow?"

war situation in Europe and which isolationists accuse the industry of having made in an effort to stir up sentiment in this country for intervention in the war against Germany.

The pictures, advertising on which is to be studied by the committee, include: "Escape," "Mortal Storm," "Voice in the Night," "Madmen of Europe," "They Dare Not Love," "The Devil Commands," "Night Train," "Four Sons," "The Man I Married," "Man Hunt," "Pastor Hall," "Foreign Correspondent," "Blackout," "The Great Dictator," "So Ends Our Night," "One Night in Lisbon," and "The Mystery Sea Raider."

The non-interventionists will try to prove through these pictures that movie makers are war-minded and that they are turning out pictures with a single thought: to get this country into war. The industry on the other hand, points out that this attitude is ridiculous since these pictures represent only a small fraction of the total number produced, that they were produced because of public demand and that the extent of the public demand is fully borne out by the box office records.

However, there is no question that the non-interventionists will try to build their case around the few pictures which have dealt with the war, and obscure as much as possible reference to the much greater number which have had no war reference. The Senators will be aided in this of course by the fact that the industry counsel will have no opportunity to cross-examine, this prerogative being reserved to the Senators alone.

It is reported that Wendell L. Willkie has requested the sub-committee for permission to cross-examine but so far it is understood no request has been received. And if such request were made and granted it would be unusual indeed as only in very rare cases has counsel been permitted to cross-examine at Senate hearings.

"Skylark" with Claudette Colbert, Ray Milland, Brian Aherne, Binnie Barnes

Paramount 94 Mins.

LOVE AND LAUGHS, PLUS ACE DIRECTION AND ACTING, MAKE THIS STRONG, DELIGHTFUL ENTERTAINMENT FOR ALL FANS.

Date books should enter "Skylark" in capital letters because it's that type of attraction,—one of the strong and appealing productions of the new season. In classification, this is a romantic comedy drama, particularly rich in love and laughs, the two most-sought-after entertainment elements among present day fans. From the technical angle the footage is class; from the box-office angles it's mass.

Mark Sandrich's flare for top-flight film-making is reflected throughout, and the fact that he both produced and directed gives consistent quality from first to last. Additional merits, aside from general worth, must be set down as (1) excellence of cast and performances, (2) drawing power of the several name players, (3) superb dialogue, and (4) smartly handled situations.

The story itself is simple in structure and thoroughly human. It recounts the marital crisis of Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland precipitated by the latter's phobia for grabbing money and fame in the advertising business instead of being an attentive husband. She becomes rebellious and disillusioned, and hence prey for the worldly Brian Aherne.

About this triangle moves much of the sophisticated action, also involving the alluring and assertive Binnie Barnes whose jealousy and hatred of Miss Colbert is because of their mutual interest in Aherne. All the while, the Colbert heart really belongs to Milland, and their reconciliation, after a Reno divorce, climaxes the footage.

But before any such happy finale there are some riotously funny scenes and heartaches,—all splendidly devised by Allan Scott's screenplay, based upon the adaptation by Z. Myers of Samson Raphaelson's play and novel. "Skylark" is one of those yarns which draws its charm and power from the manner in which it is told, and the way it is made in celluloid,—and that way is excellent. So is Charles Lang's photography.

CAST: Claudette Colbert, Ray Milland, Brian Aherne, Binnie Barnes, Walter Abel, Ernest Cossart, Grant Mitchell, Mona Barrie, James Rennie, Armand Kaliz.

CREDITS: Producer-Director, Mark Sandrich; Screenplay, Allan Scott; Adaptation by Z. Myers; Based on a play and novel by Samson Raphaelson; Sound Mixer, Harry Lindgren; Film Editor, Le Roy Stone; Art Directors, Hans Dreier, Roland Anderson; Director of Photography, Charles Lang.

English Meller Into Globe

"Frightened Lady," an English melodrama made during the "blitz" month in London, opens at the Globe Sept. 11. Film is based on Broadway play, "Criminal at Large. Arthur Ziehm is handling the national release.

"The Bandit Trail"

with Tim Holt, Ray Whitley, Lee (Lasses) White, Janet Waldo

RKO Radio 60 Mins.

STAR'S PERSONALITY AND HEROICS BRIGHTEN THIS SOMEWHAT RUN-OF-MINE WESTERN STORY.

Producer Bert Gilroy unleashes Tim Holt again in this attraction, and he and his heroics are naturally the spotlight holders. Around his youthful and steady head revolves plenty of action, which finds him returning to his native heath only to discover that his father has been murdered and the family ranch grabbed by a bank. So off Tim goes, having been "needled" into apparent revenge-seeking by uncle, Morris Ankrum.

These two and a coterie of henchmen rob a bank, but Tim is a party to the Waldo, Lee (Lasses) White, Morris Another bank robbery is planned, but the Holt eyes alight upon the banker's pretty daughter, Janet Waldo, and she inspires him to eventually become a marshal.

In that capacity he goes about cleaning up the town in which she dwells, and leaves his former pals-in-crime flat in a canyon hideout. Ankrum, however, decides to get to the bottom of Tim's sudden highmindedness. Together, they team momentarily to blast a ring of bad men from a saloon and gambling joint. Ankrum is killed and Tim thereupon does the job alone, and promises to ride back some day to the personable Miss Waldo.

Holt fans will very promptly and properly take to this western which is, in excitement and quality, on a par with the star's preceding offerings. Lee (Lasses) White carries the comedy torch. Edward Killy's direction is okay as is Harry Wild's camerawork.

CAST: Tim Holt, Ray Whitley, Janet Waldo, Lee (Lasses) White, Morris Ankrum, Roy Barcroft, J. Merrill Holmes, Eddie Waller, Glenn Strange, Frank Ellis, Joseph Eggenton, Guy Usher, Jack Clifford, Bud Osborne.

Horman; Musical Director, Paul Sawtell; Director of Photography, Harry Wild; Art Director, Van Nest Polglase; Associate, Walter E. Keller; Recorded by John C. "Citizen Kane" 25 Per Cent Ahead

"Citizen Kane" in its Labor Day week engagement in key cities did a 25 per cent better gross than last year's attraction in the same theaters. In all these situations full-week holdovers have been scored, RKO said yesterday.

"Dude Cowboy" with Tim Holt, Ray Whitley, Marjorie Reynolds

RKO 59 Mins.

ORDINARY WESTERN SHY ON ACTION WITH EMPHASIS MOSTLY ON MUSICAL SEQUENCES.

Western featuring Tim Holt moves slowly and lacks punch usually found in outdoor pictures. Weak yarn is tough obstacle for Holt to hurdle although he makes likeable impression as cowboy star.

Holt gets a Treasury Department assignment to run down counterfeiters who are making their hangout on a dude ranch. Headed for the same place is pretty Marjorie Reynolds, whose father, an engraver, is held captive by Eddie Kane, leader of the counterfeiters.

Before going out to the ranch, Holt picks up his pals, Lee (Lasses) White and Ray Whitley who are running a medicine show. White is singled out for the romantic affections of Helen Holmes, a wealthy guest. Another, attractive Louise Currie, has eyes for Holt, but Holt's attention is focused on Miss Reynolds.

Without any dramatic effect, the climax is reached as Holt discovers the hideout and with the aid of the sheriff's posse rounds up the gang.

CAST: Tim Holt, Marjorie Reynolds, Ray Whitley, Lee (Lasses) White, Louise Currie, Helen Holmes, Eddie Kane, Eddie Dew, Byron Foulger, Tom London, Lloyd Ingrahan, Glenn Strange.

CREDITS: Producer, Bert Gilroy; Director, David Howard; Cameraman, Harry Wild; Musical Director, Paul Sawtell; Film Editor, Frederic Knudston; Songs by Ray Whitley and Fred Rose.

"Riding the Wind" with Tim Holt, Mary Douglas, Lou White

RKO 60 Mins.

TIM HOLT WESTERN IS CRAMMED WITH GOODLY COMBINATION OF FAST-RIDING AND HEAVY SHOOTING.

This is one of the Tim Holt westerns where the musical sequences do not retard the action. Cowboy fans will get a generous amount of footage devoted to galloping riders who do a lot of shooting.

Director Edward Killy makes sure the story keeps stepping in the right direction. Yarn by Morton Grant and Earle Snell is a standard one dealing with conflict between ranchers and unscrupulous land owner who has built a dam on his property placing the ranchers at his mercy.

Tim Holt believes in avoiding bloodshed. While the ranchers are awaiting word on their appeal to the higher court, Holt has a windmill builder come to the territory to have the water pumped by the machine.

Henchmen of the land owner, Eddie Dew, wreck the windmill after it is erected. The ranchers are then led by a hot-blooded Scotsman, Earle Hodgins, who set out for a showdown with guns.

Word comes just in time that the court has reversed the decision and the U. S. Marshal serves the papers on Dew. The latter heads for the dam hoping to blow it up and flood the basin but is stopped by Holt in a walloping climax.

Tim Holt does a commendable job. Songs by Ray Whitley are pleasing and Lew White is good in his character role. Romantic interest is Mary Douglas.

Gov't Withholds Award Of Film Work Contract

sity of taking into consideration "a number of factors" in addition to the price offered, was responsible for the delay. However, it was learned that a number of inquiries have been received at the Procurement Division concerning the bid of the recently formed Institute for the Advancement of Visual Education and Vocational Training, Inc.

In offering its bid, the Institute asserted that it intended to make no profit off the work. At the hearing, there was considerable comment as to whether the Government should encourage non-profit organizations to compete with business enterprises which are "trying to make a living." It was pointed out that in the past the Government has not sought charity in connection with its work. The Institute implied that because of its non-profit nature, it would be able to do a better job than would ordinarily be expected.

Thirteen other companies submitted bids on the work, which according to Office of Education officials, should run into considerable volume of business.

The Institute is composed of Jam Handy, Loucks Norling, Ray-Bell, and Caravel, which it was revealed yesterday, have between them contracts for producing 30 of the 50 reels of the 16 mm. training films projected by the Office of Education. The current contract under consideration is largely for printing and distributing copies of these productions. The Institute members and their share of the job follow: Jam-Handy and Caravel, 10 reels each; Ray-Bell and Loucks Norling, 5 reels each. Other companies to get awards for 5 reels each include: Emerson York, Audio Products, West Coast Sound, and Calvin Co.

The 50 films will be used largely by vocational schools and engineering colleges with an especial view toward training defense workers, it was said, though both Army and Navy have asked permission to purchase prints as they are completed.

Forty of the reels will be on machine shops, 10 on shipbuilding.

Law, general counsel for the PCC of ITO, in behalf of 140 plaintiffs, a representative group of the Washington, Northern Idaho, Alaska and Southern California-Arizona, Northern California-Nevada branches of the Conference under whose auspices the suit is being filed.

Suit asks for an injunction to stop Ascap from further collection of its blanket license fee and charge to theaters of 10c per seat for motion picture houses with seating capacity to 800, 15c to 1,600 and 20 cents to 1,600 and over. Plaintiffs ask for reimbursement of payments for as far back as 1930, when the changeover took place.

The 140 individual theater owners, operate 234 theaters, and the suit involves the sum of $77,374.06 which is demanded returned, with treble damages of the above amount requested.

Bridgeport Nabes In Price Increase

Bridgeport, Conn. — Neighborhood exhibs. made a concerted move as of Labor Day to raise admission prices. The Parkway, Bostwick, and Liberty went up from 15 to 20 cents top, while the West End and Capitol upped from 20 to 25 cents plus tax. Warner houses in the territory moved their evening price dividing line from 6 p.m. to 5 p.m., and made evening prices prevail all day Saturday and Sunday. Bridgeport admissions in general are still under New Haven and Hartford, 44 cents being top, as compared to 50 cents in the other cities.

Back Joint Committee Plan

Endorsed by Exhib. Leaders, Company Execs.

gestion was an excellent one and that he was positive the production, distribution and administrative ends of the business would surely co-operate. "I will give the committee the benefits of any suggestions which may come to me from time to time and any other help which they earnestly require," Sears wrote.

Another major company executive, who did not want to be identified, endorsed the proposal but declared his company could not participate until legal aspects had been canvassed, according to Myers, who quoted the executive as saying that "every effort to bring about understanding of our respective problems which thereby should result in greater consideration for our respective difficulties can only do good."

Exhib. Leaders Praise Idea

Other letters of endorsement and praise of the idea were quoted, in part, from Col. H. A. Cole, national Allied president; Jack Kirsch, president of Illinois Allied; William L. Ainsworth, president of the Independent Theaters Protective Association of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, Inc.; Roy E. Harrold, president of Associated Theater Owners of Indiana; Ray Branch, Allied of Michigan president; Fred A. Beedle, president of Allied Motion Picture Theater Owners of Western Pennsylvania; M. A. Rosenberg, member of the executive committee of national Allied; Max Stearn, Southern Theater, Columbus, O.; Allied of Eastern Pennsylvania and the board of directors of Allied-Independent Theater Owners of Iowa-Nebraska.

Myers pointed out that since the proposal was made, the industry has had "a striking example of the urgent need for more effective co-operation in legislative work," referring to the revised Revenue Bill which, he said, was strictly a "sneak punch."

"While the bill was under consideration," Myers said, "several attempts were made to arouse interest among exhibitors. They were repeatedly urged to get in touch with their Senators to support the 10 per cent tax with minor modifications. But because the 10 per cent rate was not regarded as unduly burdensome, and the proposed amendments were not vital, there was virtually no response.

Exhibs. Tax Silence Cited

"Based on the volume of mail received from that source, the Senators may have concluded that the exhibitors were indifferent to the tax. The organizations, as such, did their part but the exhibitors who cast the votes on election day did not make their influence felt.

"Allied can appeal with hope of response only to the exhibitors in Allied territory or in territories that customarily co-operate with Allied. If Allied formulates its program first (and it usually does), other organizations for political reasons feel they must propose a different or more elaborate plan. The points of difference are calculated to curry favor with certain elements in the industry. Often they involve concessions so costly to the Government that the loss must be made up by increasing the rates. In any case, it is poor teamwork and invites disaster."

Co-ordination for Common Good

Myers said that a better way would have been for representatives of the really important groups first to consider all aspects of the problem and then to co-ordinate their activities for the common good.

The legal aspects of the committee proposal do not concern Allied, Myers said, who added that the office is not without experience in interpreting the anti-trust laws. The general counsel, he said, would not knowingly expose Allied or its leaders to prosecution for violation of those laws.

Proposal will be one of the principal topics for discussion at the Allied convention in Philadelphia Sept. 16-18 and Myers invites producers, distributors and exhibitors to participate in the forum.

☆ SERIAL ☆

"King of the Texas Rangers"

First Episode
Republic 28 Mins.

Action and Excitement

Judging from the fast action and pulsating melodramatics in this initial chapter, Republic has something in this serial which will fill the bill neatly for theaters where adventure yarns are a favored commodity. "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh, pigskin hero of the Southwest Conference, has the leading male role, and in the femme top spot is Pauline Moore. The script deals with a ring of saboteurs whose nefarious deeds are centered on the destruction of the petroleum resources on both sides of the Rio Grande.

Republic evidently intends to boost good-will 'twixt ourselves and our Latin-American neighbors, for the studio has cast Duncan Renaldo to play the part of Baugh's side-kick in running down the gangs' operations. Too, the footage has a constructive flavor insofar as national defense is concerned as it makes fans conscious of the threat to U. S. resources, and makes heroes out of those who shield the oil fields from harm. The serial, in 12 chapters, uses the initial episode to "plant" the characters. Veteran Monte Blue has only a small part,—that of the Texas Ranger who is killed by the plotters. Baugh is his son, dedicated to avenging his dad's demise.

The climax thrill in the first chapter is the dynamiting of the oil derricks, and they fall in flames, setting a roaring conflagration. Baugh and Pauline Moore are trapped in the midst of the sea of fire. Neil Hamilton plays the role of a ringleader in the foreign gang. Cast is well chosen.

Hiram S. Brown, Jr., is the associate producer; William Witney and John English the directors; Reggie Lanning in charge of the camera work; and Ronald Davidson, Norman S. Hall, William Lively, Joseph Poland and Joseph O'Donnell the authors of the original screenplay.

Industry Fight on New Tax Aided by LaFollette

Senate Lowers Income Tax Exemptions, Giving Industry New Headache

trously high increase proposed by the Senate committee.

The Senate's reversal of the Finance Committee's surprise action represents one of the industry's greatest legislative victories in years. Such a reversal had been given slight chance, particularly in view of the short time given the industry to effect it. All factions, however, put their shoulders to the wheel, and the united endeavor turned the trick. Carrying the ball, notably, were Charles Pettijohn of the MPPDA, Abram F. Myers of Allied, Ed Kuykendall of the MPTOA and Pete J. Wood of the ITO of Ohio, among others.

The successful fight against the higher rates was led by Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin who contended that the tax was an inordinate burden on theaters and also upon the recreational habits of the poorer classes.

Opposition Half-Hearted

A half-hearted opposition was voiced by Senator Walter George of Georgia who attempted to justify the increase on the basis of need for additional revenue.

But so effective had been the efforts of industry representatives in Washington, so strong was La Follette's plea and so weak was George's opposition that the increase was killed by an overwhelming majority. So great was the opposition in fact, as ascertained by voice vote, that there was no attempt to obtain a recorded vote on the proposal.

The action of the Senate in killing the committee proposal has the effect of restoring the House rates containing some objectionable language. However, so great was the victory in overcoming the Senate's proposal to make further increases in the taxes that there likely will be small loss of joy in retaining the House language even with the objectionable features.

9-Cent Admissions Exempt

The house bill which almost certainly will become the final law now that the Senate has voted for the same language, provides a tax of 10 per cent, with exemptions on admissions of 9 cents and under. Industry representatives objected to the exemption fearing that it might be inducement in some areas toward price cutting.

Another feature contained in the Senate finance committee proposal but not contained in the House bill provided for a special junior admission tax, with admissions for children under 18 being charged on the basis of the admission charged rather than on the top admission. Industry representatives had requested the change to bolster admissions of children of school age. However, this provision was wiped out in the Senate action in restoring the House language.

May Seek to Amend

There is a possibility that some attempt will be made to have the measure yet amended in conference to wipe out the exemption and provide for the junior admission, but there is even greater possibility that the industry will be content to let well enough alone and to rest on its laurels.

There is a provision that would seem to prohibit consideration in conference of the section since it has been approved by both House and Senate, but this provision sometimes is gone around. Industry representatives were understood considering an attempt, but sentiment was said to be against it, the majority evidently feeling they should be content with the gains already made.

The successful plea by LaFollette came after a dramatic fight by all fronts of the industry which brought a deluge of legislative representatives and a flood of telegrams from indignant exhibitors throughout the country. Extent of the success of this tremendous drive was seen in the overwhelming majority by which the increase was voided, despite the fact it had the support in committee of 10 of the members as against only eight who were opposed to it.

Senator LaFollette's Plea

Pleading for the lower tax Senator LaFollette pointed out that the increase was voted by the committee with no opportunity for a hearing. "This tax would place an inordinate burden on the theaters which instead of producing increased revenue will be likely to produce less by cutting attendance of the poor people who now depend for part of their recreation on the theaters but who might be unable to afford the increase," he said. "In times like these I don't think we should take away the entertainment of our working classes."

Commenting on the Senate victory Abram F. Myers, general counsel for Allied, said the job was tinctured with some regret that the Senate merely killed the Senate amendment restoring the House language, and not retaining the Senate language which would have wiped out the nine-cent exemption. Question of whether it is advisable and feasible to make further efforts to change the language so as to wipe out the exemption is still under consideration, he said.

Lower Income Tax Exemption

Mitigating to still further extent the benefits resulting from the successful fight on increased admission taxes, the Senate voted to lower personal income tax exemptions to $1,500 for married couples and to $750 for single persons. If the House concurs in this proposal it will certainly be reflected in box office receipts since it will bite heavily into the theater budget of many persons.

Just how deeply it will bite is illustrated by Senator LaFollette, the same Senator who fought successfully for the lower admission taxes, who quoted statistics tending to establish that the average family, after meeting the necessities of life, has only $285 left over now for education, recreation and all other miscellaneous expenses.

Clark of Missouri Opposed

LaFollette's plea to keep the present exemptions of $2,000 and $800, which were approved by the House was rejected by a roll call vote of 43 to 23.

Joining in Senator LaFollette's unsuccessful appeal was Senator Clark of Missouri (of war propaganda probe fame) who said he was unwilling "to tax the poor devil who is barely able to keep body and soul together until those who are making enormous profits out of Government expenditures are brought into line."

The lower exemptions will impose income taxes on 2,256,000 who would have been exempt under the House bill.

NEW WORRIES FOR BOSTON EXHIBS.

Strawhats in Fadeout, But It's Just One Thing After the Other as Films' Opposition

Boston—Summer theater season is coming to a close around Boston and picture men are grateful; for the straw hatters have drawn heavily from normal pix patronage and their biz has been the largest in history.

There's still something for local exhibitors to worry about, however. The China "Whirl of Fire" is booked for Braves Field for nights of Sept. 19-20. Sponsored by United China Relief and staged by veteran showman J. C. Harlacker, event is expected to draw 30,000 each night.

Then for week of Sept. 29-Oct. 4 the Hamid-Morton Circus, sponsored by Aleppo Temple, Shriners, comes to Boston Garden with six evening and four afternoon shows.

And a new race track opens at Burrillville, few miles from Boston and Worcester, to run for 38 days with pari-mutuel horse racing.

Then the big Brockton Fair goes in for pari-mutuels for first time in history and this is expected to draw thousands of new patrons Brocktonward. The Fair plays to about 375,000 persons and runs for eight days beginning Sunday. Night programs will feature Hal Leroy in a musical revue. Dozen of old-time silent films have been booked for the Fair. And both Wonderland and Taunton dog tracks reopen Sept. 15 for long Fall meetings, nights of course.

And the legit season opened this week with Al Jolson at the Shubert and Helen Hayes at the Colonial.

Other than these the motion picture men have not a care in the world. . . .except that business is definitely off and that defense workers are not attending theaters but are spending their money on gambling or new cars. Also Boston's big stores have decided to remain open each Wednesday night until 9 o'clock.

was not permitted to show "pictures until 120 to 150 days after downtown theaters had shown the same pictures." Courshom sought right to play pictures within 21 days.

Suit was brought against Paramount Film Corp., Vitagraph, Loew's and Paramount Enterprises.

Harold T. Patterson, Atlanta attorney, presided. S. S. Perry, New York, assistant executive director of the AAA, attended. The hearing continues today.

Portage Arbitrator Rules Some Evidence is Secret

Chicago—In ruling that some of the evidence subpoenaed by complainant would be examined only by himself, Arbitrator McConnell in the Portage Theater case stated that successful application of principles of arbitration required certain distributors' contracts and exhibitors' secret records need not be divulged in open hearings in order to prevent arbitration proceedings from being undertaken to force disclosure of trade secrets.

Theodore Rein for complainant argued that comparative results must be shown in determining ability to pay. After another all-day session. in which proceedings threatened to be drawn out, hearings were adjourned until Sept. 5, allowing both parties to prepare stipulation of facts. One fact brought out by Attorney Goldberg for respondent was clearance is a commodity bought and paid for by contract.

St. Louis Amusement Co. Intervenes in Palm Case

St. Louis—The St. Louis Amusement Co. has intervened in the clearance case filed by Victor Thien, owner of the Palm Theater, against Paramount, 20th Century-Fox and Fanchon & Marco. F & M operates the Aubert and Union Theaters for the St. Louis Amusement Co.

Thien charges that the clearance granted to the Aubert and Union over the Palm is unreasonable and asks for a reasonable arrangement.

Odlum's Job to Solve One Of U. S. Knottiest Problems

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—As head of Contract Distribution in OPM, Floyd Odlum, Atlas prexy, will have the job of solving one of the knottiest problems thus far to confront the administration in its drive to rearm.

Odlum's task will be to see to it that defense contracts are evenly distributed, and that the possibilities of small manufacturing plants and contractors are utilized in the defense efforts. So far, the Government has had little success in persuading the bigger contractors to turn over part of their business to the smaller ones, with the result that a vast amount of the nation's productive ability has not been utilized.

Solution of this problem will be Odlum's task.

The Atlas prexy has long been rumored for certain titled positions in Washington in payment for certain favors to the New Deal, but the selection of him for this highly important post indicates the esteem which the President places on his ability.

Record Reservations For Allied Conclave

Allied's national convention committee announced at the week-end that advance reservations at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia for the annual conclave have broken all records. These reservations, the committee declares, include exhibitors from both Allied and non-Allied territories and from practically every distributing company and equipment and supply dealers. Convention is scheduled for Sept. 16-18.

Committee reports that outstanding industry executives have promised to participate in the discussions designed to create a national liaison group for better industry relations.

Statistics for a recent full calendar year, the committee announces, indicated that total film cost for all theaters was 36.3 per cent of the gross box-office receipts. However, the committee contends that experience since then has proved that the admissions tax has cut into the box-office dollar and it "may well be that the total of the new taxes will wipe out all possibility of exhibitor profit, despite the fact that financial reports of the film companies show very good earnings."

These vital problems must be considered by exhibitors and the place to do it is the Allied convention, the committee asserts.

Mich. High Court's Decision May Be Suit Sign Post

Detroit—Possible key to the fate of the four Midwest Theaters was found in decision of the Michigan Supreme Court affecting title to another amusement enterprise here, Eastwood Park. The Court set aside a deed signed three years ago on the ground that the grantors misunderstood its nature, and thought they were signing a management contract. Jacob Schreiber, former owner of the four theaters has a similar suit pending in Circuit Court, contending that he thought the document signed was a similar temporary contract for operation rather than an outright bill of sale.

Propaganda Probe Gets Under Way Tomorrow

Isolationist Committee Will Withhold Big Guns At the Present Inquiry

phases" of the propaganda issue which cannot be fully established without showing how exhibition places are controlled by producers.

At the same time, the isolationist leaders expressed belief that the probe which gets under way tomorrow will be only the forerunner of a much bigger and explosive probe which will be gotten under way as a result of this one.

Study for Full Inquiry

He pointed out that the present probe is merely a study of the resolution to determine whether a full inquiry shall be made. Since the hearings are being made under this guise, Senate approval of neither the original measure nor of the new measure, providing for the monopoly probe, is necessary.

This decision was solely up to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, to which the measures were referred. And it so happens that the committee is composed almost entirely of leading isolationists.

Indicating utter confidence that as a result of this preliminary probe, the Senate will authorize a full investigation, Senator Nye gave the impression that the isolationists will not fire their biggest guns at the preliminary study, beginning tomorrow, but will hold them back for the bigger probe which he hopes will be voted by the Senate as a result of the preliminary investigation.

He indicated that in addition to himself and Senator D. Worth Clark of Idaho, there will be few witnesses in favor of the probe. "There are a number of people who might be called," he said, adding, however, that they likely would not be called as part of the preliminary hearing.

Covering All the Loopholes

He said the monopoly phase was included in order that the committee might not be hampered in any way in its study of the war propaganda situation. He added that there was some question whether under the original text the committee might legally go into the monopoly issue, and added that they didn't want to leave a single loophole uncovered.

The new resolution confirmed what had been suspected all along, that the isolationists are dangerous adversaries, and that they are going to leave no stone unturned to prove their point. Those in Washington who know them, whether they hold the same views or not, regard this group as among the ablest members of the Senate, hard-hitting adversaries who know their way about.

Probers Have all the Breaks

And in addition, they have all the rules on their side, since this is not a trial but a Senate inquiry, where the rules are all in favor of the Senators who are privileged to ask all the questions they want, the others privileged to ask no questions.

And skilled in the ways of the Senate, they know every little parliamentary angle and how to take advantage of it. The fact that they were able to obtain the investigation, under the guise of a committee study of the original resolution, without the approval of the Senate, is proof enough of that.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Tax Victory for Pix

By L. H. MITCHELL

ADMISH TAX: The industry won a smashing victory in the fight against the Senate Finance Committee's raising of the theater admission tax to 15 per cent when the Senate itself overwhelmingly defeated its committee's figures and adopted the House rates. MPTOA, Allied and other exhib. organizations put up a vigorous fight against the 15 per cent tax and were aided by Senator Robert M. LaFollette who attacked the rate as an "inordinate burden" upon theaters and the recreational habits of the poorer classes. Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, characterized the 15 per cent tax a "sneak punch."

"WAR PIX" PROBE: Senate Committee's "witch hunt" in an effort to fasten its war propagandizing charge upon the film industry will get under way tomorrow with either Senator Bennett Champ Clark (D., Mo.) or Sen. Gerald P. Nye (R., N. D.) in the studio. Will Hays, MPPDA prexy, who denied the charge of war propaganda against the industry, will be quizzed on a recent speech in which he said the films' purpose was not to "muse but to amuse." Newspaper columnists during the week came out with blasts against the "witch hunt." Meanwhile, the isolationist-packed committee had subpoenaed some radio columnists and others to appear before it. Also it has demanded press books, posters, ads and other accessories used to publicize productions dealing with the war in Europe. Wendell L. Willkie has been retained by the industry to represent it at the hearings.

THIS AND THAT: Warners will ask 50 per cent for "Sergeant York". . . . Arguments in the Gov't. anti-trust suit against the Crescent Amusement Co. and other defendants will start Dec. 1. . . . Attempt of West Coast studio publicity heads to restore, at least partially, preview privileges to Hollywood columnists was squelched by the distribs. who stood by their guns (temporarily at least) that previews were a matter concerning distribution and not production. . . . Iowa-Nebraska ATO authorized a complaint to the D of J against rental prices. . . . Eight film stocks reached new highs for the year on Tuesday on New York's big board. . . . UA reported weighing two Easterners for company prexy. . . . Estimated that Broadway crowd of 500,000 on the Labor Day week-end holidays tumbled previous b.o. highs. . . . Proposal for a national joint industry committee receiving wide backing. . . . Spyros Skouras reports best biz since 1937 and predicts a "good year" ahead.

U. S. Taking Hand In Mexican Dispute

ican exhibitors with Fascist propaganda pictures.

Equally concerned are foreign managers over demands by Motion Picture Workers Union which are not only termed as "exorbitant" but "which would take away power from companies to run their own offices."

Power of union, it was pointed out, has grown tremendously. Union can now, as in case of Columbia's "He Stayed for Breakfast," stop showing of picture after the censor had officially approved of the film by exerting mass pressure. Mexican Government officials, it was said, have made no visible progress in persuading union officials to adopt a more reasonable attitude.

Monogram Will Double Mexican Distribution

Monogram has renewed its Mexican distribution contract with Rafael Arzoz, it was announced by Norton V. Ritchey, Monogram's vice-president in charge of foreign operations. Arzoz, who is in New York, this year will take 42 Monogram pictures instead of 21 which he distributed last season.

Demand for American pictures in Mexico is growing constantly, according to Arzoz who claims that the American pictures, together with Mexican-made product, virtually has eliminated European competition.

Arzoz also is head of Victoria Films, producers of Spanish language pictures in Mexico, and will distribute nine next season, including the first all-color feature to be made in a Mexican studio.

Montague Hosts Managers

Columbia's division managers who attended a sales conference here Friday were the guests Saturday of Abe Montague, general sales manager, on a fishing trip aboard his yacht, the Moneda II. Attending were Phil Dunas, Carl Shalit, Sam Galanty and Nat Cohn, and the following from the home office: Rube Jackter, Lou Weinberg, Lou Astor and Max J. Weisfeldt.

Criterion Reviving "Tillie"

"Tillie's Punctured Romance," old silent film starring Marie Dressler, Charlie Chaplin and the original Keystone Cops, has been booked into the Criterion Wednesday as an added attraction along with "West Point Widow." Monogram is handling release of film whose rights are held by Walter Futter and Eddie Alperson.

Indie Unions May Join CIO

Recommended by N.Y. Screen Guild Council

represented on the Council are the office employes guilds of 20th-Fox, Loew-Metro, Columbia, Paramount and Warners.

The report offers the "realistic conclusion" that the unions' objectives cannot be gained "without the direct support of the nation's organized labor," pointing to the experience of the Hollywood Guild Council which, it is said, has succeeded defensively but not offensively.

In its report, the Guild Council said:

> "The CIO indicates its full interest in our situation by declaring that it would set up a motion picture local, in consideration of the importance of our industry and the homogeneous features of our situation. The CIO adds, pertinently, that it would act immediately upon our affiliation to extend its motion picture organization to our sister unions in Hollywood. This would clearly be to our advantage".

The report discloses that the CIO is prepared to place its financial reserves at the disposal of the unions should affiliation be accomplished, and it is added, "It fully understands the value and power—now part of our own experience as the result of the Disney strike—of a direct pressure blow at the box-office to help us accomplish our objectives".

The Council submits two conclusions:

> "1. It is necessary, to both the continued organization and successful collective bargaining of the member unions of the Screen Guild Council, that they effect an affiliation with a national labor organization.
> "2. It is proposed that the affiliation be made with the CIO, which body this report finds of greater advantage to our objectives than it finds the American Federation of Office Employes (A F of L) on three counts: a, trade union strength, b, trade union democracy and c, honest and progressive union principles."

The Council's exhaustive report was presented to the New York SPG at a special meeting late last week according to reports, widely debated, and it is understood, will be further considered at the Guild's next meeting to which both CIO and A F of L executives probably will be invited to appear.

While the report and recommendations have been submitted to the Hollywood Screen Publicists Guild, with which the local Guild is associated, it is understood that the latter's affiliation with te CIO, if effected, would not necessarily involve the Coast Guild.

Approximately 5,000 industry workers in New York would be affected, potentially, should all of the Council's unions accept its recommendations. It is estimated that of this total the various indie unions now have about 2,000 enrolled.

Although the CIO has scattering industry footholds, and reports have persisted that it was eyeing the studio situation, the move now inaugurated by the New York indie union would represent its first major advance into films.

Personally active in the negotiations on behalf of the CIO has been and is John Stanley, national secretary-treasurer of the United Office and Professional Workers of America, it is learned. Latter has 36,000 members of which some 16,000 are in New York.

The A F of L is represented in the home office field by Local 20940, American Federation of Office Employes, which has just renewed a contract with Universal and has signed also with Big U Film Exchange.

Pizor Asks Clearance Change for Philly House

Management Corp., Paramount, 20th Century-Fox and Loew's.

Pizor claims that his clearance arrangement calls for the Tioga to play 14 days behind the Strand and Carmen theaters, but that pictures are made available for from 35-40 days because of late bookings by the other two houses. He asks that the Tioga be allowed to play product seven days after Germantown Ave. first-runs.

Meanwhile, a number of postponements in arbitration hearings here have been announced. Hatboro case has been set back from Sept. 30 to Oct. 2; Liberty, Camden, case from Sept. 16 to Oct. 7; Parkside, Camden, case set for Oct. 10; Great Northern case from Sept. 8 to Sept. 30. Brandt said he believed Willkie would be a great defender of the theater business and that he could bring about closer relations between the exhibitors and the Hays organization if he were drafted for the job.

A contingent of young ensigns from the Great Lakes Naval Training School were detailed as escorts during the girls' stay in Chicago.

REVIEWS OF NEW FILMS

"A Yank in the RAF"

with Tyrone Power, Betty Grable, John Sutton, Reginald Gardiner

20th-Fox 98 Mins.

THUMBS UP IT IS; TYRONE POWER STARS IN ABSORBING AND ENTERTAINING ACTION YARN SLATED FOR TOP GROSSES.

Darryl F. Zanuck has produced a stirring tribute to the RAF. It is swell entertainment whose effectiveness is heightened by the absence of adulation of the heroic exploits of the British fliers and the almost casual approach to their courage and daring. It is also filled with exploitation angles and showmen should have no trouble booming this one for happy box office results.

Directorial efforts of Henry King are largely responsible for absorbing quality of film. He has handled the well-written script of Darrell Ware and Karl Tunberg with an alert sense of the dramatic. Film is also nicely paced for romantic and comedy situations.

Production is of major proportions with most memorable set dealing with the evacuation of the British troops from Dunkirk. There are some innocuous authentic shots of aerial battles but the Hollywood version is more exciting. Editing appears on the spotty side with one complete sequence with Gladys Cooper, listed in the cast, eliminated completely.

As the young American hunting for thrills, Tyrone Power contributes one of his most engaging performances. He plays down his brashness to the right degree and imparts a winning warmth to his characterization. Betty Grable clicks solidly as the chorus girl who broke her engagement with Power in Dallas because he was too unreliable.

She makes an attractive heroine especially in her appearance in the night club scenes where she renders "Hi-Ya Love" and "Another Little Dream Won't Do Us Any Harm" in a most satisfactory manner. Love scenes between Power and Miss Grable are keyed to the right note by Director King who employs use of haunting musical background to the dialogue.

Comedy honors are snared by Reginald Gardiner who is excellent as the flight officer who pines for an introduction to Miss Grable. Another top-notch performance is turned in by John Sutton as the squadron commander who meets Miss Grable and furnishes the chief competition to Power. Donald Stuart rates mention for his portrayal as the corporal.

Film concerns itself with adventures of Power after he joins the RAF at the beginning of the war before the Low Countries were invaded. His squadron leader turns out to be chief rival for Miss Grable's affection. On one bombing flight, Gardiner is killed as he heroically diverts anti-aircraft fire from the crippled bomber flown by Power and Sutton.

The plane comes down in Holland. Power and Sutton escape from the Nazi troops in a boat. How they are rescued is omitted but both recover quickly and the evacuation of Dunkirk has commenced. Power reports for fighting action and is wounded after he downs a number of Messerschmitts. Meanwhile, Miss Grable realizes she really loves Power which blacks out proposed matrimonial venture with Sutton.

"Ladies in Retirement" with Ida Lupino, Louis Hayward, Evelyn Keyes, Elsa Lanchester

Columbia-Cowan-Miller 92 Mins.

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

ABSORBING PRODUCTION, GRIPPING FARE, HIGHLIGHTD BY FINE PERFORMANCES AND SPLENDID DIRECTION.

Lester Cowan's filmization of the Gilbert Miller-produced play is absorbing, gripping fare. It is faithful to its stage parent in plot, although the central character is made a young woman and enacted by Ida Lupino, who gives an outstanding performance.

Although Director Charles Vidor has created an eerie atmosphere and much suspense, he also gains comedy relief through the antics of Ida Lupino's half-demented sisters, Elsa Lanchester and Edith Barrett.

George Barnes' camera plays an important role in the artistic value of the picture, with his exteriors calling for special kudos. Garrett Fort and Reginald Denham have supplied a praiseworthy screenplay based on the play by Denham and Edward Percy.

Louis Hayward does fine work as an absconding bank clerk, who uncovers the murder his aunt, Ida Lupino, committed. Isobel Elsom, as Ida's mistress, repeats the excellent performance she gave in the stage play. Elsa Lanchester and Edith Barrett are especially good as Ida's zany sisters. Evelyn Keyes, Clyde Cook, Emma Dunn and Queenie Leonard are among the able principals.

Elsa Lanchester and Edith Barrett, half-demented and homeless, are taken into Isobel Elsom's home by their sister, Ida, who is the housekeeper. Their antics get on Isobel's nerves and she orders them from her home, also threatening Ida with dismissal. Fearful for her helpless sisters, Ida slays her mistress. Hayward, who has come into the Elsom home to hide from the police because of his bank defalcation, becomes suspicious of his aunt, Ida, and finally traps her into admitting the murder. Ida goes to give herself up to the police, who have run down Hayward.

CAST: Ida Lupino, Louis Hayward, Evelyn Keyes, Elsa Lanchester, Edith Barrett, Isobel Elsom, Emma Dunn, Queenie Leonard, Clyde Cook.

Fox screenings of the first block were staged in the company's own screen room rather than in outlying theaters.

Industry Blasts Propaganda Probe

letter to Chairman D. Worth Clark of Idaho, revealed that the industry will stick to its guns and not back down a single inch, nor apologize for a single action in the production of films depicting the horrors of war, or the dangers of conquest by Nazi Germany.

Willkie told the sub-committee in no uncertain terms that the industry is opposed to the Hitler regime, that it has attempted to portray progress of the defense program and offered to present witnesses to prove that the pictures dealing with the war were based on actual facts of conditions in the warring countries.

The ex-presidential candidate issued a heated challenge to the allegations by Senator Nye that many persons in the industry are of alien origin, pointing out that many distinguished citizens of the United States are of alien origin, and that it is contrary to the American creed to challenge a citizen simply because he did not happen to be born in this country.

Pointedly Willkie called attention to the fact that the resolution empowering the investigation had not been passed by the Senate, and consequently was of doubtful legal status. He also challenged the biased partianship of the committee members.

Industry Opposes Nazism

He said in part:

"After reading the resolution and Senator Nye's speech with care, I have come to the conclusion that your sub-committee intends to inquire whether or not the motion picture industry, as a whole, and its leading executives, as individuals, are opposed to the Nazi dictatorship in Germany. If this is the case, there need be no investigation.

"The motion picture industry and its executives are opposed to the Hitler regime in Germany; they have watched with horror the destruction of a free life within Germany and the ruthless invasions of other countries by Nazis. On behalf of the motion picture industry and its personnel, I wish to put on the record this simple truth: We make no pretense of friendliness to Nazi Germany nor to the objectives and goals of this ruthless dictatorship. We abhor everything which Hitler represents.

"In this conviction, the motion picture industry is no different than other average citizens of this country. In truth, I hope this conviction is no different than that shared by the members of your committee. You and I together with the great overwhelming majority of the people of our country, share the unalterable belief in a democratic form of government and in the inalienable rights of the individual to freedom of worship, freedom of speech, freedom to choose his government without interference, and freedom to live in economic security.

"In simple terms, the United States stands for the right of an individual to lead a decent life. Hitler and his Nazis stand for the opposite. The motion picture industry wants no compromise between these two concepts.

"Senator Nye, in his address, has also accused the industry of co-operating with the national administration on matters of national defense. If your sub-committee proposes to investigate this charge, again I say there is no need for an investigation. The motion picture industry, like other American industries, is composed of sincere patriotic citizens. The industry gladly, and with great pride, admits that it has done all in its power to present to the American public a picture of our Army, our Navy, our Air Corps and their equipment. The motion picture industry is proud, also, that it has co-operated in the sale of defense bonds and has assisted in raising funds for the United Service Organizations.

"Again for the record, on behalf of the motion picture industry and its personnel, may I put this simple truth: We are proud to admit that we have done everything possible to inform the public of the progress of the national defense program.

"The motion picture industry has no wish to flout the authority of the position of your committee. But the industry has instructed me to give an accurate portrayal of their defense effort. However, when Senator Nye says that the industry is doing this work on the demand of the administration we emphatically and indignantly deny his charge. The administration has made no such demand, and frankly the motion picture industry would be ashamed if it were not doing voluntarily what it is now doing in this patriotic cause."

Referring to Senator Nye's charges that there are a number of persons of alien origin in the industry, Willkie said:

"If the committee feels that the racial and geographical background of American citizens is a condition to be investigated there is no need for the investigation. We frankly state that in the motion picture industry there are in position, both prominent and inconspicuous, both Nordics and non-Nordics, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics, native and foreign-born. This industry, with many others of our country, demonstrates that neither race, creed nor geographical origin is an essential qualification to participate in American business. This fact illustrates a basic principle of American life, as we have known it for over 150 years. The motion picture industry, composed like other industries of loyal and patriotic Americans, despises the racial discriminations of Nazism and is devoted to the cause of human freedom both in this country and abroad."

Referring specifically to the charges of war propaganda pictures Willkie said:

"Of the more than 1,100 feature pictures produced since the outbreak of the present war, only some 50 have had anything to do with the issues involved in the war or with the ideological beliefs of the participants. Some of these 50 we are glad to admit do portray Nazism for what it is—a cruel, lustful, ruthless and cynical force. We know that this is an accurate portrayal of Nazism.

"However if the committee will permit we will offer witnesses with a first-hand knowledge of German men and women who have actually lived in Germany under Nazism. They will prove to you that the motion picture industry pictures Nazi Germany as it is. Similarly some of these pictures show England under war conditions.

"We ask permission to present witnesses with first-hand knowledge—again men and women who have lived in England during the war. They will prove to you that the industry's portrayal of the magnificent courage of the English people is correct.

"The pictures portraying England and Germany do not purport to tell the American people what they should do about Nazism save as the knowledge of the true facts may, as it always has, influence the judgment of right-thinking men and women. We believe that it is the truth which makes and keeps men free and that it is the suppression of the truth which is a menace to human liberty wherever it occurs."

No Subversive Motives in Pix

"The fact is, of course, that the motion picture industry is not guided by subversive motives, that motion pictures' business is guided by nothing more subversive than the hope to saitsfy the prevailing taste of the American people for their aim is two-fold: to produce profitable pictures that people will want to see and will enjoy and to build up the prestige and artistic accomplishments of individual companies. The success or failure of individual motion picture companies depends only on the ability to produce motion pictures that will satisfy the public. It is as simple an American business principle as that."

In conclusion Willkie warned of the dangers of total censorship involved in the investigation, pointing out that from the picture and radio industries it is only a short step to the newspapers, magazines and periodicals and from freedom of the press it is just a small step to the freedom of the rights of the individual in the world today, he said.

On the eve of the opening of the inquiry, it was apparent that there would be no quarter asked or given. Determination of the sub-committee to rip into the industry was heightened, it became evident, by Willkie's week-end call upon the President to

However, when AFL pickets appeared at E. M. New Industry Probe: How Much For Shooting Pix on Gov't Property?

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—The motion picture industry yesterday became the object of another investigation, this is one to go into the question of shooting pictures on Government-owned land, such as Yosemite and other national parks.

The probe will be to determine the amount which should be charged for such purposes—whether the studio should pay more, or whether the Government should charge less or nothing, in return for more advertising for the parks in which such shots are taken.

The investigation will be conducted by a sub-committee headed by Senator McCarran of Nevada. The Senate yesterday voted $10,000 for this study and for other purposes.

While the inquiry will be conducted by the sub-committee, the behind-the-scenes moves will be directed by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., chairman of the full Interstate Commerce Committee, and arch-isolationist. If a more complete investigation is directed, Wheeler, highly critical of the industry on several occasions, will preside at it.

It is anticipated that parliamentary tactics will play no small important role in the present inquiry. In this connection, it is pointed out that Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, D., Mo., is the former House parliamentarian.

Observers credit Sen. Gerald P. Nye. Rep., N. D., with looking to the inquiry to restore his leadership of the isolationists. Nye, original standard bearer, later was shelved aside by Wheeler and Charles A. Lindbergh.

Racial Persecution Move Charged in Film Inquiry

The film-radio war propaganda inquiry opening in Washington today is denounced as "the most barefaced attempt at censorship and racial persecution which has ever been tried in this country" in an open letter to Congress signed by 63 members of Fight for Freedom, Inc.

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington — Senator D. Worth Clark of Idaho, chairman of the war propaganda investigating committee, yesterday characterized as "dribble" charges by Fight for Freedom, Inc., that the probe is a "barefaced attempt at censorship and racial prejudice."

most graphically to the American public the service that the motion picture industry renders in a time of emergency."

So H. M. Richey, Metro's director of exhibitor relations, told delegates to the Southeastern Theater Owners convention here yesterday.

Richey said he didn't believe the industry owed anybody an apology for hating Hitler.

A pickup in business since July is sure to continue judging by all indications, Richey said, adding that the re-awakening to the need of showmanship was having beneficial results.

M-G-M plans to spend more than $3,000,000 in farm, family and fan magazines this season to assist in pre-selling pictures, it was revealed.

Richey said that a plan of institutional advertising, very personal in application, will be utilized to redirect the public's attention to the fact that "motion pictures are their greatest entertainment value." Various members of the M-G-M personnel have made 81 talks to public groups, much of which was based on material prepared by the company. He said the material was available to all who cared to use it.

Let's find the good things to say about the motion picture industry. it has been a good business and been good to us. Ed Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA, told members of the SETOA.

Kuykendall said that the trade papers were still the best bet of exhibitors commenting on previews of the new pictures. They have trained men who are able to give the exhibitors a good idea as to the picture and its possibilities at the box-office in their particular communities, he said.

Inquiry Vicious, Says Senator Pepper

ed by a Senate sub-committee, the members of which are not impartial, however, Pepper said. Friends in the Senate, he assured, would see that a fair deal was given and he was confident that the industry would be vindicated in the public mind.

The Florida Senator commended the motion picture industry for its wholehearted co-operation with the Government during these crucial times. The friends of Adolph Hitler in this country, he said, are launching their chief assault on American public opinion and endeavoring to break down the morale of the people. In combatting this vicious work the motion picture industry was rendering a real service, he said.

Pepper was introduced to the convention by Claude F. Lee, public relations director for Paramount. Lee, who also spoke, said the Senate's rejection of the proposal to raise the Federal tax on theater admissions was evidence of the Government's awareness of the motion picture industry's contributions to the public morale and work in behalf of the national defense effort.

Going on to enumerate the services rendered by the industry to the national effort, Lee said:

"Favorable comments are heard with regard to the short trailer flashes designed to stimulate enlistment. Praise is common there (in Washington) with regard to the faithful work of the newsreels."

Officers elected yesterday by the SETOA were: Nat Williams, Thomasville, Ga., president; Tom Brandon, Titusville, Fla., secretary; Thomas E. Orr, Albertville, Ala., treasurer, and O. C. ☆ ☆ REVIEWS OF THE NEW FILMS ☆ ☆

"Married Bachelor"

with Ruth Hussey, Robert Young, Felix Bressart
M-G-M 87 Mins.

ROBERT YOUNG AND RUTH HUSSEY STAR IN GAY AND GIDDY COMEDY FILLED WITH LAUGHS.

Ruth Hussey and Robert Young team up to make this program picture an unexpected pleasure. It is one of those films where a lot of people share the credit. Namely, John W. Considine, Jr., the producer, the direction by Edward Buzzell and the script by Dore Schary.

Small supporting cast of Sam Levene, Felix Bressart, Sheldon Leonard and Lee Bowman all keep pace with the principals. Dialogue is replete with patois familiar to the denizens of Lindy's. That type of dialogue is solid stuff for Levene and Leonard, as bookie and gambler respectively, and they dish it out for laughs. Some funny business has Bressart joining in with similar lingo after he gets "hep."

In film, Miss Hussey is wife of Young and very much in love with him. She does a grand job as the wife who would like her husband to get a regular job so they can settle down to a normal existence. On basis of her work lately Miss Hussey is going to be mighty popular.

Getting back to yarn, Young is teamed up with Levene as bookies. They take a large bet from a tough gangster, Leonard, and are stuck when the horse wins. Leonard holds Levene hostage until he can collect the dough.

They pick up a manuscript from an improverished professor, Bressart, who likes to bet on horses. Young poses as a bachelor and the book advising people on their marital problems is a success. Miss Hussey has to remain in the background so that Young can make money to pay off debt. Young's publisher, Bowman, falls in love with Miss Hussey, not knowing she is married to Young. Meanwhile, Bressart is employed as the ghost writer.

Only weak portion of the film is the climax when Miss Hussey and Young patch up their differences over a national network. It is an incredible and unimaginative ending that almost disperses pleasant effects of the rest of the film.

CAST: Ruth Hussey, Robert Young, Felix Bressart, Lee Bowman, Sheldon Leonard, Sam Levene.

"Gentleman from Dixie" with Jack La Rue, Marion Marsh, Clarence Muse

Monogram 63 Mins.

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

SWELL LOW-BUDGETED MELODRAMA PROVIDES SOLID ENTERTAINMENT FOR ALL MOVIE-GOERS.

Ed Finney, in this his first venture in the mello market, shows the same canny showmanship that has kept him one of the top western producers for years. "Gentleman From Dixie" is a smooth, well-produced, well-directed and well-cast yarn that should appeal to any theater-goer looking for solid entertainment when he buys his ticket. For a small budget, independently-produced film it can be labeled outstanding.

While all members of the cast show to advantage here, the honors go, without question, to a little girl, called Mary Ruth. Not only is she lovely, and capable in reading her lines with all the feelings of an old-time trouper, but she goes beyond the ordinary precocious stage and demonstrates amazing ability as a classical pianist. She is a great bet and it was a great break for Finney getting her for this.

As for the rest of the cast, Jack La Rue, playing a sympathetic role—a departure for the established gun-toter—stands out with a delicate smooth performance that should do him a lot of good with the casting offices. Marian Marsh is lovely and displays a thorough knowledge of her role. Robert Kellard, John Holland and Herbert Rawlinson are excellent.

Al Herman's direction is fine. He handles the dramatic, comedy, and musical sequences with equal understanding. Clarence Muse and his colored performers (dancers and singers) are a great addition to this cast and responsible for much of the entertainment value of the film.

Jack La Rue, wrongly convicted of murder, is released from the penitentiary, where he has been serving a long term, and goes home to his brother's stock farm in Kentucky with no bitterness in his heart against the former friend whose perjured testimony sent him there.

When he arrives at the farm he learns that his brother's (Robert Kellard) wife has died and he has remarried.

Wife number two (Marian Marsh) objects to La Rue's coming and insists that he take the status of an employe if he remains. La Rue trains a racehorse belonging to little Mary Ruth and the animal develops into one of the finest two-year olds in the country. Kellard needs money and at the suggestion of his wife sells the horse to John Holland, La Rue's former friend.

When Mary Ruth discovers the sale she runs away with the horse, and the subsequent sorrow until she is found brings the family all together and straightens out their differences. The villain (Holland) is killed by the horse when it becomes enraged when he handles Mary Ruth roughly.

While, because of its lack of real draw names, this picture is probably not strong enough for top-bracket release, it will certainly act as a cinch word-of-mouth draw on any double bill.

CAST: Jack La Rue, Marian Marsh, Clarence Muse, Mary Ruth, Robert Kellard, John Holland, Lillian Randolph, John Elliott, Herbert Rawlinson, J. Stanford Jolley, Joe Hernandez, Phyllis Barry, Mist-A-Shot and the Clarence Muse Singers.

CREDITS: Producer, Edward Finney; Director, Al Herman; Original story and Screenplay, Fred Myton; Cameraman, Marcel Le Picard; Editor, Fred Bain; Production Aid, Aaron Klein; Production Manager, Sam R. Wallis.

"Last of the Duanes" with George Montgomery

20th Century-Fox 57 Mins.

AVERAGE WESTERN SHOULD DO ALL RIGHT WITH THE COWBOY FANS.

Despite enough action and shooting to please the run of Western picture fans this film will be a disappointment to patrons who made so much comment about George Montgomery in "The Cowboy and the Blonde" and "Accent on Love." In this one, through no fault of his own, he sinks to the level of just another cowboy player. Story is ordinary and gives him little chance to appear to advantage.

The routine yarn tells the story of Buck Duane, son of a sheriff who has been shot in the back. He comes to town and shoots a man in self defense. After fleeing a phony sheriff he finds that he is blamed for a number of crimes he knows nothing about. For no obvious reason, the governor grants him a pardon on the condition that he break up an especially tough gang of desperadoes. He accepts and, with the greatest of ease, does the job.

CAST: George Montgomery, Lynne Roberts, Eve Arden, Francis Ford, George E. Stone, William Farnum, Joseph Sawyer, Truman Bradley, Russell Simpson, Don Costello, Harry Woods, Andrew Tombes.

CREDITS: Executive Producer, Sol M. Wurtzel; Director, James Tinling; Story, Zane Grey; Screenplay, Irving Cummings, Jr., William Conselman, Jr.; Art Directors, Richard Day, Chester Gore; Musical Director, Cyril J. Mockridge; Cameraman, Charles Clark; Film Editor, Nick De Maggio.

"Man at Large"

with Marjorie Weaver, George Reeves, Richard Derr
20th Century-Fox 69 Mins.

QUICK-PACED SPY DRAMA CONTAINS A FULL MEASURE OF ENTERTAINMENT.

A briskly moving spy yarn with a good share of laughs to lighten the whodunit business, "Man at Large" is certain to be well received by audiences. Not a pretentious film, and lacking star names, the picture depends on an actionful story, good performances, and first-rate direction on the part of Eugene Forde.

Marjorie Weaver does bang up job as the new reporter; Steve Geray is fine as the blind leader of the foreign agents, while George Reeves and Richard Derr are good as a G-man and a British agent.

Story tells of the escape of a German aviator from a Canadian prison camp. He is captured and a British agent takes over the "escape" in order to track down a spy ring operating in the U. S. A receptionist in a New York newspaper blunders into a clue and to get rid of her, the editor, who is co-operating with the G-men, makes her a reporter and sends her to the Canadian border. Here she gets into the middle of things and nearly bungles the plan before being straightened out by a U. S. agent. Naturally the foreign agents are captured but not before a series of highly amusing adventures takes place.

Nye Admits He Saw But Few of 'Propaganda' Pix

Senator McFarland Seen As Industry's Only Friend on the Com'tee

Interstate Commerce sub-committee opened its inquiry here yesterday in the packed caucus room in the Senate Office Building drew blistering answer from Wendell L. Willkie, industry counsel, in an instantaneous and lightning counter.

George Fisher, widely-known West Coast radio commentator on films, whose program, "Hollywood Whispers," is heard on the Don Lee network, under subpoena to testify at the propaganda inquiry, will be called to testify Friday, it was reported last night.

Refused the right to cross-examine Nye and the witnesses who will parade before the sub-committee in the days to come, many of them frankly hostile to the industry, Willkie lashed out in a statement asserting that the Senator, co-author of the inquiry resolution, was:

1. Striving "to foster and create public prejudices against the motion picture industry;

2. "Trying to influence the motion picture industry to alter . . . its policies" which include "producing accurate and factual pictures on Nazism" and the portrayal to the American public of accurate and factual pictures on our national defense program," and

3. "Obviously is seeking to divide the American people into discordant racial and religious groups, in order to disunite them over the U. S. foreign policy, which has been overwhelmingly approved by the Congress and the people."

In so doing, Willkie affirmed, Nye has given no reason why there should be an investigation, has instead "demonstrated, without a bit of doubt, why this foolish show should be ended, once and for all," and has "proved himself a star witness for the industry."

Nye Saw But Few of "War Pix"

In his letter asking cross-examination privileges Willkie said that Austin Keough had, after discussing the question with Senator Clark, told him they would be accorded.

Willkie's stinging arraignment of Nye, who was forced to admit under questioning by a fellow committeeman that he had seen few of the films he has assailed, and the developments at the opening session of the inquiry, served to bear out THE FILM DAILY'S forecast that the industry and the isolationist bloc controlling the sub-committee were headed for a bitter show-down battle, with no verbal holds barred. That there were wide repercussions and reverberations was apparent.

Unexpected support for the industry on the sub-committee developed when Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, D., Ariz., vigorously opposed the ruling of Chairman D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, forbidding Willkie the right to question witnesses.

That the committee is definitley "stacked," however, was immediately revealed when the other four members solidly backed the Chairman in his stand.

Clark sought to justify his decision on grounds of established Senate procedure, the fact that the committee has no counsel, and the contention such privilege to Willkie would be unfair since some witnesses will be without aid of counsel.

McFarland, only non-isolationist serving, asserted that since the sub-committee is trying to develop facts they should not overlook any aid in this direction. But he was overwhelmingly over-ruled.

Later in cross-questioning Nye, the Arizona Senator gave further definite indication that the industry has one friend on the committee.

McFarland Quizzes Nye

Checking Nye up on his references to war pictures, McFarland asked whether the North Dakotan contended the pictures did not portray facts.

Nye tried to evade the question, finally said he did so contend, but that his major contention was not this, but rather that propaganda was one-sided.

McFarland asked Nye flatly what he hoped to accomplish by the investigation.

"I hope to accomplish the degree of legislation, if necessary, that will give the American people defense against the most vicious propaganda that has ever been unloosed on a civilized people."

He said he would not suggest any type of legislation at this time, but hoped that "censorship might be averted."

Nye Renews Zanuck Charges

Nye renewed charges that Darryl F. Zanuck and William Koenig virtually forced 20th-Fox studio employes to attend the Willkie rally in Hollywood and gave Harry M. Warner credit for having helped influence the President into the destroyer deal with Great Britain. He also accused Warner of having said he would reject a successor to Joseph I. Breen, as Code Administrator a certain Congressman, because he voted against the Lend-Lease Bill.

Nye asked the committee to investigate whether British agents are operating in the film industry, indicating he believes Victor Saville is acting in such capacity and urging that he be called to testify.

Said Nye:

"Certainly he should be questioned as to what orders if any he received when he last left Great Britain for the United States, and about the type of visa he possesses.

"Persistent is the report within the industry that the British Ministry of Information arranged his visa to the end that he might work in Hollywood and represent the interest of the British Ministry."

Nye referred to the substitution of Saville for Frank Borzage as director of "The Mortal Storm."

In a brief filed with the committee, Willkie raised detailed objections to legality of the proceedings.

Willkie's brief charged the inquiry violated the first amendment to the constitution.

Senator McFarland charged by implication that Nye and Clark introduced the resolution for publicity purposes.

When Nye replied to questions that he had no specific legislation in mind when the measure was introduced, McFarland asked:

Willkie Charges Probe Violates First Amendment to Constitution

"Then, what are we here for? Is the object just to get publicity?"

McFarland indicated suspicion the object might be some form of abridgement of freedom of speech, which he pointed out would be unconstitutional and therefore, outside prerogative of the committee.

Refuses to Specify any Legislation

Nye persisted in refusing to state what legislation, if any, he had in mind. He said he hoped there would be no need for legislation. It was there that McFarland propounded his question on publicity.

(The Associated Press said that "Chairman Clark interrupted at this point to say that the committee could recommend revision of the Sherman anti-trust law to require the movies to give equal representation to all views on a controversial subject, much as he said the radio had been required to give equal time to both sides in a political campaign.

"Turning to reporters who sat nearby, Mr. Willkie said in a low voice:

" 'That means, and you can quote me as saying this, that he wants the law to provide that we should show pro-Nazi pictures.' "

The AP further said that "Senator Clark interrupted Mr. Nye at another point to place in the Record a letter from Mr. Willkie, protesting against the inquiry and asserting the opposition of the moving picture industry to Nazism.

"The chairman observed that the latter contained, 'by innuendo at least, an implied reflection on this committee.'

"He was presenting it, he said, not because the innuendo was based on fact but 'as another monumental example of campaign oratory.'

"There was laughter and applause in the crowded hearing room as Willkie burst out:

" 'Thank you very much, Senator. I'm very appreciative. That's the best thing in the Record yet.' ")

(The Daily News said: "Nye promised that a witness will take the stand later and swear that an 'agent of the Government' had urged producers to produce propaganda pictures." The News mentions the names of Lowell Mellett, chief of the Office of Government Reports, and Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress, as figuring in the testimony).

Issue of monopoly played a part in the hearing, Nye's remarks on the point being amplified by comments from the Chairman. They contended that people can read what they wish because of numerous publications, and hear what they want on radio because of wide variety of views broadcast, but that monopolistic control of pictures, "if it does exist,

"Exert Your Every Energy," Urges Nye In Plea for Full Inquiry Recommendation

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—Plea of Sen. Gerald P. Nye, Rep., N. D., for a "sweeping inquiry" into war film propaganda charges was voiced thus at yesterday's initial session of the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee:

"Gentlemen of this committee, I plead with you that you recommend to the whole committee on Interstate Commerce, of which you are a sub-committee, to exert your every energy, to the accomplishment of a sweeping inquiry to determine whether or not we are the victims of a propaganda so closely controlled by so few men.

"I do not ask you to persecute them or prosecute them. I ask only that we be permitted to know the truth and the facts, to the end that the American people, if the facts justify it, may put their guard up and may know what they might be encountering in the way of modern propaganda stories upon the silver screen."

makes 'propaganda' more vicious because, monopoly allows no presentation of other side of pictures."

Says Pic Breeds Hatred of a Race

Nye said he considered "I Married a Nazi" the "worst" propaganda he has seen, because "the scenes make us hate not only an individual, but a whole race of people."

He made this statement in response to an inquiry by McFarland, but under further questioning declined to name other objectionable pictures he had seen. He said he couldn't recall them.

Under pointed questioning by McFarland, Nye finally broke down and admitted he had seen very few of the pictures he has attacked and that considerable portion of his conclusions were based on information obtained from others. The capacity audience roared with laughter when he said one of these was "The Great Dictator."

Nye's Prepared Statement

Senator Nye's prepared statement, which ran to 41 pages, in essence was devoted to two issues, one of the charges of anti-semitism that have trailed in the wake of the inquiry, the other the allegations that the industry, or a considerable part of it, has been privy to war propaganda through the medium of certain productions.

As a preface to his discussion of the issues, Nye asserted:

> "I am not asking for any Government interference with the freedom of the movies. I entertain no desire for moving picture censorship. That is quite as undesirable as is press censorship. I entertain no sympathy toward any idea which would have the Government take over the movies or have the Government dictate what should be run in the pictures."

Nye devoted some 5,000 words to the discussion of anti-semitism, disclaiming any responsibility for the raising of the issue in his St. Louis address. He followed an expression of "bitter resentment" that it had been brought to the front, however, with this:

Charges "Smear" by Trade Press

"However, if I had it to do over and were I determined to name those primarilv responsible for propaganda in the moving picture field, I would, in light of what I have since learned, confine myself to four names, each that of one of the Jewish faith, each one foreign born. But I would do that without any spirit of prejudice and without prompting by any cause as foreign to by thinking as is anti-semitism."

Nye charged that publications, including the trade press, have "sought to smear the authors of this resolution and the purpose of your committee," and made the same claim in the instances of "colored" news releases by certain organizations and individuals, and the remarks by others on the radio.

"I most emphatically deny, though this committee will not need this denial to know the truth, that there is any anti-semitic cause served in the request Senator Clark and I make for this investigation of propaganda," Nye declared.

In concluding his discussion of "the question of anti-semitism," Nye warned that "every one of us is hearing more and more every day" of its growth, expressed the opinion that it was better to "bring these whisperings out into the open," and then let go with the ugly forecast that "a perplexed, angry, burdensone unemployed people" will "find a goat" to blame "for every misery that grows out of this present world madness."

"Who that goat will most likely be we have good reason to recognize from what we are hearing and seeing everv day," Nye said, adding, "but when that hour comes, and if it comes, I shall be found in the very front lines of those who give battle to race prejudice, to anti-semitism."

In tackling the propaganda issue, upon which the inquiry originally was predicated although now, at the whim of the sub-committee, it may go far afield, Senator Nye recalled propaganda's role in World War I, charged that there is a similarity between pictures of today and those made for avowed propaganda purposes in 1915-17, and asserted, "We have not seen all that there is to see in the way of motion picture propaganda."

Nye, in support of his contention that the industry had a high monetary stake in a British vistory, cited a report to its clients by Goodbody & Co., Wall Street investment house, that a "selfish interest in dollars may be playing a considerable part" in inducing production of propaganda films.

Claims Inside Information

Claiming to have "information from inside the moving picture industry," Nye charged that one feature planned will show a British refugee ship with "children and pregnant British mothers" aboard en route to Canada, and will "portray the Nazis gleefully wringing their hands and glorying in the opportunity and the plan to destroy this ship and its cargo." Nye said he was ready to supply information "concerning this particular plan for thorough investigation."

Nye asserted that film and newspaper propaganda are not identical, but added that if the U. S. press was "controlled by four or five men, I would say that it was not only our right but our obligation to our country and its people to include newspaper propaganda in this study of propaganda."

Nye singled out these pictures as bearing investigation: "Convoy." "Flight Command," "Escape," "I Married a Nazi," "That Hamilton

"Great Dictator," Sergeant York" Among Films Nye Would Investigate Woman," "Man Hunt," "The Great Dictator," and "Sergeant York." Inclusion of the latter came as a distinct surprise to observers.

Nye suggested the committee might be justified in arranging a private screening of pictures allegedly carrying propaganda, added that newsreels "of necessity" must be a part of any study and was critical of The March of Time.

Nye vigorously attacked the M of T's "Peace—By Adolph Hitler."

Industry representatives at the hearing included J. Robert Rubin, Joseph Hazen, Austin Keough, Charles C. Pettijohn, Carter Barron, Kenneth Clark, Jock Lawrence, and Nathan Golden.

TEXT OF WILLKIE'S STATEMENT

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—Text of statement issued by Wendell L. Willkie in reply to testimony of Sen. Gerald P. Nye, Rep., N. D., yesterday follows:

"Senator Gerald Nye's opening statement pleads with the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee to recommend a formal investigation of alleged propaganda in the motion picture industry. I am delighted that Senator Nye made his statement in such detail. I have but one request to make—that every member of Congress and every citizen of the United States read carefully and in full Senator Nye's arguments.

"I say this with all sincerity. My reason is a very simple one. With his own words, and without the possibility of disagreement, Senator Nye again reveals the purpose behind the introduction of his resolution for an investigation. What we knew all along from the Senator's previous public addresses, is now part of the official record of the United States Senate.

"Senator Nye's purpose in asking for the investigation is now proved to be as follows:

"First, Senator Nye desires to foster and create public prejudice against the motion picture industry, and thus attempt to high-pressure it to stop producing accurate and factual pictures on Nazism.

"Second, similarly, Senator Nye is trying to influence the motion picture industry to alter another of its policies, the portrayal to the American public of accurate and factual pictures on our national defense program.

"Third, Senator Nye obviously is seeking to divide the American people into discordant racial and religious groups, in order to disunite them over the United States foreign policy, which has been overwhelmingly approved by the Congress and by the people.

"In his whole long and tedious statement, Senator Nye gives not one valid reason for an investigation of the motion picture industry. He does, however, give every reason why no investigation should be held. He demonstrates, without a bit of doubt, why this foolish show should be ended, once and for all. Even he is convinced there is no necessity for censorship or Government control of the industry. Senator Nye has proved himself a star witness for the industry."

Arbitration Queries Flooding Tribunals

been noted, it was learned here yesterday. After a period of comparative inactivity in many of the arbitration offices, there has been a rush of requests for information on the part of exhibitors as to grounds for arbitration.

New York headquarters of the American Arbitration Association are not certain as to whether the sudden flood of requests for information means the forerunner of a deluge of cases or whether exhibitors are only curious asto their rights under the consent decree.

In any event, it is believed in reliable film circles that the next six months will see a continuous stream of demands for arbitration by independent exhibitors and local tribunals are preparing themselves for the anticipated deluge of inquiries and filings.

Adjourn Portage Park Arbitration Case to Sept. 16

Chicago — Portage Theater case was adjourned to Sept. 16 to permit the Bennis arbitration case to get under way this morning. Mort Goldburg, Portage theater prexy, was on the stand all day under cross-examination of defense counsel Edmund Adcock and Felix Jenkins, Twentieth Century-Fox lawyer.

Goldburg's testimony brought out Theatrical Enterprises Inc. was holding company for the Portage Park, Fox, Admiral, Drake and Byron Theaters

Adcock endeavored to bring out that Portage Park improvements were forced by newer theaters, the Belpark and Gateway, of the B & K circuit.

Revue Theater closure in June by Theatrical Enterprises was caused, according to Adcock's cross-examination to enable the Portage Park management to bring an arbitration action. Arbitrator McConnell sustained plaintiff's objection to bringing theater's books into court.

Attorney Jenkins endeavored to bring out that Goldburg theaters had a 20th-Fox contract for the past season's product which was not fulfilled. Goldburg denied this allegation, but said there had been some bont fide disputes concerning the contract.

Jenkins returned to New York by plane last night.

REVIEWS OF NEW FILMS

"Great Guns"

with Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Sheila Ryan
20th-Fox 74 Mins.

MANY DIVERTING MOMENTS PROVIDED BY LAUREL AND HARDY IN ARMY LIFE FARCE.

Return of Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy is a welcome one since the comedians provide some amiable diversion in a farce about Army life, getting enough funny situations across to make a slight yarn entertaining.

Laurel and Hardy are the faithful retainers to a pampered millionaire, played by Dick Nelson. The lad is drafted and much to his happy surprise the army accepts him. Laurel and Hardy enlist to be near him, thinking he is a sickly boy. But Nelson proves self-sufficient and gets along nicely. He also falls for pretty Sheila Ryan, who runs the camera store at the post.

Most of the comedy scenes arise from encounter between Laurel and Hardy and a tough sergeant, Edmund MacDonald. The pair have a pet crow Penelope which at the end helps save the day for them.

There are some bits of business which are surefire for laughs. One scene has Laurel shaving with the light of a bulb that does not go out when he disconnects it. Penelope causes most of the chuckles during an inspection scene when he is hidden in Hardy's pants. Another is a clever bit where they are constructing a bridge which has Laurel carrying planks and then showing up on the other end.

A newcomer, Nelson, is appropriately shy and creates a favorable impression as the romantic male lead. MacDonald does all right as the hardboiled topkick. Original script by Lou Breslow is a commendable job. The direction by Monty Banks is attuned for extracting a maximum of laughs.

CAST: Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Sheila Ryan, Dick Nelson, Edmund MacDonald, Charles Trowbridge, Ludwig Stossel, Kane Richmond, Mae Marsh, Ethel Griffies, Paul Harvey.

"We Go Fast"

with Lynn Bari, Alan Curtis, Don Deforest
20th-Fox 65 Mins.

MODERATELY AMUSING LIGHTWEIGHT YARN ABOUT MOTORCYCLE COPS.

Redeeming feature about this minor comedy is the uniformly good acting jobs turned in by the leading members of the cast. Story is on the weak side but the performers make the most of their lines and situations. Comedy is episodic and not consistent enough.

Alan Curtis is the handsome young vagrant who helps a motorcycle cop capture a holdup man in a diner. The dumb cop is well played by Dan Deforest. Mutual object of their affections is Lynn Bari who is cast as a waitress in the roadside restaurant.

The speed laws are upset by Sheila Ryan, daughter of a local millionaire icebox manufacturer. Curtis in the meantime has become friendly with her. The Nabob of Borria, long expected, arrives to buy ice boxes. He swindles the millionaire out of $50,000 and persuades Miss Bari to accompany him. Curtis, however, catches up to the train in time and captures the crook.

While most of situations hold no water from a dramatic standpoint, there are some minor roles which easily stand out during the arid moments. There is Gerald Mohr's portrayal as the Nabob and Ernest Truex in a surprisingly minor part but excellently played. Arthur Loft is good as the commissioner. William McGann copes well enough with the script and manages to direct at a fast moving pace.

CAST: Lynn Bari, Alan Curtis, Sheila Ryan, Don Deforest, Ernest Truex, Gerald Mohr, George Lessey, Paul McGrath, Thomas Dugan, Arthur Hohl, James Flavin, Arthur Loft, Charles Arnt, Charles Trowbridge.

CREDITS: Director, William McGann; Screenplay, Thomas Leenon and Adrian Scott; Original, Doug Welch, Cameraman, Harry Jackson; Film Editor, Fred Allen.

DIRECTION, Satisfactory. PHOTOGRAPHY, Good.

the urgent necessity for the formation of some kind of all-industry body.

Col. Cole stressed the fact that such an all-industry group would be one of the principal topics for discussion at the national Allied convention next week in Philadelphia.

Col. Cole said that Allied was highly gratified over the results of the tax "blitzkrieg" inasmuch as the Senate leaders who carried the floor fight in support of the industry position hailed from Allied territories, "reflecting excellent ground work done by many of our units."

Philadelphia — Schedule of events for the 12th annual Allied convention has been released by the convention committee, the lineup indicating that a number of important topics will be laid on the table for consideration. Aside from the all-industry group idea, a highlight of the sessions is expected to be the presentation by distributor representatives of the exact positions of their respective companies on current problems.

Business sessions will be confined to the afternoons during the three-day convention which opens at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel on Tuesday.

In addition to vital subjects of general importance on the docket, a number of social affairs are scheduled, including a night club supper party, sightseeing trips, banquet, theater parties and special events for the ladies.

Sid Samuelson is general convention chairman.

Hasn't Seen Those Propaganda Pix, Clark Admits; Willkie Asks Hearings End

By OSCAR HUME

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington — "The case against the industry" was further punctured and deflated here yesterday as the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee pro-

Wendell L. Willkie, industry counsel, in a statement last night charged that Senators Bennett Champ Clark and Gerald P. Nye, sponsors of the investigation resolution, were using Senatorial powers to "disseminate unsubstantiated gossip, destroying reputations by whim and fancy." Willkie challenged Nye and Clark to point to any inaccuracies in the pictures about which they complain.

Plan for Re-hiring 500 Disney Workers is Set

Washington—Formula for the re-hiring of an estimated 500 persons at the Walt Disney Studio was worked out between the Screen Cartoonists Guild and the Disney Studio with James F. Dewey, Federal mediator, according to announcement made by the Labor Department's conciliation service.

Members of the Disney force return to work on Monday. Dispute arose to which members would be re-employed after the recent strike. Agreement is said to provide for a proportionate re-hiring of strikers and non-strikers with consideration given to seniority and to special skills.

About 1,000 workers were on payroll before strike but it was claimed there would not be sufficient work for entire force.

The financial paper reported yesterday that the rise began on July 4 and, instead of being just a one-day windfall, became a permanent condition. Circuits, the Journal contended, doubled their hot-weather business over that of last year.

Increase is not limited to picture houses, the Journal declared, as the public is pouring out money for legitimate theater entertainment, horse racing, liquor, books and travel. The paper asserted that "good times are continuing."

Musicians union is also increasing scales generally to meet rising cost of living, while Local 5, Operating Engineers, is asking for increases also, but will probably not conclude a definite agreement until negotiations now under way for the operators' union are concluded. Both latter unions had a biennial contract which expired Sept. 1.

Stagehands' scale for straight pic houses remains unchanged, but overtime is increased 15c per hour to $1.50 and $1.75. Downtown pop-priced vaudefilm houses are raised $10 per man.

It was urged at the Camden meeting that the man appointed to act as "ambassador" should be a person who understands exhib. problems and not a man whose activities have been confined strictly to distribution activities.

Buffalo Theaters, Inc., operating company of the Shea chain, has intervened in the case.

Dipson asks that the Bailey Theater, nabe house, be given the same availability for pictures as it had before Dipson took it over in 1939. Before that, the Shea chain leased the theater.

ceeded with its inquiry into alleged war propaganda in films and radio before a packed audience in a Senate Office Building caucus room.

Charles Lindberg, Senator Bennett Champ Clark, D., Mo., Senator Dennis Chavez, D., N. M., and Senator Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., have been invited to appear in an International Forum short, the New York World-Telegram reported yesterday.

And the puncturing came, as was the case on the opening day, Monday, via the testimony of one of the two sponsors of the resolution which would authorize a full investigation, this time that of Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, D., Mo.

Follow-Through for Nye

Clark did the follow-through for Sen. Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., with a bitter, nasty tirade against the industry and some of its top executives—a tirade which ran the gamut from the charge that American theaters had been deliberately transformed "into 17,000 daily and nightly mass meetings for war" to the cry that execs. named were using "the instruments of the screen . . to poison the minds of the American people to go to war for their respective native countries."

(The Associated Press reported Clark as singling out Loew-Metro, Warners, 20th-Fox and United Artists for attack, and, indulging in personalities, cited particularly Alexander Korda and Charlie Chaplin. Other execs. cited by name, the AP said, were Nicholas M. Schenck, the Warner Brothers, Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl F. Zanuck and Henry Luce).

But Clark, under cross-examination by Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, D., Ariz., was forced to the humiliating admission as Nye before him that the Nye-Clark resolution was based almost wholly on hear-say evidence.

Clark admitted that he could recall having seen only one of the pictures complained of—Alexander Korda's UA release "That Hamilton Woman." He said he objected to that picture because it distorted some historical facts.

(Senator Nye Tuesday admitted that he had seen only two of the pictures on which his claims of war propaganda were based. And he could not specify the features of these pictures which caused him to label them as "vicious.")

The testimony of Clark further revealed that a lot of his contention against the movies was caused by inability of himself and friends to get as much time in the newsreels as they wanted. He said this was evidence of "monopoly" in the industry, an issue which is becoming more and more a feature of the hearings as the original charge breaks down under the able return fire of Wendell L. Willkie, industry counsel.

During the testimony by Clark, Nye and Willkie engaged in an exchange of stinging statements in which Nye accused Willkie of being "press agent" for the industry, and Willkie charged Nye with basing his charges against the industry on racial issues and other sentiments outside the sphere of the investigation.

(The Associated Press quoted Nye as saying:

"Mr. Willkie has chosen to make himself the press agent for the industry, whereas it was thought he was to be their attorney. His press releases are an excellent example of thorough carelessness and rough treatment of truth. He takes no end of liberty in representing me on things I have not said. But, knowing Willkie as I do I can be confident there will come a day when this is all over—when Willkie will say that what he said and did now was just a bit of campaign oratory.

"It does not become Mr. Willkie or those he represents to raise the charge of bigotry after what I did yesterday to bury this influence, which some, like Willkie, are determined to use to cover up the real and serious issue involved in this propaganda study.").

Demanding that the sub-committee stop the by-play on "questions of racial or national sentiment, financial interests, so-called monopoly or otherwise" Willkie pointed out that it was trying to determine the reasons for alleged propaganda before it had actually determined that propaganda exists. He demanded that before proceeding further, the committee investigate the films in question. And typically, his request was ignored.

Demands Calling of Mellett

Referring to remarks Tuesday by Nye which indicated belief the Administration has exerted pressure on the industry to produce propaganda films, Willkie said:

"Of course Senator Nye has no proof of this for the simple reason that the charge is completely untrue.

"But when such a charge is made by any United States Senator, there is great danger that it may be believed by the general public which has no opportunity for personal investigation. Senator Nye obviously had no proof but he did mention Lowell Mellett, director of the Office of Government Reports, in connection with his charge. I now publicly ask the Senate sub-committee to call to the witness stand at once Lowell Mellett."

This request, too, was ignored by the sub-committee.

During the hearing yesterday, Willkie, after another vain attempt for permission to ask questions of witnesses, requested that the industry at least be permitted to call its witnesses in order. Even this request was denied, Chairman D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, announcing that the committee would call witnesses in any order it sees fit.

In this connection, Chairman Clark announced following the hearing that John T. Flynn, financial columnist for the World-Telegram, and a member of America First Committee, will be the witness today. Thus Flynn, who has been bitterly opposed to the President's international policy, was revealed as the "mystery" witness whose identity has been withheld for so long.

Order of Witnesses

Flynn has some standing as an economist, but just what he knows about the motion picture industry no one was prepared to say. Some suggested that perhaps that is the "mystery" about him.

After Flynn is heard the committee is expected to adjourn for the week-end. Jimmie Fidler and George Fisher, both radio commentators on films, will testify Monday and will be followed by Nicholas M. Schenck, Harry M. Warner, Barney Balaban and Lieut. Col. Darryl F. Zanuck in the order named.

During Champ Clark's testimony, Chairman Clark repeatedly had to warn the audience against outbreaks of applause as Willkie attempted to become a part of the hearings. Clark warned the gathering after a particularly prolonged "win with Willkie" demonstration that he might clear the room if such demonstrations continued, adding that he would not have the hearing "turned into a circus." Some industry members on hearing this remarked grimly that it "never had been anything else."

Clark attempted to meet the issue raised by Willkie that the instigators of the probe were hitting at freedom of expression, which, as Willkie pointed out, is a constitutional right. Clark said in essence that since motion pictures are capable of reaching so many people at once and that since control can be vested in the hands of a few people, the issue is changed entirely.

Can Reach 80,000,000-Audience

"Any man, any group of men, who can get control of the screen can reach in this country every week an audience of 80 million people," he said. "If there is a great debate before the nation involving its economic life or, even its liberties, no man can get a syllable in the sound pictures save by the grace of the men who control the sound pictures.

"And I here formally and deliberately charge that a handful of men have gotten possession of both the radio microphone, and the moving picture screen. And that men and women in America, discussing the great problems of America, can use these machines or not, only by the grace of this small oligarchy."

Evidently unaware of the New York consent decree, Clark brought up the old issue of block-booking and said that through this practice the producers are able to control all the theaters in the country. Willkie attempted to answer this charge, but was given no opportunity to do so.

(The Associated Press declared "Clark said that the movie producers apparently had decided to go into the field of propaganda and to attempt to mold the foreign affairs of the United States Govern-mnet. Recalling that President Roosevelt

EDITORIALS ASSAIL FILM INQUIRY

The Senate sub-committee's investigation of the industry was raked fore and aft editorially yesterday by New York dailies, with several Washington columnar commentators joining in. Highlights of the verbal volleys fired follow:

TIMES: ". . . the inquiry has its sinister aspects. . . . The present horseplay is a waste of time and a squandering of public funds." (Editorial caption: "The Movies and Free Speech.")

HERALD-TRIBUNE: "One notes that this little group of disaffected politicians . . . . is set, through an ex parte inquisition, to intimidate public expression on the screen and over the air . . . Messrs. Wheeler, Nye, et al, have unquestionably loosed a boomerang. . ." (Editorial caption: "Isolationist Boomerang.")

POST: "It is scandalous that the Senate majority has watched the subterfuge without protest . . . We call upon the Senate to restore order . . . A Senator who remains silent at this critical moment becomes a partner to the isolationist crime." (Editorial caption: "Senate Scandal.")

DAILY NEWS: "We look for this investigation to churn up a good deal of talk about anti-Semitism and pro-Semitism in the United States. There has been a lot of hush-hush talk on this subject of late. Perhaps a little ventilation of the question will do good." (Editorial caption: "What is Anti-Semitism?")

BROOKLYN EAGLE: "Does Senator Nye feel that the movies, the radio, the newspapers and every one else should swallow their detestation of a regime that is opposed to everything for which America stands?" (Editorial caption: "The Movie Inquiry.")

PM: "Actually, they (the sub-committee) might ask, in these times when the Fascist assault so clearly threatens everything democratic and American, have only 50 out of 1,100 Hollywood motion pictures dared to show the people the face of the enemy, and hang the rogues' gallery tag on him?" (Editorial caption: "Hollywood's Crime.")

Examine Pictures, Not Witnesses, Willkie Asks

Two Radio Commentators, Jimmy Fidler, Geo. Fisher, Will be Heard On Monday

"'But I warn the President of the United States and I warn these men who are so pleased with the help the movies have given them that a moment may come when they may find the moving pictures on the other side of some grave national or international issue in which they are interested. They will not like it then.'")

(The Daily News quoted Clark as asking: "Does anyone see a pictorial representation of life in Russia under 'Bloody Joe' Stalin? They do not.")

In reply to persistent attempts from McFarland to find out what legislative remedy the Missourian might have in mind. Clark finally suggested the possibility that the Sherman Act might be amended. It has been indicated, in this connection, that Thurman W. Arnold, Assistant Attorney General, will be called before the committee later.

McFarland Challenges Clark

Challenging Clark on the subject cf propaganda pictures, McFarland pointed out that almost all pictures can be cited as propaganda for or against something. He added that a number of very fine pictures have been based on the scriptures and asked Clark what he would do about such pictures.

Clark said he wasn't talking about pictures like that, that he had in mind "vicious" propaganda pictures.

"And who was going to determine whether pictures are vicious or not?" McFarland asked. "After all, that is only a matter of opinion."

Clark pointed out that a number of states have set up censorship boards, but quickly denied that he would propose any such thing for the Federal Government.

McFarland checked Clark on statements that people went to the movies for relaxation and therefore were caught in a receptive frame of mind for propaganda.

Can Tell War Film by Its Title

"Anyone can tell a war picture by its title, and the advertising about it," he said. "If the public doesn't want to go to see it, it doesn't have to."

In a heated challenge to the committee's jurisdiction and method of procedure, and reply to the testimony which Nye gave Tuesday, Willkie asked that the committee "reconsider" the exact purpose which its members believe these hearings are designed to serve, and added:

"All members of the committee will agree that, assuming any proper purpose, they will have one single function at the conclusion of their hearings—namely, to report back to the Senate whether or not in their opinion there is any reasonable ground for the Senate to authorize an investigation of any dissemination of propaganda by the motion picture and radio industries to influence public sentiment in the direction of participation by the United States in the present war.

"Now it is clear that at the very most the whole question before the committee is the nature of the films produced by the industry. . . .

"The subjection of individuals to a public inquisition into the possible motives and grounds for suspicion as to why they did a thing should, upon all the principles which we know the members of the committee cherish, be withheld until there is reasonable ground for believing that the thing has in fact been done.

"It is clear that, always assuming any jurisdiction, the only thing which your Committee should consider is whether or not in its judgment the films themselves are of such a character or may have such an effect as to justify further inquiry and report accordingly.

"We therefore request that this committee terminate the hearing of witnesses and examine the sole evidence of commission of the acts charged—the pictures alleged to produce or to constitute acts to involve us in war. We therefore request that the Committee proceed immediately with an examination of the pictures involved."

In a subsequent statement Willkie struck back hard at the monopoly charge, inferring it was a "red herring." Willkie said:

"Senator Clark, lacking proof of his original cry of 'propaganda' has now drawn the usual red herring to cover up. He is now crying 'monopoly'. The facts here are simple, and Senator Clark knows them as well as does the Department of Justice. For two years, the Department of Justice, from 1938 to 1940, investigated the motion picture industry. The result was an agreement, entered into under the auspices of a Federal Court, which completely satisfied the Department of Government charged with enforcing the anti-trust laws. The industry has not violated, in any way, this agreement, and the Department of Justice has made no complaints concerning the conduct of the business. But, having failed to present any evidence on 'propaganda,' Senator Clark now tries to prejudice the public with his monopoly charge. After this charge falls of its own weight, the isolationists will have another charge, for they are obviously determined to use this opportunity to fight, with whatever weapons they can find, the foreign policy of their country."

Willkie urged that the pictures described by Nye and Clark as objectionable be screened for the committee after which, he said, he would ask the committee "to let us present witnesses who will testify from first-hand knowledge that these pictures describing Nazism and portraying the gallant war effort of the British are accurate."

In conclusion Willkie fired this parting shot:

"There is a basic issue involved in this hearing, the rights of an industry to freedom of expression and the rights of individuals to think as they please. This is as important as anything in our way of life. I think the time has come to end the sport of United States Senators badgering and threatening unprotected witnesses on the one hand, and refusing to allow those who are being accused from having a hearing. Destroying reputations by whim and fancy, on the part of Senators, is not a fitting role for elected representatives of the people."

Senator Pepper Fires 2nd Volley at Probers

Senator Claude Pepper, D., Fla., who assailed the Senate film inquiry as "vicious" Tuesday in addressing the SETOA in Jacksonville, fired a second volley at the Senate sub-committee yesterday. He was quoted by the World-Telegram as accusing Senator Gerald P. Nye of having spurred the probe by his anti-Semitism.

"I am afraid Senator Nye, being the introducer of the resolution and because of the speech he has made assaulting the motion picture industry primarily because some of its members are Jewish and secondly because he didn't like their attitude," Senator Pepper said, accordin gto the World-Telegram.

PROBE HAS FOUR GOALS—KROCK

Writing under the heading, "The Movies Go Before a Kangaroo Court," Arthur Krock, distinguished Washington columnist of the New York Times, said in an editorial page pillar devoted to the industry probe:

"From what has been said by the prosecutor-plaintiffs-judges (a Congressional committee member often acts as all three), the following are among the suspected activities of the moviemakers which their critics hope to disclose:

"(a) Although labeled 'newsreels,' which name prepares the spectator to assume he is to see an impartial array of facts, this product has been doctored to distort the facts, or present them unilaterally for a propaganda purpose.

"(b) Producers, directors and writers who have attempted to make objective entertainment films dealing with the war and American wartime policy have been forced to sacrifice that objectivity to a planned campaign to advance the day of this country's intervention in the war.

"(c) By monopolistic control of the industry and its exhibitors, these things have been made possible, and independent production and presentation have been stifled.

"(d) The Administration, in exchange for planned movie propaganda, has been lenient in enforcing legal restrictions against violations of the anti-trust and other laws by the industry."

PLAIN TALK

. . . about equipment

By GEORGE H. MORRIS

Equipment Editor, THE FILM DAILY

JUST the other day an article in The Rural New Yorker came to our attention. It was titled "Our 'Bang-Up' Apple Crop." We quote, because what was said is very pertinent to the film exhibitor:

"When the housewife goes to a store to buy apples, she may be attracted by some well-colored, smooth, shiny specimens, and a sale is made. She may also see some banged-up apples, even well-grown, large, and red, but she is not impressed. She may want apples, but she doesn't need them badly enough to buy such stuff, so a sale is lost . . ."

ADMITTEDLY, there is a wide physical difference between apples and film entertainment, but nevertheless they have a decided common denominator. Both are commodities in the public eye, and are offered to the public purse.

Now, The Rural New-Yorker's article points out that bruised fruit means lower grade, and if quality is maintained through careful handling, profits will accrue as a result. The same thing is true of film entertainment, as it is purveyed, or "handled," through the medium of careful projection, which is to say modern projection, and proper maintenance thereof.

SCREENGOERS are the public. They buy apples. They buy movies. And it is patently ridiculous to think that they aren't just as finicky about one commodity as they are about another. They don't want "bruised" fruit. They don't want "bruised" projection. Any other assumption would be to embrace the tenet that any old mechanism will serve in the booth; any kind of projection lighting is good enough; and any kind of a screen satisfactory. We all know different, and so does John Q. Public, his spouse,—and even the youngsters who plunk down their coin at the b.o.

The grocer or fruiterer who sells bruised fruit doesn't vend it at the same price-scale which prevails for sound merchandise. He makes a mark-down. Does the exhibitor, when he offers "bruised" projection? No. But there is a mark-down of which he has no tangible index. It's that people in his community, in an unknown proportion, shun his theater or at least set up a mental resistance to film attendance. We should like to have a small swatch of the money which is lost to theatermen annually through causes which they cannot put their fingers on,—or won't. It is just unfortunate that this condition is so. Otherwise the national "take" would be greater than it is, and, by the same token, so would public interest in film entertainment.

MANY, many housewives, and others, say to the storekeeper or the clerk, "No, I won't take those apples." Whether the mart is small or large, such public taste is noted and heeded. Alas! those who find "bruised" projection, sound, et al, in their community or nabe theaters don't voice their refusals to buy badly-presented film entertainment to the owner of the house or any attache. They just keep their feelings to themselves, and the b.o. loses something it should have HAD.

THERE is no room in filmland for "banged-up," inadequate equipment. There should be substituted for it,—and quickly,—equipment of the "bang-up" type. Nothing but the best ever satisfies the best of showmen.

Interstate In Shift Of Circuit Personnel

Houston — Several personnel changes were evidenced in the opening of the new Village Theater, latest of Interstate Circuit's neighborhood exhibs. here. At the same time, Paul Hudgins, circuit employe, became manager at the Almeda, while Tommy Howeel, formerly Almeda manager, moved to the Tower in the same role.

Fireworks and other fanfare marked the Village opening. Merchants of the area, one of Houston's most exclusive, took part. Ceremonies were broadcast.

The Village is of modern design architecturally, its lines being strong and simple. The lobby is modernistic, with a long foyer, and indirect pastel lighting.

Seats are cushioned with new bubble foam sponge rubber. Every other row contains "love seats."

The Village will operate on a policy of four changes of program weekly.

1881 — 1941

This is our sixtieth year of service in the field of carbon arc lighting. Throughout the years "National" carbons, by constant research and development, have been steadily improved and adapted to the needs of the times.

● The most satisfactory projection of modern films requires a white light of daylight quality. This means high intensity projection. Color that is really natural — snappy black and white — comfortable vision at all times assure audience satisfaction which spells success for any theatre.

The modern "One Kilowatt" arcs bring High Intensity projection within the reach of any small theatre. If you are still using Low Intensity projection ask your dealer to demonstrate this new light. The difference is marvelous. Step into High — It pays dividends.

deficiencies by prompt action and the evolving of substitute materials. Some of the findings are as follows:

Warner Bros.: There is a shortage in lumber but studio anticipated that and ordered a large supply. Resin used in making "breakaway" glass and plastic have been placed on the priority list, as well as high-speed tools. Wardrobe and makeup departments unaffected as yet;

M-G-M: Finding it difficult to obtain all metal products, including aluminum and steel girders for construction purposes, although they stocked up nine months ago when they figured materials would be hard to get. There is no artificial or real hair available for wigs. They are now experimenting with a new chemical invented by Jack Dawn which is used in plastic for wigs. Wardrobe department is, of course, unable to obtain sequins which they used in all their big musical numbers to make the costumes glitter, they are having to make a change there and are using materials with as much sheen as possible in the cloth. Silk will soon be a problem as they expect shortages there shortly;

RKO Radio: Admits to no pinch at the moment and while they claim to have no great stock of any particular materials which are used in defense industries they anticipate no great difficulty in getting supplies, however, it is to be noted that for the first time in the history of the company RKO's buyers of costume material are going direct to New York to make their purchases from the manufacturer rather than wait for salesmen to visit the Coast as they have done in previous years;

Republic Sees Shortages

Republic: Running into difficulty on their building construction program due to the shortage of construction steel, lumber and plywood. Also shortage foreseen in tubes for sound equipment. Experimenting on substitutes. Also a shortage of certain kinds of copper and brass;

Universal: Serious shortage in steel and other metals, but as they point out, the movies have never been "stuck" yet. Certain chemicals are unobtainable and others hard to get. Lumber is harder to get in large quantities. Cotton goods are scarce, including burlap which is used in great quantities, but they have enough on hand to last for some time. While building materials are harder and harder to get, including nails, chicken wire, they won't be without them unless the Government starts a heavier building program on the Coast;

Camera Equip. Is Worry

20th Century-Fox: The only department at Fox really complaining of a pinch is the camera department. They claim it is absolutely impossible to get new camera equipment or machined parts. To overcome this modernize the Capitol Theater; $50,000 for the reconstruction and modernization of the Rialto Theater; $10,000 for redecoration of the Princess Theater, and $5,000 for redecoration of the Hipp Theaters.

The Capitol project will be the most extensive of the four jobs. Howard V. Martin, president of the T. S. Martin Realty, revealed that it means a new house to be constructed from the street to the moving picture screen.

A novel process of construction will be followed at the Capitol so the theater may remain in operation most of the time the work is under way.

The general contract for the Capitol job has been let to the W. A. Klinger Construction Co., low bidder on the job. Other contracts for modernization were awarded to low bidders as follows: Interior decoration, carpeting, etc., to the T. S. Martin Co.; plumbing, V. J. Hagan Plumbing Co.; electrical work to the Electric Engineering Co.

Numerous new features, developed since the building was erected in 1918, are to be incorporated into the new Capitol, including some that are not found even in theaters recently constructed in the country.

Virtually New Rialto

At the Rialto, only the four walls of the present structure will remain when the job is completed. A complete new theater will be built and nothing used in the present house will remain. Plans call for a complete new front, new interior decorations, new seats and new sound equipment. The theater will be given a new name to be selected by the public.

At the Princess, where $10,000 is to be spent, the improvements will include complete redecorating, improved sound equipment and complete harmony of design in the blending of new carpets, silks and paints.

At the Hipp, $5,000 will be spent on redecorating, new seats and front modernization.

All of the contracts will be let to Sioux City firms on low bids wherever possible, according to Martin. An interior designer from Chicago will draw the plans, however, and direct the redecoration of all four theaters.

In announcing the expenditure for remodeling of the houses, Martin, and G. Ralph Branton, general manager for Tri-States, indicated their faith in the future for movie picture houses in Sioux City and their desire to have the city with a top spot in modern equipment and theater service.

RKO Buys Proj. Equip.

Chicago — The RKO Screening Room here is getting new RCA Photophone sound under a contract negotiated by RKO Radio Pictures, Inc. An 11-year-old Photophone system is being traded in on the new equipment.

New Houses Assured Says John Eberson

motion picture houses through the use of substitute materials, which, properly employed, will serve admirably the demands of circuits, individual exhibitors, and the public for theaters embodying excellent construction features and details.

Eberson declared that already the patriotic architect, manufacturer and engineer have jut their brains to work to capitalize on their own abilities to evolve substitute materials and construction in order to alleviate the problems of the national defense program.

Conversely, he added, the Government should certainly encourage, in any event, the construction of new theaters, as well as the remodeling of existing ones, because this is a vital matter in national morale and concerns the happiness and well-being of the men in service as well as keeping serene the civilian population.

Theaters Held Essential

Soldiers and sailors, he pointed out, are not going to be satisfied with only film entertainment in camp theaters, and, accordingly look forward to the healthy diversion which motion picture attendance brings on furlough. Neither the attendance at camp movies nor at stands in the immediate vicinity of training centers provides an essential change of environment. Accordingly, theaters should continue to be maintained in top shape and their numbers increased in all localities to encourage service attendance, as well as that of the public which is under mental and physical strain.

Exhibition interests, Eberson said, are willing to make investments in houses, and, in turn, deserve consideration from official circles because of the good which theaters can do. A considerable increment of this good is now apparent through the wholesome entertainment and information on world events which is being imparted by films in those sections where industrial expansion has dislocated large segments of the nation's population, as well as in communities unaffected by population changes.

Link Sells North Side

Houston—The North Side Theater here was purchased from Dr. H. R. Link, Palestine, for $10,650 in a recent transaction. Sam Kirchheimer, owner of the building, was buyer. The property is 200 x 100 feet.

Theater Fires

Abbeville, Ga.—Fire that broke out in the projection room of the Pal Theater here caused about $5,000 damage to the theater and a store next door. The crowded theater was emptied with little confusion, according to the management.

Newsreel Circuit's Expansion Stimulated By Fans Rooting to See Nazis Get Trimmed

San Francisco—It is understood here that Ellis Levy of San Francisco's Telenews Theater, who also has a deal set to take over the Arcade in Los Angeles, is further dickering for locations in San Diego and the Pacific Northwest to build up a newsreel chain. Heavy West Coast boom in newsreel houses is figured to be due almost solely to war conditions. Levy's experience is that outstanding war scoops, "British Smash Italian Fleet," "Russians Stop Germans," etc., drag in the customers. Incidentally, newsreel fans have, it is said, a decided tendency to plunk down their cash to see the Nazis get it in the neck. Other way around is no dough for the B. O.

Loew's and Warners In Exchange of Houses

Wilmington, Del.—Final negotiations were completed Monday afternoon between representatives of Loew's, Inc., and the Stanley-Warner Theaters for the former to take over the Aldine Theater, 808 Market St., on a 10-year lease effective Sept. 26. E. J. Doob, manager of Loew's Theater—the Parkway—on Delaware Ave. near Adams St., announced the transaction.

At the same time Warners will take over the Parkway on a 10-year lease.

The concluding conference was held in New York City with Joseph R. Vogel representing Loew's and Joseph Bernhardt signing for Warners.

Doob said that the move gives his company a house of almost double the present Loew's seating capacity. The Delaware Ave. theater seats 1,024 as compared to 1,800 at the Market St. house.

Extensive remodeling, renovating, and redecoration costing $100,000 will be carried out by his company, Doob disclosed. The latest projection equipment and a completely new sound system will be installed.

The remodeling will include reseating of much of the downtown theater. Modern rest rooms will be constructed.

New Norwood Under Way

Detroit—Construction work is being started on the new Norwood Theater, replacing one just razed by street widening on Woodward Ave. by Associated Theaters. Hyde and Williams are architects. Building will be constructed with an outstanding tile front.

Long Sign Co. has the contract for a marquee and a vertical sign which will be integral with the front.

Richard W. Kemper, former manager of Dipson's 20th Century, downtown first-run house, is vice-president of Playhouse, Inc., and Andrew Gibson, long a Dipson associate, is secretary-treasurer. Kemper becomes manager of the Erlanger, succeeding Robert Stevenson, who was resident manager for United Booking Office, New York, which operated the house for the Statler interests.

Dipson said outstanding motion pictures and other entertainment booked independently would supplement the UBO schedule of about a score of dramatic and musical shows. He hopes to operate the theater continuously and to introduce Summer stock beginning next June.

The new company, in possession of the house since Sept. 1 under verbal agreement, has begun a $30,000 renovation program, including air-conditioning, decoration, acoustical engineering and re-upholstering.

The Erlanger, built in 1927 at a cost of $650,000. is assessed on the tax roles at $250,000, Kemper said.

quarters in 1928 from the more centrally-located Chicago to its present general offices in New York contributed greatly to the company's ability to serve its customers better. Like all young organizations, it went through its growing pains, and while they seemed almost insoluble in Chicago, from the prospective of New York they assumed their proper proportion and were recognized as part of the company's development.

The original 54 equipment and supply houses had become 31 branches in the National set-up; the multiplicity and duplication of much of the merchandise was eliminated and National was beginning to make its original purpose of greater service to exhibitors an actuality. Company was fortunate in its upward march over the 15-year span to have the advantage of executive ability and experience of such men as Walter E. Green, Oscar S. Oldknow, R. B. LaRue, Harry and Ben Blumberg, N. C. Haefele, the late J. I. Roberts, Arthur de Stefano, A. T. Crawmer, J. J. Morgan, E. B. Morton, the late Don Smith, B. A. Benson, Herman Hunt, J. W. Shreve and J. C. Brown.

Unique Personnel Policy

In only one respect is National old-fashioned, and that in the fact that it really holds its people as a result of its personnel relations policy. More than half of all National's employes range from eight to 15 years in the company's service.

Currently, the organization has two less branches, 29, than it had in 1926, and is more compact and efficient. It has achieved a maturity by virtue of the many thousands of National equipment installations, through innumerable after-hours responses to exhibitors' requests for emergency service under all sorts of conditions. It has pioneered introduction of such equipment as the Simplex High One-Killowatt Arc; Simplex E-7 with one-shot lubrication and double shutters; Simplex Four-Star Sound with extended volume range and one basic sound head; the Walker Plastic Molded Screen; and a host of others.

Finances Customer Purchases

National has its own finance affiliate for the financing of its customers' installment purchases. It has a unique Equipment Loan Service, backed by a half-million dollars worth of special projection equipment that gives exhibitors over 1,000,000 hours of emergncy service every year, absolutely free. Its manual on Projection Room Planning is the standard of the industry. It has held in various cities a series of educational meetings for projectionists, designed to acquaint these craftsmen with the newest developments in projection. Sales representatives of the company, in the service of America's exhibitors, annually travel an average of 1,400,000 miles, or the equivalent of a journey around the world every 6½ days.

Men at the helm of the company in 1941 are chiefly those who were directing its initial progress in 1926. Walter E. Green, originally vice-president in 1926 and later, in 1928, made president, is still president today. Oscar Oldknow was then and is now vice-president. R. B. LaRue is secretary. Many of the company's branch managers were branch managers when National became an entity in 1926.

tion and discontinued the hearing.

Bill of complaint was brought against Warner Bros., Twentieth Century-Fox and Wilmer & Vincent, charging them with conspiring to take one-half of the Fox product from the plaintiff's Astor Theater in Reading and to sell it to Wilmer & Vincent's Embassy Theater.

The testimony lasted over a period of four days in which Ted Schlesinger, zone manager of the Warner Theaters in the Philadelphia area, Rudolph Weiss of the Warner real estate department, William Sussman, Eastern sales manager of Twentieth Century-Fox, Edgar Moss, Philadelphia district manager of Fox, Joseph Eagan, general manager of Wilmer & Vincent Enterprises, and the plaintiff, Harry Schad, all of whom were called as witnesses by the plaintiff, were examined.

It was after the cross-examination of the plaintiff, Harry Schad, by defense counsel that his attorney asked the Court to permit him to withdraw the motion for a preliminary injunction.

The Astor Theater is presently being operated under a pooling agreement by Jay Emanuel, a theater operator and trade paper publisher, and Frank McNamee, former Philadelphia branch manager of RKO, both of whose names were prominently mentioned in the testimony.

Flynn Warns Industry Against its "Monopoly"

DID FLYNN "GHOST" FOR CLARK?

Text of Wendell L. Willkie's statement, issued in Washington yesterday, replying to the charges made by John T. Flynn before the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee:

"John Flynn's testimony is merely a redraft of Senator Clark's of yesterday, or perhaps he wrote them both.

"The old monopoly humbug is dragged out again to divert momentarily attention from the real object of the investigation—the sabotage of the country's foreign policy.

"The Government represented by Thurman Arnold and others did complain that there was a monopoly in the distribution of motion pictures. The matter was submitted to a Federal court. The Court in November, 1940, ordered the motion picture companies to distribute their pictures under a set of rules which required the companies to furnish their pictures to all theaters whether or not owned by the producing companies.

"Both Senator Clark and Mr. Flynn are speaking of a problem entirely solved. They made no claim the Federal decree is being violated. They merely recite a situation no longer existing.

"The question before the Committee, if any, is whether the companies are producing improper pictures. Let's see the pictures and discontinue the bunk."

Willkie Charges Monopoly Dragged in to Hide Real Purpose of the Inquiry

gating charges of war propaganda in films.

In Willkie's words: "The old monopoly humbug is dragged out again to divert, momentarily, attention from the real object of the investigation—the sabotage of the country's foreign policy."

Wendell L. Willkie told THE FILM DAILY last night he was undecided whether he will ask the Senate sub-committee to appear as a witness. Willkie said:

"If I do you can put it down I won't request that no one be permitted to cross-examine me. They can cross-examine me all they want, and hire all the attorneys they want to help them do it."

Willkie let go with both barrels as the industry turned on the heat, and how! in replying to the further charges—actually they were essentially a repetition of what had been alleged before—preferred by John T. Flynn, self-styled expert on propaganda, newspaper and magazine writer on economy and finance, and last, but scarcely least, chairman of the American First Committee in New York.

John T. Flynn Issues "Warning"

Flynn, who jumped like a Rocky Mountain goat from monopoly allegations to charges the industry "is using the screen in a concerted effort to make propaganda for the involvement of the U. S., in this war," attained the height of something or other when he cried:

"I see in Hollywood and its monopoly of a great instrument of culture, something very closely resembling that kind of thinking which I understand as Fascism.

"And I warn these gentlemen who dominate the movies that the time will come, if they persist in their present policy, and particularly if they succeed in their ventures to get this country into this war in Europe to wreak vengeance when there will be a government in the United States which will take over the industry or police it and dominate it and use it for its own ends.

"So I warn them that while they are hating Hitler, not to forget to hate Fascism, too."

Willkie's statement had the right answer to that, too:

"The question before the Committee, if any, is whether the companies are producing improper pictures. Let's see the pictures and discontinue the bunk."

Again, for a third day, Willkie had an able and gallant lieutenant in his counter-attack in the person of Sen. Ernest McFarland, D., Ariz., who probably will go down in Congressional annals as "Wheeler's Great Mistake." One of the five members of the Interstate Commerce Committee hand-picked for the sub-committee by its chairman, McFarland is proving about as tasty to the isolationist palate as a cup of whale oil.

McFarland Riddles the Inquiry

Time and again, McFarland riddled the inquiry with verbal shafts that pierced the weak armor of Flynn yesterday. McFarland turned the spotlight on Flynn's America First affiliation, and asked whether members of the German-American Bund had not been advised to join the committee.

"If you are insinuating that the American First Committee of New York is in any way connected with the Bund," Flynn retorted, "you are grossly misinformed."

Replying to another question by McFarland, Flynn declared:

"I'm not friendly to the Bund and you must know that, Senator."

"To tell you the truth," McFarland retorted, "I don't know much about you."

"That's your fault Senator," Flynn responded.

"Are you so important a man that everyone should know about you?" McFarland inquired.

"No," said Flynn, "but I imagine my name gets in the papers as often as Senator McFarland's."

"Yes," McFarland agreed, "but I'm not trying to get my name in the paper."

"How did you get elected to the Senate?" Flynn asked. "By hiding behind the bushes?"

(The INS reported that "as Flynn began his testimony, Willkie commented on the statement of Sen. Bennett Clark (D., Mo.) who testified Wednesday, that he would be quite willing for Willkie to cross examine him.

"'Senator Clark is very brave now that he is not on the witness stand,' and Willkie, smiling. 'The reason I have to make statements to the press. about which he complains, is because the committee won't permit me to make them to it.'")

Flynn, who told the committee that he is an expert on propaganda, based his attack primarily on the monopoly angle. He charged that it is "the duty of Congress to break up this monopoly" and asked for a broader investigation to "determine whether control of the industry is vested simply in the hands of a very few, or whether there is actually a king of the movie industry lurking about somewhere."

Replying to contentions by Willkie that instigators of the investigation might be seeking censorship of the industry, Flynn said that the industry already has censorship of its own making, and assailed the Hays organization as a powerful one which might be used for evil as well as for good.

The witness quoted Walter Lippmann, the D of J, and others to prove his contention of monopoly. Later, when he finally got around to the propaganda charge, he quoted extensively to demonstrate that some members of the industry do believe it is indulging in propaganda, and that these members are opposed to it.

Charges Foreign Policy Sabotage

During Flynn's testimony, Willkie issued the statement characterizing the proceedings as "bunk," and charging that the real object of the investigation is sabotage of the country's foreign policy.

Willkie implied belief that the America Firster might be the "brains" that has worked behind the scenes to inspire the whole business. He cited similarity between Flynn's address and that Wednesday of Senator Clark, and suggested that perhaps Flynn "wrote them both."

While not advocating Government censorship, Flynn told the committee he believes "censorship by a private monopoly" is even worse.

McFarland, Who May Be "Wheeler's Great Mistake" Grills "Mystery Witness"

"And this is precisely what we have," he charged. "We have a censorship of the pictures and it is possible only because this monopoly is in the hands of the producers, a power which they can exercise whenever they choose to do so."

Flynn reviewed the "decency" movement which resulted in formation of the MPPDA, and described its workings.

"However high the purpose, that is censorship and like all censorships and restraining devices, it begins in a perfeclty high purpose and frequently ends in a thoroughly bad one," he continued.

"There is censorship already in existence, and if you can have censorship for the morals of the movies imposed by a handful of private individuals, at what point does this censorship cease?"

Says Hays Banned Anti-Fascist Pic

Flynn said that back in 1936, Will Hays banned production of "It Can't Happen Here" after M-G-M had purchased the book, Lionel Barrymore siged for the lead, and Sidney Howard signed to do the scenario. He says Hays suppressed the picture "on the grounds it was anti-Fascist."

Flynn disclosed he was "informed" that a producer had scuttled plans for producing a picture based on the life of John Paul Jones on the grounds "it wouldn't do to have a picture showing an American naval hero knocking over British ships."

The witness said the nation would be considerably worried if all newspapers in the country fell into the hands of five or six persons, but that there had been little concern over the movies because previously they had devoted themselves to entertainment. The worry now comes because they have now become a forum of discussion which presents only the interventionists' side of the story.

"Take this powerful monopoly and break it up," Flynn cried. "It is the duty of Congress to break it up."

On the propaganda side, Flynn said it is not a question of whether the pictures portray facts as they exist.

(The AP said that "Willkie thereupon gave reporters a handwritten statement asserting: 'John Flynn's admission that he was not complaining that the pictures portrayed other than the truth eliminates the sole remaining excuse for the continuance of the hearing.'")

Flynn then went on to charge that the movies do distort facts. He cited the case of "Disraeli" which portrayed the British Prime Minister is a "a nice-tempered, mild-mannered old daddy."

"There is no particular reason for falsifying this story. It is done merely to make a scene a little bit better and more striking," he said.

Charges Films Has Its Own Censorship by a Few

"Take This Powerful Monopoly and Break It Up," John Flynn Demands

"And if these gentlemen will falsify history, remote history, for no more reason than that, what will they do with the record of current events when their emotions are involved and they have an objective to attain over the public mind?"

Sees Hollywood Proud of Its Power

Flynn asserted Hollywood has "been proud of its power for propaganda," and cited statements by Jack Warner that the power of the screen would be used in promoting solidarity of the Americas.

"Of course, if Mr. Warner can use the screen to propagandize Americanism, he can use it to propagandize any brand of Americanism that happens to suit his fancy," he said. "And the screen magnate's idea of Americanism may turn out to be quite fantastic. After all, the Americanism of Hollywood and the Americanism of America may not be quite the same, the Hollywood way of life is not the American way of life."

In response to a tirade by Flynn against the movie "monopoly" and the New York consent decree, McFarland asked the witness whether he didn't think Thurman W. Arnold, Assistant Attorney General, a capable man and that the situation was in competent hands.

Flynn replied tht he thought Arnoul "adequate" but that he doesn't have "adequate" machinery to cope with "monopoly." He added that he disagreed with Arnold on the consent decree method of solving the problem.

The witness indicated he would be in favor of some sort of regulation, such as that applied to radio, that would cause the industry to give time to both sides of a question.

McFarland asked him then if the whole basis of the probe was because Flynn and other isolationists have not secured as much time on newsreels as he would like. Flynn asserted that his associates had been given no time at all. McFarland reminded him that Senator Wheeler had been on newsreels several times.

McFarland insisted again that the committeee "see the pictures" in question. Flynn agreed but said he thought they should have all data pertaining to creation of the picture. He suggested that the Senator might "like to see propagandists at work."

McFarland snapped back:

"I think I have seen one today," he quipped, and the audience roared.

The Blacklisted Pictures

As part of his testimony Flynn read a long list of pictures which are on the isolationists' "blacklist" as insidious propaganda pictures. These included: "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," "Dispatch from Reuters," "Dive Bomber," "Murder in the Air," and "Underground," all by Warner Bros.; "Convoy," and "Nurse Edith Cavell," by RKO; "Escape," "Flight Command," "Mortal Storm," "Sky Murder," and "Washington Melodrama," by M-G-M; "Escape to Glory," "Madmen of Europe," "Missing Ten Days," by Columbia; "Phantom Submarine," "They Dare Not Love," "This is England," and "Voice in the Night,' by Columbia; "Foreign Correspondent," by Walter Wanger; "War in the Desert," "Men of Lightship 61," "The Man I Married," "Manhood," and "Four Sons," by 20th Century-Fox; "One Night in Lisbon," "Mystery Sea Raider," "I Wanted Wings," by Paramount; also the following British pictures:

"After Mein Kampf," "Anzacs in Action," "Blackout," "British Intelligence," "Birthplace of America," "U-Boat 29," "Pastor Hall," "North Sea Patrol," "Night Train," "The Lion Has Wings."

Inquiry's Base "Vicious," Ellis Tells M. P. Associates

Asserting the whole fabric of the Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee investigation of the industry had "a vicious base," Emil K. Ellis, attorney, lambasted yesterday the activities of Senators Wheeler, Nye and Clark before a luncheon meeting of the Motion Picture Associates at the Hotel Lincoln.

Ellis said the Senators were using the investigation as a "publicity vehicle for their own type of America First propaganda." He declared the latest effort to ruin the industry would fail and characterized the investigation as "stupid and most ridiculous."

Main business at the luncheon was the discussion of the program advertising for the 21st annual dinner and dance which will be held Nov. 19 at the Hotel Astor. The committee raised $1,000 from the small gathering present.

Joe Lee, president, appointed a house committee to supervise activities at the clubrooms at the Hotel Lincoln consisting of Dave Levy, chairman, Jack Ellis, Dave Stern, Si Seymour, Lou Preston, Lou Goldberg and Moe Sanders.

REVIEWS OF THE NEW FILMS

"Smilin' Through" with Jeanette MacDonald, Brian Aherne, Gene Raymond

M-G-M 100 Mins.

HANDSOME PRODUCTION IN TECHNICOLOR OF TRAGIC ROMANCE HAS HIGH NOSTALGIC APPEAL.

Metro has given the tender, tragic romance which Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin wrote for Broadway back in 1919 a handsome production, embellished by exquisite Technicolor, and with Jeanette MacDonald to sing such old favorites as "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Kerry Dance" and "There's a Long, Long Trail," this, the third screen version, has high nostalgic appeal to the sentimentalists comprising the older generation or generations.

What the reaction of the jitterbugs of 1941 will be—whether they will turn impatiently away, holding the current treatment of Donald Ogden Stewart and John Balderston lacking and the Cowl-Murfin play basically "dated"—only experience will determine.

Attractive sets and costumes make the production an optical treat. Film is well mounted throughout establishing a strong semblance to the British countryside. Producer Victor Saville for that can take a bow.

Soundest performance turned in by the trio of principals is registered by Gene Raymond. While Miss MacDonald is of good voice she hardly appears suited as the orphaned niece adopted by her aunt's lover. As the young nobleman who grows old with the memory of the lovely Irish girl he was to wed, and who was killed by a jealous suitor, Brian Aherne is satisfactory but never quite convincing when playing the old man.

Story shifts quickly to time of last war after Aherne adopts young niece of woman he loved. Son of man who murdered Aherne's sweetheart, played by Raymond, returns to his ancestral home and to join army. He soon falls in love with Miss MacDonald but the old man will never hear of it.

For the first time she hears from his lips the story of the tragedy. Film employs flashback method here to illustrate tragedy in Aherne's life. Love, however, of Raymond and Miss MacDonald is too strong and their romance continues.

Raymond feels he does not want to burden Miss MacDonald with a crippled lover when he returns wounded from the war. He feigns indifference to her love upon his return. Heartbroken, Miss MacDonald returns home and the old man, finally relenting, reveals Raymond is wounded and Miss MacDonald rushes to his side.

One of the more sterling portrayals is that of Ian Hunter as the Reverend and chess-playing friend of Aherne. Frances Robinson ably handles a small part as the maid.

Songs which Miss MacDonald sings beautifully are "Smiling Through," "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Kerry Dance," "A Little Love a Little Kiss," "There a Long, Long Trail," an operatic aria, "Ourve, Ton Coeur," and "Land of Hope and Glory."

"The Prime Minister" with John Gielgud, Diana Wynyard, Will Fyffe, Owen Nares, Fay Compton

Warners 94 Mins.

FLAWLESS FROM A PRODUCTION ANGLE BUT APPEAL LIMITED TO CLASS AUDIENCES.

Produced in England under difficult conditions, this picture emerges as an interesting historical study of Disraeli's political and romantic life but it lacks the action and pace expected by American audiences. It is essentially a class picture, but because of its historical importance it should receive the endorsement of educational groups.

John Gielgud, identified mainly with Shakespearean roles, is outstanding as Disraeli, delivering a powerful and convincing performance. Diana Wynyard, known to American audiences, is excellent as his wife.

Story spans the years from 1837 when Disraeli, a young and fashionable writer, enters politics at the suggestion of Mrs. Lewis (Diana Wynyard) who controls a borough and whom he eventually marries, to the late '70s. His struggles with Parliament and the final diplomatic move, that of avoiding war but maintaining "peace with honor," are unfolded dramatically. Casting, sets and direction are tops.

CAST: John Gielgud, Diana Wynyard, Will Fyffe, Owen Nares, Fay Compton, Pamela Standish, Stephen Murray, Frederick Leister, Nicholas Hannen, Anthony Ireland, Irene Browne.

CREDITS: Director, Thorold Dickinson; Screenplay, Michael Hogan and Brock Williams.

"Week-End in Havana" with Alice Faye, John Payne, Carmen Miranda, Cesar Romero

20th-Fox 80 Mins.

GAY AND FRISKY MUSICAL IN TECHNICOLOR; SHOULD GROSS NICELY IN ALL SITUATIONS.

William LeBaron's initial production for 20th-Fox is a successful one. He has produced a handsome and diverting musical which pleases all the way. Capable direction by Walter Lang is reflected by smooth manner in which film unreels.

Now that Ascap music returns to the air shortly, folks should be hearing a great deal of the songs composed by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren. It is one of the best jobs done by the tunesmiths.

Carmen Miranda is spotted in "The Nango," "A Week-End in Havana," and "When I Love I Love." She delivers strongly in all three. In addition, the Brazilian bombshell turns out to be quite a comedienne. Highlight of the film is "The Nango" production scene which comes at finale. Costumes of ensembles are colorful and attractive. Song introduces a catchy dance step.

Another Gordon and Warren song is a torch tune, "Tropical Magic," which Alice Faye renders most effectively. A novelty number, "The Man with the Lollypop Song," rounds out the Gordon and Warren contributions.

"Romance and Rhumba," by Gordon and James V. Monaco provides a swell song and dance number for Miss Faye and Cesar Romero. The latter does a swell bit of make-believe as the irresponsible Latin in search of wealthy heiresses.

Karl Tunberg and Darrell Ware have written an amusing script about the adventures of a Macy's shopgirl who spends her vacation in Havana at the expense of the steamship company when ship is grounded on a reef. John Payne is satisfactory as romantic lead while in supporting roles Cobina Wright, Jr., is nice to look at, and Leonard Kinsky, Sheldon Leonard and Billy Gilbert do their share in supplying comic relief.

CAST: Alice Faye, Carmen Miranda, John Payne, Cesar Romero, Cobina Wright, Jr., George Barbier, Leonard Kinsky, Sheldon Leonard, Billy Gilbert, Chris-Pin Martin.

Detroit Highway Plan Dooms Five Theaters

Detroit—Plans for a 300-foot wide highway along Hastings St., disclosed by City Treasurer Alfred E. Cobo, would wipe Detroit's East Side colored theater sector, mostly all-night houses. These include the Medbury, Warfield, Castle, Dunbar, and Arcade. Plans for a similar west side highway along Sixth St. would probably threaten the Coliseum, already slated for removal in a slum clearance project, and the Amo.

"Riders of the Purple Sage" with George Montgomery, Mary Howard Patsy Patterson

20th-Fox 56 Mins.

ACTION-LADEN WESTERN THAT IS SUCCESSFUL IN CATCHING FLAVOR OF ZANE GREY STORIES.

Cowboy fans will like this yarn. It is compact film containing a good measure of action in the way of hard riding and some fast shooting. As in all tales of the West, exploits of the hero, George Montgomery, are somewhat magnified but are in keeping with character.

James Tinling has done a good job of direction and screenplay by William Bruckner and Robert Metzler is a workmanlike job. Montgomery's performance is a good one and Mary Howard makes a satisfactory heroine. A small lass, Patsy Patterson, is a cute addition to the cast.

Montgomery plays part of Texas cowboy on the lookout for man who ran away with his married sister. He arrives at Arizona ranch owned by Miss Howard. Under the guise of vigilantism, Robert Barrat attempts to get control of ranch and water rights.

Barrat turns out to be man Montgomery is looking for. Latter eludes trap set for him and gets Barrat. Ending, however, has different turn. While Montgomery in order to save Miss Howard and girl starts an avalanche at entrance to a hidden valley, fate of trio goes unanswered. But it looks very promising.

CAST: George Montgomery, Mary Howard, Robert Barrat, Lynne Roberts, Kane Richmond, Patsy Patterson, Richard Lane, Oscar O'Shea.

Pix Terms Too High, Iowa Indies Charge

could be expected to continue until at least January and that the exhibitors planned to take only the product they can buy right and use showmanship to put over the older films.

The decision to wait for the "right" prices was reached at a meeting of exhibitors in Des Moines recently in connection with an Executive Board meeting of the Allied Theater Owners of Iowa and Nebraska.

It was contended at the meeting that exhibs. cannot pay over a top of 28 per cent for all film and still make a profit. The exhibitors claimed that the price had been jumped from 25 to 30 and now 35 per cent and expected the next blocks to go still higher.

At the meeting it was directed that all exhibitors in the territory be urged "to remember that film prices always are high at the beginning of the season; that to buy now at these prices will be setting a precedent you can't get away from and inviting certain and swift disaster; that after the first-run film gets old quickly you can get the playdates."

Dime Lunch Hour Show For Ilion Arms Workers

Monday a noontime "recreation hour." The theater will offer 50 minutes of selected shorts. Remington Arms plant employes will be permitted to bring their lunches to the theater with them and eat while watching the shorts. The admission will be 10 cents.

Failes is getting all sorts of praise for the show from Remington Arms officials, the mayor and civic leaders, because the unloosing of so many men at noon has caused a minor "traffic problem" in Ilion. The noon-hour movies will get them off the streets, it is believed.

Remington heads are co-operating in every way, inserting announcements in pay envelopes and giving Failes poster space at the plant. If the show is a success here, it will be put on in other Schine situations where there are defense plants.

Consent Decree Hit In Midwest Decision to restrain the defendant from interfering with the plaintiff's right to compete for the purchase of any films, to prevent the defendants from restraining any distributor from negotiating with the plaintiff and to restrain Cohen Bros., Co-operative members, from buying more films than normally used for the Roxy and Mayfair Theaters, setting quota at two double-feature changes per week under the present policies.

In criticizing the consent decree Judge Picard said:

"Weakness of consent decree is that it seeks solution of situation presenting at least three main viewpoints by reflecting only two. There is a three-cornered relation in the picture industry, between producer and exhibitor, between exhibitors' relation to division of product, clearance and protection, and both situations as to Government concerning violation of the Sherman and Clayton laws.

Urges National Zoning Board

"We feel that national board of zoning, clearance and protection with regional offices throughout the U. S. might well be set up with carefully chosen membership so that various delicate problems in a very complicated industry could be given proper consideration. Powers of that board should be manifold since there is need for a program instituted by Government along those lines. In addition, the industry itself should devote further time to study of means of self-improvement."

The court states that the trial included an inquiry into all phases of the picture industry to allow full information as basis for decision, but confined actual decision to four legal points.

1. "Defendants are engaged in interstate commerce. It is defendants' contracts with producers coupled with contracts from other states that give life to the film itself. Michigan is merely a stopping place in interstate travels of films."

Indies Have Right to Organize

2. "Independent operators may organize for reasonable promotion of their economic activity without violation of the Sherman law. We know of no law that will prohibit independent theater owners designating anyone they desire to do their individual buying. We can see no objection to Co-operative buying for its members and no restrictions that will render distributors unconscious of the fact that Co-operative has a buying power of some magnitude. It uses that power continually and has a right to do so as long as it does not do it illegally.

"Further, normal needs of Cohen even in the era of double bills, which all parties agree are useless and a detriment to the industry, should not be more than 208 pictures a year for each theater, which would leave 150 or 200 majors' films that plaintiff should have little trouble in purchasing even though Cohen always will be given first choice by distributors."

No Damages for Plaintiff

3. "Plaintiff is not entitled to damages. This court should not concern itself with disagreement between two theater groups trying to annihilate each other. Business of plaintiff has been fairly profitable."

4. "Perhaps past history of the industry in Detroit did leave reasonable doubt in Co-operative as to what its rights were in a chaotic industry. In some cases Co-operative is worthy and has given valuable service to its members in many ways. On the other hand it threatens to continue to overplay its hand.

"The court is willing to forget the past because of uncertain conditions and give all parties a right to start over."

Three injunctive clauses were based on the last point. The court assessed costs against the defendant.

Allied's Joint Nat'l Com. Plan Misinterpreted—Myers

Allied's proposal for a national joint committee or other form of liaison among the several branches of the business has been misinterpreted in some quarters, Abram F. Myers, general counsel, writes in a current bulletin. Misunderstanding prevails particularly among exhibitor organizations that derive their revenue from the affiliated theaters, Myers declares.

Myers asserts that the plan is not intended to affect or impair the organization, financing or activities of any group, endanger jobs or curtail any person's or organization's functions or jurisdiction or forfeit anybody's rights or independence.

Purpose, he writes, is merely to establish a point of contact to explore each situation and to ascertain to what extent the several branches stand on common ground.

Albany Court Refuses Injunction to Stone

Albany—Vitagraph won the first round of a court battle here when Supreme Court Justice Schirick denied the injunction motion sought by Abe Stone, indie exhib. in Special Term. Action was predicated on Warners making their Albany theater a subsequent-run after Stone's Eagle with their new nabe, the Delaware, receiving product ahead of the Eagle from Vitagraph.

Twentieth Century-Fox, originally named with Vitagraph for prior delivery to the Delaware, settled their case by stipulation before Leonard L. Rosenthal, Troy attorney active in The New York unit of Allied, sought the injunction in special term in Stone's behalf against Vitagraph.

Probe May Drag on For Months–Clark

members are in for something of a drubbing at the hands of the committee. He said that Nicholas M. Schenck, who will be the first industry witness, likely will be held before the committee for at least two days and possibly for three days.

George Fisher and Jimmie Fidler are scheduled for today and possibly for tomorrow unless the committee finishes with them in one day. When they are through the committee will adjourn until Thursday, when Schenck will come on. Clark said Schenck will take up the rest of the week, and possibly run the committee into a Saturday session.

May Hold Schenck Several Days

Announcement that the committee will hold Schenck for two or three days indicates strongly that the industry representatives are in for a severe bombardment of cross-examination. The witnesses in favor of the resolution have taken up little time due to the absence of cross-examination from the isolationist members of the committee.

It has been expected all along that they will turn loose on the industry men. And the prospect is not a pleasant one for the spokesmen. All three of the isolationist members of the committee are skilled in the art of cross-examination. The industry spokesmen will be in the position of a man accused of a crime having three top-notch district attorneys firing questions at him at one time. And the accused will have no benefit of counsel. The committee has already taken care of this by ruling Wendell L. Willkie out of any active part in the proceedings.

Commendations for Both Sides

Clark said he isn't certain when the other industry spokesmen will go on. He said he expects to put Will H. Hays, MPPDA prexy on, but doesn't know when. Similarly, he doesn't know when the committee will get around to the industry's request that they view the films under fire.

Both Chairman Clark and Senator Gerald P. Nye (R., N. D.), said they had received a deluge of letters and telegrams commending the probe. And Senator Ernest MacFarland (D., Ariz.), in whom the beleaguered industry found an unexpected friend, said he has received a lot of communications commending him, too.

Senator Clark said he had received a flood of communications commending the probe, several of them from independent operators, who complained that the alleged propaganda films had hurt their business. One of these, he revealed, is a Salt Lake independent who operates 15 houses in Utah and Nevada.

Senator McFarland said he has received many communications praising his part in taking up for the industry. One was a phone call, telling him that he had been commended on the floor of the Phoenix (Arizona) American Legion Post and that the great majority of the Legionnaires are with him.

Keen Rivalry Among Producers

Willkie asserted Friday that film producers are engaged in "the fiercest cut-throat competition of any industry in the country." He told reporters that, instead of co-operating in a calculated program to instill war propaganda into their productions, the companies were cutting each other into pieces in their efforts to make box-office successes.

Willkie said that the films against which John T. Flynn, the "mystery witness," complained chiefly—the March of Time shorts and UA-released features—were not produced by any of the "Big Four" companies, Loew's, Paramount, Warner Bros. and 20th Century-Fox, at which the monopoly charges seemed chiefly to have been aimed.

The industry's counsel said he hoped to call to the stand this week the heads of those four companies and to have them deny in person the charges of propaganda and monopoly.

Management Magazine Quizzes Critics on Movie Propaganda

A poll of motion picture critics on the subject of propaganda by films is being conducted by the publication, Modern Industry. An article based on the replies will be written in co-operation with a number of Government agencies, according to Kirk Earnshaw, labor editor of the magazine.

Critics are being asked for their opinions as to what pictures have appeared deliberately to stimulate American public to anti-Fascism, whether such pictures advocated war-like steps on the part of America, if pictures have caused war hysteria and if motion pictures have been more "war-conscious, pro-British, anti-Hitler" than other media such as radio, newspapers and magazines.

Modern Industry also asks if the critics believe pictures, plays, features or newsreels have fairly and adequately presented the role of labor in the defense effort and if motion pictures "play up" the dignity of labor and the contribution of labor to national defense or if newsreels of strike violence outweigh the former.

Modern Industry, published by Magazines of Industry, Inc., with offices at 347 Madison Ave., has a 50,000 circulation among management men. Eldridge Haynes is publisher, Harwood F. Merrill, managing editor. Paper, established last February, claims to go into 31,500 U. S. manufacturing plants.

Ohio State Educator Blasts Senate Probe

Columbus, O.—Dr. Edgar Dale, professor of education at Ohio State University and an internationally recognized authority on motion picture content, defended today the film industry's right to portray as it sees fit World War II.

He branded the Senate sub-committee's investigation as an attempt to restrict a free screen which has as one of its prime duties informing the people of this democracy that Nazism is their worst enemy.

"The movie industry is not propagandizing us into war. I have not seen one feature production which has been outspoken for our entry into the war. Many recent films outline some of the worst phases of Nazi activities. This is the industry's privilege and duty, for people in this democracy should be informed of their worst enemy, Nazism," he declared.

Prof. Dale's only criticism of the war pictures was that "they should have been produced sooner."

SPARKLING ROMANTIC COMEDY, SPIKED WITH SATIRE, AND GEARED TO SCORE WITH ADULT FANS.

Leo the Lion has a smart, pop comedy in this offering which has plenty of class and mass appeal to the adult picgoers, who will find in it a lot of crisp dialogue and constantly amusing situations.

The trio of screenplay writers,—George Oppenheimer, Edmund L. Hartmann, and Ogden Nash,—must have had a pack of sport dashing off the sequences, which in sum total prove pretty well that the much maligned emotion of jealousy is not the monster it is painted to be, but something of a beneficent mortar which goes a long way to hold together the masonry of marriage.

The yarn also does a bit of demonstrating that the theorists on the ways of life are more subnormal than supernormal when their tenets are put to the test. Don Ameche plays the role of the young professor of psychology in a college where the success of football is of more importance than is learning. He writes a book on behavior, resigns his faculty job, and, accompanied by his attractive but jealous wife, Rosalind Russell, sets out for New York to get the manuscript published.

The prospective publisher is infatuated with Miss Russell, and the latter is jealous of the fact that hubby is apparently very keen on the publisher's alluring assistant, Kay Francis. Out of the situation rises a steady stream of comedy, keen satire, and lively lines. This feature has both the power to draw patronage, and to please that patronage. Maj. W. S. Van Dyke's direction is clever and interesting, and the performances of principals and supporting players is tip-top. Exhibitors can write this one down as spice for those jaded by ordinary film fare.

"Honky Tonk"

with Clark Gable, Lana Turner, Frank Morgan, Claire Trevor

M-G-M 105 Mins.

ROMANTIC DRAMA, EXCITING AND FINELY PERFORMED, HAS PLENTY OF POWER FOR ALL SITUATIONS.

In a typical red-blooded yarn, which suits his dramatic flare for red-blooded characterizations, Clark Gable makes his bow herewith in the new season. It is the type of production in which his large coterie of followers like to see him, and he takes full advantage of the script's opportunities for rugged romance and rough-and-ready histrionics.

As a "confidence man" who lives by his wits, card sharping, gambling, and quick trigger-work, he decides, after escaping a tar-and-feather "party" along with his pal, Chill Wills, that he will get himself a town out of which he cannot be "run." Landing by rail in a swiftly-growing but evil town in the Nevada of decades ago, he presses his attentions upon the pretty Lana Turner whom he has met on the train.

The gambler Gable is a hard horse to rope, but the Turner strategy takes care of that via a ceremony which is performed while the temperate groom is unhabitually off the wagon. As the femme lead, Miss Turner depicts skillfully a woman whose love for the man of her heart is so intense that the evil he does is of no decisive consequence. Gable rises to rule the lawless town whose citizens finally demand an accounting. That end he escapes, but he learns decency by the bitter road of losing an heir through an accident which befalls his expectant wife, and the realization that there is a limit to which even a "confidence man" can outrage the people whom he sneeringly terms "suckers."

Both Gable and Miss Turner give ace accounts of themselves in the leads, and there are some slick bits by their fellow players, notably Frank Morgan, Chill Wills, Claire Trevor, Marjorie Main and Albert Dekker. Jack Conway's two-fisted direction makes for solidity and realism, and Harold Rosson's photography is expert. "Honky Tonk" is strong stuff. It will doubtless prove its potency, too, at the box office.

Midwest 16 mm. Libraries To Counter "Jack Rabbits"

Des Moines, Ia.—Formation of the Midwest 16 mm. Libraries, to distribute in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska, was announced yesterday by F. E. Judd, president, who is also Monogram's franchise holder in Iowa. Operation will be on an exclusive territorial basis.

Judd's plan is to have the theater operator's permission before renting the smaller films for use in private clubs, schools, etc. Establishing of the 16 mm. libraries, also is expected to offer direct competition against the brokerage exchanges attacked as largely responsible for making the "Jack Rabbit" circuits possible.

Only other exchange operating on an exclusive territorial basis is Films, Inc.

The rise of the portable 16 mm. circuits has been phenomenal, with one operator reported to have cleaned up over $50,000 in Iowa during the Summer.

Arbitration Demands Take Upward Spurt

total of 118 since February 1.

Cases reported yesterday were from Detroit, Chicago and New York. The Detroit filing was the third in a week in that city.

In Chicago the K & S Theater Corp. filed a demand in behalf of its Sheridan Theater, North Chicago, naming Warner Bros. and RKO. According to the complaint, the Sheridan for several years has had availability the second week of release. Last year, however, the two defendant companies took away that arrangement and gave it to the Times Theater, Waukegan, Ill., the complaint charges. Return of the original clearance is asked.

Metropolitan Playhouses of New York filed a case for its Ogden Theater, The Bronx, and naming Loew's and Paramount. Complaint charges that the seven-day clearance granted to the Mt. Eden Theater in the Bronx over the Sheridan is unreasonable inasmuch as the two houses are not geographically in competition with each other. Elimination of the clearance is asked.

In Detroit, Erving Moss, owner of the Parkside Theater, filed the first case in the territory involving Section X of the decree. Moss names the five consenting companies and complains that they have arbitrarily refused to grant the Parkside a run which it has demanded, giving the run, instead, to the Aloma, Admiral, Alger and Rivola. He asks that the Parkside be granted a run seven days after the key runs instead of the present status of seven days after the so-called sub-key runs.

Portage Park Arbitration Postponed to Sept. 29

Chicago—The Portage Park Theater arbitration case has been postponed to Sept. 29 by agreement of counsel.

Lasky Strikes Back At "York" Charges

San Francisco — Jesse L. Lasky, whose production "Sergeant York" was criticized by isolationist Senators as "war propaganda" at the Washington inquiry, struck back here by pointing out that film story came "right out of their own Congressional Record" and demanding, "What do they want us to do—stop depicting American history?"

"The Gay Falcon"

with George Sanders, Wendy Barrie, Allen Jenkins, Anne Hunter
RKO Radio 67 Mins.

GOOD DETECTIVE MELLER WHOSE STORY AND ACTION WILL APPEAL TO MURDER MYSTERY DEVOTEES.

Murder-mystery fans will find "The Gay Falcon" just what its title adjective implies. It is light and enjoyable in many of its aspects, and appropriately heavy and creepy when dealing with the pursuit by "The Falcon" (George Sanders) of a sinister ring of jewel thieves at whose hands murder is a shield for their apprehension.

The deliberate, alert and magnetic-to-the-fair-sex Sanders moves through the yarn as a detective who loves the hunting of evil-doers so much more than hunting for love that he pays little heart-attention to his fiancee, Anne Hunter, or to the wiles and wooing of his pretty helper, Wendy Barrie. There are some pulse-quickening scenes and these are interspersed with occasional humor, most of which is invested in the supporting players.

The action masks well the real ring-leader of the jewel gang, but in the climax sequences the audience finds out what Sanders has deduced ever since a party which Lucile Gleason has given for sweet charity. Filmgoers who revel in crime investigation will go for "The Gay Falcon," and the concluding scene, wherein Sherlock Sanders is about to forsake his career as a detective to marry Miss Cooper and settle down, but doesn't, is the tip-off that another chapter in his adventures is in the offing,—which should be so. The cast, direction and photography are right up to snuff.

"Let's Go Collegiate" with Frankie Darro, Marcia Mae Jones, Jackie Moran, Keye Luke, Mantan Moreland, Frank Sully and Gale Storm

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)
Monogram 62 Mins.

TIMELY COLLEGE OPUS, PLUS NAME LEADS, SHOULD CATCH "JUVE" TRADE.

"Let's Go Collegiate," an unpretentious production, but very timely, should catch the "back to school," and the seasonal "college sport," interest and should find a welcoming spot as a filler for twin billings, with satisfactory box-office response from the juve trade due to theme and name casting.

Jean Yarbrough's direction of Lindsley Parsons' production of Edmond Kelso's original screenplay, is of fine caliber.

Confronted with the task of saving face before their co-ed sweethearts, as well as present the nation's number one stroke, whom they had induced to join their alma mater so that the college should stand a chance to win the National Intercollegian rowing championship, Frankie Darro, Jackie Moran and Keye Luke, connive to present an imposter, who takes the place of the renowned oar-man, who, unbeknownst to the rest of the school had been drafted into Uncle Sam's Army and so had failed to appear.

Complications arise when the brawny impersonator refuses to stop the impersonation, causing a rift between the boys and their sweethearts, which only unravels after the school wins the championship and the impersonator hero fades from the picture.

Frankie Darro, Marcia Mae Jones, Jackie Moran, (and his band), Keye Luke, Mantan Moreland, Frank Sully and Gale Storm turn in fine performances, as do the supporting cast.

"Gambling Daughters"

with Cecilia Parker, Roger Pryor, Robert Baldwin
PRC 67 Mins.

ORDINARY FILM ABOUT GIRLS AT A FINISHING SCHOOL WHO GET IN A JAM OVER GAMBLING.

A comic-melodrama that just about fades away at the finish. Emphasis of this implausible yarn is on the slapstick but it is not strong enough to carry the film. It is all about two girls at an exclusive finishing school who become attracted to the roulette wheel and the rolling dice.

Joint is not a reputable one and the two girls start taking the family jewels to cover their losses. Robert Baldwin, an insurance detective, makes his appearance as a gym instructor and enlists the support of Cecilia Parker.

Roger Pryor is cast in role of assistant to owner of gambling place. Girls are Janet Shaw and Gale Storm. Villain of the piece is Sigi Arno. Max Nosseck's direction manages to generate some suspense from the script by Joel Kay and Arnold Phillips.

Legal Technicality Blocks WB Milwaukee Opening

Milwaukee—Expected opening of the 2,700-seat Riverside by the Warner circuit on the eve of the American Legion convention, failed to materialize here as a result of a stalemate over payment of the musicians' social security.

Issue which is keeping Milwaukee's only vaude house closed is a legal technicality. Policy of house in past has been to have musicians responsible for the payment of social security. It is now reported band leaders want the management to assume this responsibility, which so far the circuit has refused.

Dark since July 31, Warners was reported to be holding a six-week lease on the Riverside with options. According to reliable sources, circuit will reopen house as soon as technicalities are ironed out.

"Bad Man of Deadwood" with Roy Rogers, George Hayes, Carol Adams

Republic 61 Mins.

ROY ROGERS STARS IN EXCITING WESTERN WHICH SHOULD PLEASE ACTION FANS.

This Roy Rogers western is good program material. It is paced for speed and action and contains a sufficient amount of dramatic suspense. Good camera work adds to the production. Joseph Kane, an associate producer and director, rates a bow for turning out a workmanlike job.

Rogers is a personable cowboy hero and looks the part. He also chimes in with three song numbers which are well spotted. George "Gabby" Hayes, as the professor of the medicine show, supplies the comic relief. Herbert Rawlinson, Monte Blue and Henry Brandon stand out in minor roles.

Story has to do with town of Deadwood under control of phony Civic League directed by Brandon, a newspaper editor. When Rogers and his friend's medicine show are run out of town, Rogers decides to find out who is at bottom of it all.

With help of other business men whose possessions were taken over by Brandon's outfit, Rogers discovers who is running things. He also falls in love with Carol Adams, editorial assistant to Brandon. There is a smashing gun fight at finale and the gang is routed when the U. S. calvary arrives in time.

Can't Censor the Film Industry—McFarland

Committee Getting the "Works," Says Sen. Clark: "Smacks of Conspiracy" films to the old, reliable "red herring," allegations of monopoly, is preparing to bait its hooks for still another quarry, newspaper columnists.

This was disclosed yesterday by Sen. D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, the sub-committee's chairman, who charged that "there has been a definite attempt to smear this committee" on the part of the columnists. The committee, he said, later would look into this angle.

Rising tide of columnar attack on the Senate war film propaganda inquiry was further augmented here yesterday when Archer Winsten, film critic of the Evening Post, analyzing the pix cited as "propaganda" in nature, offered the conclusion that he could "only conclude that further investigation would lie somewhere between a boondoggle and accepting money under false pretenses."

"Smacks of Conspiracy" Says Clark

Declaring that the inquiry and committee were getting "the works" from about 75 per cent of the commentators, Clark, to the glee of those who saw the issue of freedom of the press thus specifically raised, stated:

> "In my judgment, it couldn't have just happened—it almost smacks of conspiracy."

Warning that the committee had better be careful that it does not start a movement that will "lead to a burning of books such as occurred in Germany" was hurled yesterday at the committee by Sen. Ernest McFarland, D., Ariz., thus far its only member to have a kind word for the industry.

In reply to Senator Clark's attack on the press, Senator McFarland said:

> "I can't concur in the statement of the chairman in criticism of the press, and I don't concur that the investigation is just beginning. I can't see that we are accomplishing anything, and I think we should see the pictures before going any further.
> "I believe in freedom of speech and of the press, and I believe in the right of the newspaper men to say what they want to say about this meeting or any other meeting. Those rights have made this nation stand out as the leader in the world today and we can't change them.
> "And you can't censor the motion picture industry. Motion pictures are a method of expression of speech and ideas. We had better be careful that we don't have a burning of books such as occurred in Germany in 1933. This may be the beginning of what we don't want."

In the meantime, Jimmie Fidler, West Coast radio and newspaper commentator on the industry "fiddled for Fidler" all over the place but actually had very little information to give the committee about the industry.

McFarland Confuses George Fisher

And George Fisher, another West Coast networks commentator from whom the isolationists evidently had expected big things, became confused—to put it mildly—when Senator McFarland had him read into the record copy of an earlier broadcast in which Fisher had praised the very pictures he presumably came to Washington to condemn.

Fidler reiterated the charge that he had been forced off the Columbia network because studio executives had "high-pressured" the network into an attempt to censor his column; that some of the majors had cut their advertising in the Los Angeles Times because they refused to censor the column of himself and other film writers; and that on two occasions studio representatives had attempted to bribe him into writing favorable reviews.

Fidler "Warned" His Audiences

He said he objected to "propaganda pictures" because they are being made with stockholders' money and that the people have no warning that they are about to see propaganda pictures. At the same time he said that he had constantly warned his large audience against these pictures, and that they were flops financially.

Senator McFarland thereupon raised the point as to whether Fidler himself and others like him, through panning these pix, hadn't found the solution for which they purported to be seeking. They warned the public and the public stayed away.

This stopped Jimmie for a moment, then he brought up the stockholder angle, pointing out that he himself has stock in a couple of studios.

Fidler's proposal for a remedy was:

> "Let them make such pictures out of their own pocket, and identify them in all advertising with the word, 'propaganda.'"

Fidler told the committee that a "cycle of war pictures started some years ago and is still continuing," adding that "in some cases their effect has been to breed hate in the minds of the American people."

Fidler, who said he had "become known as a movie gossiper or reviewer on the air," said he had received many letters from persons who dislike "propaganda pictures."

Was Offered Money For Favorable Reviews, Jimmy Fidler Asserts

Claims Effort to Censor His Column

"In two or three ways," Fidler said, the motion picture industry tried to censor his column and radio talks when he was critical of productions. "The first big blow-up," he asserted, "was over 'Conquest.'"

"Would you say the effect of those pictures was to breathe hate and horror?" asked Chairman Clark.

"Whether calculated to or not I believe some of them did have that effect," replied Fidler.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, will be the first industry executive to appear before the Senate sub-committee. He will take the stand when the sub-committee resumes its inquiry Thursday. No sessions will be held today or tomorrow.

Fidler, maybe with an eye to a personal build-up, said he had nine persons on his regular staff "and about 25 of what I call spies."

Fidler told the committee that a series of Russian propaganda pictures soon will be released in the U. S.

In reply to a question by Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) asking him to name movie representatives who Fidler had said offered him money for favorable movie reviews, the witness cited Russell Birdwell of Russell Birdwell Associates and Harry Brand, 20th-Fox studio publicity director. In the instance of Birdwell, Fidler said the picture was "The Prisoner of Zenda."

(The INS quoted Fidler as saying, "I think it was said 'Would you like to have $2,500'.")

In the instance of Brand, Fidler said Brand had reminded him he had been paid for making a trailer advertising a picture. Fidler said he thought the amount was $3,000.

(Fidler's testimony drew quick return fire from both Brand and Birdwell. In New York Birdwell made public a statement in which he said he had wired to both Senators D. Worth Clark and McFarland. The

CIRCUITS RIP PROPAGANDA PROBE

F & M and Cabart Use Display Copy for Counter-Attack on Senate Sub-committee's Inquisition

Fanchon & Marco, operating in St. Louis, and Cabart Theaters, operating in Long Beach, Calif., are the first circuits to counter-attack the Interstate Commerce sub-committee now conducting a film-radio war propaganda investigation.

Using three-column display copy in St. Louis and Long Beach papers, the circuits demand, "Since When Is It a Crime to support the President of the United States?"

In the text which follows, the circuits say:

> "It should be made absolutely clear to every American citizen: Our theater managers have never been forced by any producer to run any of those pictures which have been termed propagandistic. We feature on our screens only those films we believe our patrons want to see. . . .
> "So long as Democracy prevails, we challenge the right of any individual to prohibit us from showing anything on our screens we deem worthy of showing. We shall continue to keep faith with those whose patronage makes it possible for us to remain in business, to afford our patrons film entertainment for the whole family. . . .
> "If the playing of 'The Star-Spangled Banner' in our theaters at every performance is propaganda—then you can BET we're propagandists! Or perhaps these isolationists have another song to suggest which better represents the true feeling of America?"

Harry C. Arthur, Jr., and Milton B. Arthur sign the ads.

F.D.R. on Willkie: "Doing a Grand Job"

Wendell L. Willkie's brilliant counter to the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee's attack on the industry has won a verbal pat on the back from the man who defeated him for the Presidency, John O'Donnell and Doris Fleeson wrote in their "Capitol Stuff" column in the New York Daily News yesterday.

The column quoted the President as telling his callers that Willkie is "doing a grand job."

Oh, Yeah? ? ?

The movies "have come under the influence of the isolationists in Congress," David Lawrence wrote in his copyrighted "Today in Washington" column, published yesterday in the New York Sun. Lawrence added: "For hereafter the producers will be afraid to exercise their independent judgment as to what the public wants and will instead seek to satisfy what members of Congress think ought to be dramatized or presented in the movies."

Fidler Under Hot Attack by Brand and Birdwell

CBS Says It Was Beset With Legal Difficulties While Fidler was on Air

statement gave the lie direct to Fidler and went on to say in part: "If the Senate hearing is interested in fair play then the Senators will give me the right to appear as witness against the malicious slander."

(In Milwaukee, where he is attending the American Legion convention, Brand formally commented as follows:

("Jimmie Fidler's statement that he received $3,000 to make an advertising trailer for 20th Century-Fox is true, but his interpretation that the payment was an attempt to 'buy his soul' is a deliberate attempt to distort facts as he so repeatedly dose in reporting the Hollywood scene.

("At the time he was engaged to make the trailer, we were following an advertising policy of using commentators to make trailers for our pictures. Among those who made similar trailers were Robert Ripley, Edwin C. Hill and Lowell Thomas. Certainly no one would imply that we would try to buy 'the souls' of these men. Perhaps Fidler considers himself overpaid, in which event we would be glad to accept a refund.

("Fidler's endeavor to isolate himself from these noted commentators looks like a far-fetched attempt to join the isolationists. Long after Fidler made the trailer for us, he approached me to use my influence with 20th Century-Fox stars to buy dresses from the gown shop in which he was allegedly interested and which had just opened for business. At Fidler's request I persuaded Alice Faye to buy a dress for which she was charged several hundred dollars. The first time she wore the dress, it fell apart causing her much embarrassment and humiliation. The result was that when Miss Faye went East for a personal appearance, Fidler attacked her in the newspapers which carried his column.

("Fidler has been in Hollywood too long not to be known for his mercenary methods. He also tried to force 20th Century-Fox studios to buy a title for $5,000, which he claimed to own. The title was 'Love Under Fire.'

("Fidler also tried to sell us what he said was a scenario. There was some difference of opinion between Mr. Fidler and our scenario department on the merits of the story.

("It would be regrettable indeed if Hollywood considered Fidler a menace, but his numerous activities as part owner of a night club, known as the Pirate's Den, title broker, gown salesman, actor, writer, columnist and radio commentator have added a much needed comic touch to the Hollywood scene.")

The CBS in reply to Fidler's charge that he had been forced off that network because of pressure from the studios, quickly issued a statement in reply.

"Columbia was beset with legal difficulties and dangers so long as Jimmie Fidler was on the air because of Fidler's desire to destroy values and reputations in order to build up a big audience to which his sponsor could advertise," it asserted.

"In addition, he was actually trying, on a one-sided basis, to get over into the realm of controversy and Columbia does not sell time for the one-sided discussion of controversial issues: it gives time free in order to maintain fair discussion of all sides of such issues."

Fidler, CBS Disagree

The statement added that Columbia did not wish to profit "by broadcasting scandal and gossip" and that Fidler did. Fidler in reply said that under his contract he was personally responsible for libel suits, and that anyway, the network attorneys looked over his copy before each broadcast.

(Fidler writing from Washington in his syndicated column in today's New York Daily Mirror, while maintaining that "Hollywood DID take too many side digs at Nazism," says, "I fail to see why Washington stuck its nose into Hollywood's business. The Senate has no right to censor pictures. I don't like all the political fuss; I am sure public reaction has taught Hollywood its mistake.")

Chairman Clark put into the record at the beginning of yesterday's session an exchange of letters between Fulton Cook, St. Mary's, Idaho, exhib., and Maurice Saffle, Metro's Seattle branch manager, relative to alleged Government "pressure" employed to induce the playing of "Land of Liberty." Clark said Saffle would be called to testify later.

(The AP said: "Saffle wrote Cook that Metro was 'distributing the picture at its expense and putting it in place of one of our own features, on which we might show a profit.

"'We are doing this at the request of the United States Government, who feel that every man, woman and child in America should see this subject during these times of national defense,' Saffle's letter said. 'In fact, they are so interested in the playing of the subject that we have been asked to wire immediately the names of those exhibitors who eliminate it. All rentals on the picture are turned over to the Government.'

"In reply, Cook said he had found that 'propaganda pictures are distasteful to the public,' adding that it was of little interest to him 'what you or the United States Government may feel about what I show in my theater.'

"'If I deem it advisable not to run a certain picture and eliminate it from my contract, which the contract provides I may do, I don't feel that it is any of your business to come sticking your nose in my affairs to find out why I do not want to play a certain picture,' he wrote.")

(The Saffle incident, THE FILM DAILY learned on excellent authority, resulted from over-zealousness to effect a deal and get playing time for the pic. It will be shown, it is understood, that the Government expressed no desire for "Land of Liberty" bookings and had not requested a list of exhibs. refusing to play it).

Committee Has in Fidler A Witness to Its Liking— A Gossip Writer—Willkie

In a statement Wendell L. Willkie charged that the sub-committee had in Jimmie Fidler, "a witness to its liking—a gossip writer—one who makes his living by unsupported and unproven statements about other people."

"He accused," Willkie continued, "the radio, the newspapers, journalists, motion picture producers of a line of conspiracy and misdemeanors, most of which were for the purpose of controlling his golden voice.

"Like witness, like committee—Chairman Clark is sure the country's distinguished columnists are in a conspiracy to malign his committee, if that is possible."

Nye-Clark Posed for M of T Re-enactment—de Rochemont

Sen. Gerald P. Nye, who last week denounced the March of Time for presenting to the public films which were "part actuality, part fiction, part scenic, part fake and part acted," himself took part in a specially staged film re-enactment of the proceedings of a Senate Committee investigating the activities of munitions makers in 1935 for M of T's subject, "Munitions Makers."

Senator Nye, who at that time was waging a vigorous campaign against the "international racketeers who rearmed Germany" posed before March of Time cameras with Sen. Bennett Champ Clark who now is taking part with Senator Nye in the Senate sub-committee propaganda investigation.

These were the facts contained in a statement by Louis de Rochemont, M of T producer whose name has figured with those of other producers directly under fire from the sub-committee.

Propaganda Charges False, Zanuck Tells Legion

Industry Is Anti-Nazi And Produces Films in Interest of Preparedness

Signal Corps Reserve, appreciating that the best defense is an offensive, told an attentive Legionnaire audience:

> "Some, if not most of you have heard the charge made that American motion pictures have been used to generate a war spirit among our people—that pictures have been deliberately used to incite the people to war.
> "Let me say this to you: Those charges are false."

Declaring that Hollywood's producers "realize and recognize the obligations and the responsibilities which are theirs," Zanuck said, "The pictures themselves are the living record and the unassailable proof. Let the record speak for itself," then added:

> "To friends and critics of our industry alike I say: 'If you charge us with being anti-Nazi you are right—and if you accuse us of producing films in the interest of preparedness and national defense, again you are right.'
> "The motion picture industry has offered every facility at its command to aid and advance the national defense program of President Roosevelt, and will continue to do so.
> "I defy any well informed American to find fault with our efforts in this regard."

Taking cognizance of various moves to restrict and censor, Zanuck cited the press, the motion picture and radio as champions of American freedom, but warned, "These three pillars of liberty not only protect, they must unremittingly receive the protection of free America." Zanuck added that "so long as regulation is prevented from becoming an instrument of control, motion pictures will truthfully express the tastes, the ideals, the thoughts and the life of our democracy."

Pointing out that "one of the first acts of the dictator is . . . to seize and censor and dominate the motion picture screen," Zanuck charged:

> "There are factions in this country who would throttle the motion picture industry. I need not go into their motives. The rise to power of men like Hitler has shown how effective is the technique of stirring up hatred against an institution or group of people and thus gain power and importance. Hollywood has been a tempting prey for such men."

Agar of Louisville Courier-Journal Makes Blistering Attack on Senate Sub-committee

Herbert Agar, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, speaking under the auspices of the interventionist "Fight for Freedom" Committee over CBS Sunday night, made a blistering attack on the Senate sub-committee's film-radio inquiry.

Branding the sub-committee "a little group of wilful men," Agar posed these questions:

"Is this an attempt to break the foreign policy of the U. S. by showing that a few American First Senators can intimidate a great industry into pretending that the Nazis are quite nice? Or what is going on among those strange Senators appointed by Burton Wheeler to investigate whether there is any reason for an investigation?"

RKO-Schine Splurge With Syracuse Legit.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Thanks to the RKO-Schine pool, this city, once a legit. mecca, faces the promise of a season of road attractions comparable to the Shuberts' last years at the old Wieting.

"Claudia," which broke in at the pool's Empire Friday and Saturday on the way to a Chicago run, is the forerunner of nearly a score of attractions, either penciled in or under contract. "Arsenic and Old Lace" is set for a one-nighter on Sept. 20.

Empire, in its early days the K & E outlet here in opposition to the Shuberts' Wieting, will fill in with vaudefilm, taking over the policy which RKO-Schine used at the nearby Strand last year. Shep Fields' ork starts the ball a-rolling on Sept. 26.

Myers Sees Utilization of "Escape" Clause

Decree Against "Little 3" Not Likely Before Summer, Says Allied's Counsel

past years always has stressed the probability of large attendance and importance of discussions, leaders here yesterday were confident that such claims this year have not been over-emphasized and that a record for attendance will be achieved.

Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, writing in the Allied year book and program, contends that nobody really believes that a final consent decree will be entered against the non-consenting distributors before next Summer. Therefore, he adds, the escape clause of the decree will become operative and the distributors will revert to the old or adopt a new selling system. In this, Myers says. the exhibitors will have a vital stake.

Myers asserts that there "has not been held a genuine all-industry gathering for the open discussion of vital industry problems since the Trade Practice Conference in 1927, which was held under the auspices of the Federal Trade Commission." Myers adds that the "opportunity now is afforded for another such meeting, not at the instigation of any Government agency, but on the industry's own initiative."

Warns of Failure's Evils

If the meeting fails, Myers continues, the whole industry "will lose face, confidence in its ability to solve its own problems will shrink, and it will remain a prey to the disaffection within and vulnerable to attack from without."

Continuing, Myers said:

"Allied has been encouraged to plan this new kind of a convention for two reasons: First, the situation in which the industry finds itself is such that the need for an all-industry get-together must be apparent to all thoughtful persons—the logic of events argues for its success. Second, Allied leaders have received definite expressions of encouragement from far-sighted leaders in other branches in planning the convention and have the promise of their active support in carrying on the discussion."

For Free Exchange of Views

Regarding the national joint committee for liaison purposes, proposed by Myers in several general bulletins, the organization's counsel points out that the plan "contemplates no more than the creation of machinery for the free interchange of views and information between the chosen representatives of established groups in the several branches. The lack of such a point of contact and such interchange during the last two years has led to unhappy results and the experience of that period is about to be repeated."

Business session starts at 2 p.m. today.

National Theater Authority to Clear All Drive Appeals Urged by Frisco Showmen

San Francisco—Theater managers around here swear that business of "panhandling" the customers by drives is being badly overdone and must be checked in some way. Several collections in the past few months caused considerable audience peeve.

Managers think that perhaps a National Theater Authority, through which all appeals must be cleared, is the answer. One or two collection drives a year is plenty, is the local opinion, but no single manager likes to turn down a worthy appeal. Many local theater men would rather contribute a check than pass the hat among the patrons.

Industry Unity Crusade Gains

Definite Program for Harmony Taking Shape

Crusade for unity in the motion picture industry is slowly achieving its purpose, whether by "natural causes" or by pressure. During the last six months a number of moves, instigated by both distributors and exhibitors, have been picked up, advanced or otherwise adopted by both branches of the industry and, whether they were conscious of it or not, leaders on both sides have started a "welding" job that appears to have set up a definite program for harmony.

One of the best recent examples of industry unity was the united efforts of exhibitors and distributors in their fight against the 15 per cent admission tax proposal. Allied and MPTOA leaders worked together feverishly in Washington with producer-distributor interests for the abolition of the increased tax, while the ITOA is reported to have sent out 1,200 telegrams of protest against the measure.

Another example of the unity campaign was the "Movie Vacation" idea, started by the Philadelphia Bulletin as purely a local proposition but which became a national project. Seeing the possibilities in the plan, Abe Montague, Columbia's general sales manager, gave it his personal attention and informed exhibitors throughout the country of what had been done in Philadelphia. Exhibitors and distributors hopped on it and, jointly, spread the gospel of movie vacations through big town and small town newspapers.

Rodgers Resolution Cited

A resolution of praise for W. F. Rodgers, M-G-M general sales manager, by the West Virginia Managers Association is another example of the trend toward intra-industry harmony. The resolution in part read: "Whereas, one man, by his courage, patience, tolerance and kindliness, took the leadership several years ago to bring about this better understanding between producers, distributors and exhibitors, refusing to be discouraged when his attempt to write a code of fair play for the business was not adopted but who has continued to give untiringly of his personal efforts and that of his company to gain this end—we take this means of expressing our thanks and appreciation to William F. Rodgers for having made the most outstanding contribution towards industry peace, and to pledge him our support."

The slogan of the coming Allied convention, "Let's Get Down to Business," is regarded as another step toward unity. It is believed in film circles that if distributors and non-Allied members participate in the conferences, as has been indicated, that the several branches of the business will be further cemented.

The United Artists' institutional advertisements in the trade press have been singled out as good examples of industry unity.

Tradeshow Offers Tied In

Offer of M-G-M, Paramount and Warner Bros. to tradeshow product away from the exchange centers to accommodate exhibitors in isolated areas has done much to create goodwill with their customers.

The willing co-operation by all phases of the business in the USO and national defense projects has been an indication of the possibility for general unity on industry affairs.

M-G-M's active participation in all exhibitor associations' conventions has been another link in the harmony chain.

The 14 points of the Pacific Coast Conference and the MPTOA goodwill convention were further moves toward industry harmony.

A recent proposal for a general industry federation composed of important persons in all branches of the business might be the culmination of all efforts for unity.

The proposed trade practice code, which received the death knell in Washington, is regarded by many as having planted the seeds for peace and understanding even though it was never adopted. The conferences, the preparation and the work put into the mapping out of the code was, to use the time-worn expression, a step in the right direction.

Wright, chief Government counsel in the suit. They are now in the hands of Defendant Counsel George H. Armistead and William Waller who are preparing their "finding of facts" which must, along with that of the Government's attorneys, be filed by Oct. 15. Edward R. Pix Dollar Shrinkage to be $105,000,000—Wood

Wood Tells Allied Meet Conscription Alone Will Entail $40,000,000 Loss

Philadelphia—In an effort to show why exhibitors allegedly cannot pay more for pictures this season, Pete Wood, secretary of the ITO of Ohio, described the shrinkage of the motion picture dollar at the opening session of national Allied's annual convention here yesterday.

Wood, using a blackboard to point out his findings, showed how the defense tax and the loss of patronage due to the conscription of 1,500,000 men will shrink the dollar spent for motion pictures. He asserted that theater attendance does not follow the ups and downs of general business.

Allied Convention Protests Inquiry

resolution, which previously had been adopted by the board of directors, with an attack on the proposal to investigate the monopoly aspects of the motion picture business.

While Allied, Myers said, has been opposed to monopoly, the organization cannot give its sanction to the move proposed by the isolationist Senate minority group, which is attacking the industry.

Those same sponsors of the probe who want to bring the monopoly issue into the picture gave no help when Allied was fighting for the Neely bill, Myers said, adding that the sponsors' interest in monopoly is not impressive. Myers said Allied wanted to get a message to the public that politicians cannot drive a wedge into the motion picture industry.

The resolution adopted by the convention reads in part:

> "We protest the tactics employed by the participants in the current proceedings before a sub-committee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee in attacking the integrity of and attempting to destroy the good will of the motion picture industry for political purposes; and further that we condemn and denounce the efforts of each participant and all others to stir up religious and racial antagonism and class hatred in the United States."

$1,000,000 Pay Jump in Studios?

in studio payrolls, Pat Casey, studio labor contact, declared yesterday.

Negotiations for the new contract, according to Casey, take place Saturday in Newark with Coast delegates from the carpenters, electricians, teamsters, plasterers, laborers and musicians' unions.

Studio basic agreement pact, Casey said, expires this year. He expects the agreement to be renewed for another five years.

In addition to adjusting wage scales, new working conditions will be set up. It is reported the unions will seek a minimum working call of six hours.

Casey envisions no difficulty in reaching an agreement with the union delegates. He said he thought the negotiations would last about a day and that he would leave for the Coast immediately after.

Casey also pointed out if the unions receive a 10 per cent wage increase it would be the fourth granted to the Coast locals since 1936.

PCC Will Ask Monopoly Probe

reason of events of the past few years, meaning thereby efforts toward fair trade practices, Federal suit against Paramount et al, resultant consent decree (which was entered into between the Government and distributor-producer organizations without the consent and over the protest of a vast majority of independent theater owners) and virtual advantage being taken of same, if not in theory, certainly by practice, that we through the Conference and its individual units, take such measures and steps as may be decided upon and as may be necessary to institute a Senate investigation of those interests, as pertains to the operation of the industry as a monopoly.

"Be it recognized that we have taken full recognition of efforts of the Clark Senate investigating committee, but desire to handle this matter in this way in order that we may in no way interfere with the defense program of the United States Government, endorse no investigation which may, or may not, be founded on such interference, that this information be passed on to all other independent theater organizations of the United States in an effort to secure their co-operation and efforts toward the same end."

Clark Will Seek Changes In Anti-Trust Law

Morrison Resigns from Artists Managers Guild

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—Leo Morrison, yesterday announced his resignation from Artist's Managers Guild. He has obtained a direct franchise from Screen Actors Guild as a licensed agent. All AMG members must be franchised by SAG and such franchise is not limited to members of AMG.

In his letter of resignation Morrison charged that the Guild seemed to be operated for the benefit of a select group of a few of its members. He said he tried to have an investigation made regarding a complaint he filed with Guild but has met with nothing but delays and postponements.

This complaint refers to a dispute with another agency over the asserted unethical influencing of an important client to break his managerial contract with Morrison.

☆ REVIEWS OF THE NEW FILMS ☆

"Unexpected Uncle"

with Anne Shirley, James Craig, Charles Coburn

RKO Radio 67 Mins.

FAIRLY DIVERTING CINDERELLA YARN WHOSE CHARACTERS LACK APPEAL DESPITE ABLE CAST.

Mark this one down as a Cinderella story which is fairly diverting at times but lacking the power to rise above a run-of-the-mine "B" programmer. What gives the footage little more than the artificiality of an electric log "blaze" is the inability of the characters to convince the onlooker,—which is no fault of a sincere and hard-working cast.

Essentially the fault appears to be in the conception or behavior of the top assignments. James Craig is delineated as a young captain of industry who is a playboy, and, when he does settle down to work, he seems to be equally unstable in his attitude. The character of Anne Shirley is equally incapable of exciting human sympathy as she moves through the story in the mode of an attractive Trilby who acts under the beneficence and influence of a philosophical Svengali.

This latter role is played by the horse-shoe-pitching, retired-millionaire Charles Coburn, who late in life forsook power and wealth and went to live in a trailer camp when he realized that he was working for his employes, and not they for him. The wholesome and pretty Miss Shirley works in a department store, and is courted by the unstable Prince Charming Craig, while their incredible romance is fostered by Coburn.

At the finale, when the audience is just about convinced that they are unsuited to one another, or should more happily wed to take them out of circulation, Mr. Craig, as a consequence of the Coburn power of suggestion and deeds, rides off to Florida with the girl whom he professes to love, but who has shown it in a very dubious fashion. Tay Garnett has gotten everything there was to get out of a juiceless script and trite dialogue. "Unexpected Uncle" is one of those yarns which apparently gave some promise of incipient power on paper, but fails to incubate in celluloid.

"Look Who's Laughing" with Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Fibber McGee & Molly, and Lucille Ball

RKO Radio 79 Mins.

NEAT COMEDY WITH STRONG PULLING POWER VIA NAME PLAYERS; SURE-FIRE FOR ALL STANDS AND AUDIENCES.

Outlets on the lookout for an attraction with pulling power will do well to book this one, what with the combination of two of the most popular entertainment teams in lead roles,—Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, and Fibber McGee and Molly—, and the alluring Lucille Ball to top off the stellar richness. RKO Radio designed this picture for laughs and lightheartedness and it fills its purpose well.

It should be a money-maker for every type of stand from key to sticks. Its sequences are crisp, clean, and diverting,—okay for all audiences from grown-ups to the young generation. While some features of a comedy nature have belly-laughs interspersed with occasional let-downs, "Look Who's Laughing" is consistently amusing, never dull and never uproarious.

Allan Dwan does a neat job of directing the James V. Kern script which recounts the saga of Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy arriving by plane in a small American community whose Chamber of Commerce prexy, Fibber McGee, is trying to ride to local immortality by getting an airplane manufacturer to build a factory on the town's outskirts.

Bergen and Charlie whose flight to the town is purely circumstantial are asked to be the house guests of Fibber and his wife, Molly. Through the machinations of mischievous McCarthy, Gildersleve the Villain (Harold Peary), acting as stooge to an unscrupulous real estate dealer seeking to corner potential airport property in the vicinity, gets the temporary upper hand of the McGee civic faction.

But the McCarthy step has a bright side, for it clears the way eventually for Bergen and his pretty secretary, Lucille Ball, to find out how truly they love one another. At the finale everything is happy, and so is it all along the running-time-line as situations, gags and melodrama are plentiful. The meller highlight is the inadvertent airplane flight of Fibber and Molly. In summation, this RKO Radio offering is a "magnetic attraction." Set it down as such on the old booking schedule.

Average Magic Carpet

Lowell Thomas's Magic Carpet of Movietone lands in Nevada with fairly good results. Reel is most entertaining from a pictorial standpoint when the rugged outdoor country of the picturesque state is framed by the camera. There is also a sequence dealing with Reno where divorces and marriages apparently are accomplished in equal number. Other sights include a visit to the ghost town of Virginia City and Boulder Dam.

F.D.R., By Inference, Ridicules Probe

The cartoon depicted Charlie Chaplin in his well-known costume and trick mustache holding a subpoena to appear before the committee. "Now what could I possibly tell those past-masters about comedy?" Chaplin is depicted in the cartoon as asking.

The President smiled broadly as he commented on the cartoon, evidently relishing the humor of it.

President Quotes Telegram

Although declining to comment directly on the probe, the chief executive evidently expected some questions in connection with it. He followed up his suggestion that the reporters observe the Star cartoon by quoting a telegram which he said had been received by a Senator, whose name he did not reveal. He similarly declined to reveal identity of the sender.

The telegram called attention of the Senator to the Holy Bible, which the telegram pointed out, has a wide circulation in this country. The telegram added that the Bible was written almost entirely by foreigners, mostly Jews, and that most of it is about war, and might be construed as war propaganda. The sender inquired whether this book should not be added to the Senator's list of things which should be banned.

Knows of No Government Pressure

Aside from reading the telegram, the President did not comment on it.

He was reminded that charges have been made before the committee that the Government has pressured studios to make and distribute propaganda pictures.

The President replied that the word Government, of course, covers a lot of territory, but that so far as the chief executive of the Government was concerned there had been no such things. He replied in answer to a further question that he knew of none of his subordinates who had taken any such action.

Inquiry subpoenas issued by the sub-committee for three additional witnesses—Charles Chaplin, Anatole Litvak, who directed "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" for Warners, and W. R. Wilkerson, Hollywood trade publisher—are returnable by Oct. 6.

Probe Procedure Holds Perils All Communications—Robb

Declaring that the "procedure to date holds plenty of perils for all engaged in communicating news and ideas to the American people," Editor Arthur H. Robb of the Editor and Publisher, newspaper trade weekly, in his signed column, "Shop Talk at Thirty" sharply criticizes the Senate inquiry into the film industry.

Robb points out that newspaper reports "by their very nature" cannot emphasize that statements made before the Interstate Commerce subcommittee "will be made without the usual safeguard of a law court against untruthful and irrelevant testimony, and the statements will be accepted at face value by many people."

In conclusion, Robb writes:

> "It ought to be plain that we don't like the idea of Senate kangaroo courts. sitting without the authority of a duly adopted resolution, passing judgment upon ideas which are placed before the American people by any medium of communications. We do not deny for a second, the right of Congress to exercise such authority, in the name of the people.
> "Mr. Wheeler seems to us to have no such mandate. He is assuming prerogatives that are reserved to the people themselves, either acting directly against media which offend, or through their constituted representatives acting officially. It must not be forgotten that under our system of Government, the people have the final rights of censorship over news and views. They don't have to attend propaganda-laden movies. They don't have to listen to radio propaganda. They don't have to buy newspapers which offend their intelligence. And we doubt that they need the advice of a Senator, who, whatever his many merits, has been as fertile in producing his own kind of propaganda as have any of the agencies now under his scrutiny."

Big Loss in Dollar's Shrinkage

Allied Told It Will Total $105,000,000

as an example, Wood compared the 3 per cent sales tax on motor cars with the 3 per cent state admission tax. In 1938, Ohio realized $4,286,000, which was the lowest figure for automobile sales taxes between 1935 and 1940. In the same year, the 3 per cent admission tax yielded $1,599,000 to the state. In 1940, Wood said, the state had its biggest return on the auto sales tax, $8,545,000, but the admission tax yielded only $1,632,000. Of the $1,632,000, which was the admission tax on all amusements, $1,180,000 was from motion picture theaters.

Philadelphia—First day's registration at the Allied Convention here was approximately 350. A total registration of 750 is anticipated before the close of the sessions tomorrow.

As Ohio represents a good cross-section of the country, Wood said it can be seen that the picture business does not follow general business, while the auto tax yield from 1935 to 1940 fluctuated considerably, the admission tax remained pretty much the same, Wood stated.

$40,000,000 Loss from Conscription

The million and half boys in camps is a definite factor in the dollar shrinkage, Wood asserted. Assuming that each of the conscripted boys attended a theater once a week with a girl or another companion and the average admission price was 25 cents, a weekly revenue of $750,000 or $40,000,000 a year has been lost to the theaters.

Wood said the total box-office intake for 1940 was $740,000,000. Defense taxes from motion picture theaters for the year ended June 30, 1941, were $45,000,000, while the later levy on 21 cents to 41 cents brought the total to $53,000,000. The next defense tax starting with the first penny will give the Government another $20,000,000. Wood estimated that the total shrinkage of the motion picture dollar for the year ended June 30, 1942, will be $105,000,000, leaving $635,000,000 in the box-offices instead of $740,000,000 in 1940.

Under such circumstances, plus the increased cost of labor and maintenance, exhibitors cannot pay the demands for increased film rental, Wood said.

RKO Sets First Block With 7 More Circuits

RKO Radio has sold its first block-of-five to seven more circuits, Ned E. Depinet announces. Deals were with Lucas & Jenkins, for 53 theaters; Maine & New Hampshire Circuit, 27 houses; Affiliated Circuit, 30 houses; Associated Playhouses, 32 houses; Skouras Theaters, 50 houses; Consolidated Theaters, 15 houses, and Si Fabian Theaters, 11 houses.

Hollywood — Henry Koster has been promoted to producer-director at Universal and his initial picture under new arrangement will be an untitled story involving an all-feminine cast and will necessitate the discovery and development of a new child star.

His second production will be "The Phantom of the Opera." Both pictures will be made in color.

Equity Council Attacks Pix Probe

"That we hereby condemn the action of the sub-committee as an immediate threat to free thought, free speech and to the very fundamentals of liberty upon which our great nation was founded, and strongly recommend this inquiry be stopped."

Inquiry was described as an attempt of "censorship on free expression of American culture," and the resolution further charged Senators Wheeler, Clark and Nye with the "purpose of blocking the production of anti-Nazi films and breeding racial discord and prejudice."

CIO Office Employes Union Urges Pix Probe Be Halted

Charging the Nye committee now investigating the motion picture industry with "seeking to impose a censorship" on films, John J. Stanley, secretary-treasurer of the United Office and Professional Workers of America, CIO, yesterday urged in a letter to Henry A. Wallace, as presiding officer of the U. S. Senate, that the activities of the Senate subcommittee "be condemned and halted."

Such a censorship, Stanley declared, "runs counter to our constitutional right of free speech and press. This right is vital to our membership in the film industry, the publishing industry, and in the arts." The United Office and Professional Workers, CIO, has just announced the chartering of the Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild, Local 109.

Stanley also denounced the Nye committee for acting as a vehicle for pro-Nazi propaganda while ostensibly investigating anti-Nazi propaganda in the films; and for leveling attacks on racial and religious groups "designed, in typical Hitlerian fashion, to kindle religious war and thus to disunify the American people in the face of their enemies."

Copies of Stanley's letter were sent to Wendell L. Willkie and to Senators Pepper, Wagner and Mead.

Gives "A" Rating to 1 Of 36 in 1st Blocks

average, a "C" is fair or average, a "D" is poor and an "E" is "plain rotten."

One—But One Pic Graded "A"

Since the beginning of the new screening system, only one has been graded "A," eight have been given "B" rating, 23 were in the "C" class, two were graded "D" and none was placed in the "E" category. Two pictures, Cole said, were such that he and his committee did not feel qualified to grade, although he considered both very good. One was "Citizen Kane" and the other "All That Money Can Buy."

COL. H. A. COLE

Cole said he was discouraged that there were not more in the "A" and "B" classes, but was glad to find only two in the "D" and none in the "E" groups.

The Allied president asserted that buying in Texas was slow and presumed it was slow in other territories. He warned exhibitors that their battle for the best terms must be waged on the deals for the first two groups. "If your first two deals are not good," he said, "you're licked for the rest of the year."

Some attention was given to the subject of undelivered pictures on the 1940-41 programs. While further discussions were tabled until later sessions, it was brought out by President Cole that distributors, in most cases, were legally right in the non-delivery of some product but morally obligated to deliver what had been promised.

Features Undelivered

Arthur Howard of New England, pointed out that 20th Century-Fox had not delivered "Sun Valley Serenade," "Belle Starr" and "How Green Was My Valley" on last season's contracts. Paramount had not delivered "Reap the Wild Wind" and "Skylark" and RKO had not delivered "Citizen Kane."

Barney Balaban, Paramount president, announced in trade paper ads in March that "Reap the Wild Wind." would be delivered as promised, it was pointed out. A letter from Balaban to Pete Wood explaining that the hazards of production had held up the picture was read to the convention. It was conceded that because of an escape clause in the work sheets, Paramount was legally within its rights in not delivering the picture but the moral obligation remained.

In opening the convention. which was attended by more than 350 persons, Cole warned that the tax bill is just the beginning of a long series of revenue-raising plans of the Government. That alone, he said, warrants the need for a strong organization to protect the interests of the independent exhibitors and the industry as a whole.

New Problems if Decree Ends

Cole said it was too early accurately to judge the effects of the consent decree, but if it should end, many new problems will have to be faced and the organization will be alert in facing them.

The convention slogan of "Let's get down to business" is being adhered to religiously. There appears to be an eagerness on the part of representatives to plunge into the sessions and to be heard on various complaints. Time to these complaints could not be given yesterday, but the sessions will be thrown wide open today when distribution executives are expected to be present.

A night club party was held last night. Highlight of today's social events will be the world premiere of Paramount's "Nothing But the Truth."

Metro Reveals "Show Builder", Clinic Plans

Philadelphia—Looking to the development of the small town and suburban audience as a major approach to answering the question, "What can be done to make the public more motion picture conscious?", Metro disclosed two moves here yesterday broadly designed to close the gap between general exploitation and practical assistance to smaller communities.

H. M. RICHEY

As outlined by H. M. Richey before Allied's national convention, one is the "Show Builder," described as "a complete advertising and exploitation laboratory which not alone will be of practical benefit to the theater owners but will be of public interest."

The other, said Richey, is embodied in the company's plans for a series of "theater clinics" to be held "over the U. S., during the year." As defined by the speaker, each clinic will be "a meeting of theater owners and for theater owners, not to advertise Metro pictures, but only sponsored by the company."

Round Table Discussion

To the clinics, which will serve as "a round table discussion with theater owners in smaller communities," Metro hopes "to bring experts in advertising, probably some successful small town theater owner and exploitation man with plans of campaigns that he has found successful in the marketing of different types of pictures," Richey told Allied.

The entire day will be spent "discussing how to bring more people to the box-office," he added. Initial clinic will be held in late September or early October.

The first "Show Builder" unit was dedicated at 5 p.m. in front of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, scene of the convention sessions.

Preparing Second Unit

Each "Show Builder"—the number to be employed will depend "on how usable theater owners find the plan" —will be stocked with Metro's 76 exhib. aids, and will have complete projection equipment, public address system, record-making attachments as well as press material, Richey explained. A second mobile unit is in preparation; territorial assignments pending.

In charge of the units, said Richey, will be men who realize the limitations on small town budgets and who understand "that bigger dividends are paid out of ideas which don't necessarily cost money than by elaborately planned campaigns." The speaker stressed that "Show Builder" was created "utilizing the ingenuity of William Ferguson of the exploitation dept."

"We hope this will be a practical answer to what distribution is going to do to assist theater owners in the marketing of motion picture merchandise," Richey declared, adding "These are but two of William F. Rodgers' answers to what can be done to establish closer unity in this business."

Betty Grable In "Yank" P.A.

Betty Grable will do a P.A. at the world premiere of "A Yank in the RAF" which opens at the Roxy Theater on Sept. 26. She will also participate in the midnight military ball and open air carnival to be staged in conjunction with the premiere by the British American Ambulance Corps.

Kirsch Stresses Need Of All-Industry Com.

tomorrow when its consideration is slated to be the highlight of the closing session of national Allied's annual convention.

Impetus to the proposal was given by Jack Kirsch, president of Illinois Allied, at the first sessions yesterday. This liaison group, Kirsch said, should fulfill the following functions: A clearing house for all industry problems; frequent meetings to acquaint exhibitors with sales policies, their effects and possible adjustments; setting up of a committee to make surveys, reports on public reaction to pictures and current public tastes; forming of groups to offset unfavorable publicity, and to check up on and participate in charitable enterprises.

Kirsch stressed the need for this intra-industry body and said the place to start it was right here at the convention. He said the preliminary discussions should include or be restricted to the presidents of the film companies and that all attorneys should be barred from the sessions. Attorneys, he said, meant well but their presence tended to inject too many legal technicalities.

The committee, Kirsch asserted, should be guided and dictated to by the good business judgment of the industry executives. Politics, he said, should be side-tracked so that the way can be paved for better industry harmony and understanding.

Now, with a more liberal policy, Star hopes film admen will up lineage without the pressure.

Allied Cold to PCC's Monopoly Probe Request

Allied Will Not Be Drawn Into Inquiry on Any False Issue— Cole

Philadelphia—Resolution by the PCC calling for a Senate investigation of monopoly in the picture industry had "thunderbolt" effects on Allied leaders here yesterday. While refusing to make comment on the PCC move, it was quite evident that the Allied heads were not in sympathy with the action.

Allied's position, however, was set forth in a statement made before

Named by Kent to Succeed McCarthy; Bergman's Post to be Filled; Staff Otherwise Unchanged

A. M. BOTSFORD

Appointment of A. M. Botsford to succeed Charles E. McCarthy as director of advertising and publicity of 20th-Fox was announced yesterday by Sidney R. Kent, president. McCarthy, who resigned several weeks ago, remained on at Kent's request until the latter had returned from his Summer vacation.

Botsford, who recently was affiliated with the Paramount production staff and was in charge of advertising and publicity at Paramount many years ago under Kent, assumed his new duties at once.

Botsford told THE FILM DAILY the present staff remains intact and that he did not contemplate making any changes. He said the post of Maurice A. Bergman, advertising director who resigned along with McCarthy, will be filled as soon as he gave the matter some consideration.

After remaining here for about a week, Botsford will leave for the West Coast where he will clear up his personal affairs and move his family back to New York.

In his statement, Kent expressed appreciation of the fact that McCarthy had agreed to stay on through course of action in regard to BMI, Leonard Rosenthal, Troy exhibitor and attorney, told the Allied convention here yestreday.

Contending that music should be taxed at its source, meaning Hollywood, Rosenthal pointed out that BMI's music library is rapidly increasing in strength and popularity and that the time may come when BMI will be collecting in the picture business. Then, he said, the exhibitors will be paying tribute to both BMI and Ascap.

The four "spankings" which gave encouragement to exhibitors, Rosenthal said, were the radio companies' action against Ascap which eventually resulted in a payment cut of from 7 per cent to 2¾ per cent; the Government's suit against the organization; the Supreme Court's ruling upholding the states' anti-Ascap laws, and the West Coast exhibitors' action against Ascap.

If Radio can do it, why can't the motion picture theaters? Rosenthal asked.

The issue was presented for comment to Abram F. Myers, general counsel, who said it would take some study and that a course of action would be put up to the board of directors.

FWC May Install Soda Fountains in Theaters

San Francisco—Local soda fountain fixture firms state Fox West Coast is considering installing the fountains in a number of nabe and de luxe houses. Candy bars have been turning in nice profit. Counter setup, however, will run into far more money than the candy counters. While usherettes have handled candy sales, fountains will probably have full time girls.

Independent theater men here have considered the idea in the past but figured it had too many headaches—another union to deal with—and a pack of state and city building and health ordinances that crop up when you serve food.

● ● ● EVERYBODY is saying it's a great convention......and it is......We mean Allied's 12th annual get-together now going on at Benjamin Franklin Hotel here in Philadelphia......and which winds up this afternoon......The guy who deserves a major part of the credit is Sid Samuelson, the convention chairman, who took more than seriously the slogan, "Let's Get Down to Business"......because on Tuesday when the first session was called for 2 o'clock, the session started at 2 o'clock, or to be exact, at 2:14, and President Harry Cole raised hell about the loss of 14 minutes......which is something out of the ordinary for any kind of a convention's schedule......

● ● ● THE exhibits are something to talk about......The film companies that have show-windows didn't do things half-way......M-G-M has Leo, himself, here......a gentle little lion but who wants to crawl in his cage and find out just how gentle he is......Many did and have pictures to prove it......And that M-G-M Show-Builder truck was a traffic-stopper......Parked in front of the hotel it made passers-by gape with astonishment..... much to the pleasure of Bill Ferguson, H. M. Richey, Bill Rodgers and others who had a lot to do with its birth......And when Leo walked across a tight-rope made to resemble a tree branch on a busy Philly street......Well, you can imagine what the natives' reactions were......

● ● ● AND Paramount......Boy, oh Boy, what a show that company had......Not content with tossing the world premiere of "Nothing But the Truth"......which had the town tied up in knots......Paramount had a juke box offer trailers of new pictures for the main course ......and then for dessert a little bit of burlesque on a miniature stage ......with a strip-teaser......and just at the interesting part the little lady held up a sign which read......'Now for something hot"...... and all around the stage......in lights......were the titles of Paramount's new season pictures......

● ● ● WHILE wandering around the convention we learned that......Lee Newbury of New Jersey is planning a trip to Peru with the Mrs.......that Erwin Wagner of Wagner Signs is in Montana and his usual exhibit and party room is being hostessed by Liz Dey......that Paramount's "Bare Facts" stunt was the brain-child of Alex Moss......that "Skip" Weshner had a caricaturist sketch anybody who wanted to be mugged in the United Artists booth and the gang loved it......that the business sessions had a new wrinkle in seating......instead of putting the delegates in rows of chairs everybody sat around tables adding comfort to the meetings......that M-G-M published a daily mimeographed newspaper......

● ● ● BUT to get on......It is reported that a large number of exhibs. en route to the convention happened to pass Havre de Grace ......and that's plenty horsey......if you like racing......and so many stopped to lose their dough (or maybe some won)......that they missed the first sessions of the convention......But all is forgiven because the big events are due this afternoon......

Inquiry "Dishonest," Terminate It—ITOA petition to the Congress of the U. S., in the exercise of its inherent powers as a legislative body to terminate such inquiry forthwith."

The resolution charges that "the examiners have consciously and deliberately publicized unsupported and unfounded assumptions" and adds the object is "the self-aggrandizement of those who place personal notoriety and the venting of personal spleen above expressed national policy."

Copies of the resolution were telegraphed to each member of the Senate sub-committee and to Senators Bennett Champ Clark, and Gerald P. Nye, and Vice-President Henry Wallace.

At its meeting the ITOA also discussed film prices for the new season. It was reported buying by its member theaters thus far is slow.

A discussion of the new taxes to go into effect on Oct. 1 likewise was held.

Three More Mich. Houses Planning to Use "Flesh"

Detroit — With four downtown houses committed to stage show policies last week, either permanently or intermittently, the move toward flesh became a rush here with plans disclosed for three more houses in the territory. Major move will be made Oct. 26 when the Rialto at Flint, operated by Associated Theaters, opens with Gypsy Rose Lee and five other acts.

Two houses built in Detroit within the past few months are planning to go to stage shows. First of these will be the Carmen, tentatively slated to switch over Oct. 1. Other house has not been identified by the bookers.

In the latter two cases, the houses had difficulty getting pictures of suitable box office value.

Another Western Role for Taylor

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—Metro has tentatively assigned Robert Taylor to another western film, "The Saga of the American Cowboy," from Will James's book.

Just Like In Movies

Detroit—Ray Schreiber staged a western of his own at the Palmer Park Theater. Two armed bandits got into the house at night, dragged the safe into the projection booth to open it—and were discovered. They barricaded themselves in, seven police came in and the officers shot up the booth until they surrendered.

Metro to Aid Allied All-Industry Plan

endorsing Allied's plan for an all-industry group and pledging M-G-M's support.

In commenting further on the proposal, Rodgers declared it was a foregone conclusion that before anything constructive can materialize it is essential that all exhibitor organizations, whether formed into one large body or not, should nevertheless, have a co-ordinated understanding at least, so that they would be in step with each other. Such a setup, he said, would find responsive attention on the part of the distributors.

Solid Front Necessary

Unified theater interests are necessary for a solid front, Rodgers said, adding that, "after all, our problems are common and your objective should be likewise common that we, with you, may benefit to the fullest extent in the rewards possible through unity and harmony." He contended that there is no problem in this industry too great to be solved within itself.

Declaring that politicians should confine their talents to political issues, Rodgers said: "It positively nauseates me to hear those who have contributed the least complain the most against an industry which has always served its country, state and community effectively, usually without pay and always without franking privileges."

"In general," Rodgers said, "our business is going through a most strenuous experience. The opportunity for misunderstanding is greater today than ever. The time is so apparent for cool heads."

Rodgers expressed the hope that when, and if, the New York consent decree is changed it will be accomplished by a unified motion picture industry.

Metro's Sliding Percentages

M-G-M's new sales plan of sliding percentages was discussed by Rodgers, who answered questions by exhibitors from the floor. He said that generally speaking the plan was devised with a purpose in mind that "our increase, if any, would come from an increase in your own gross receipts," adding that "we believe that by starting at the bottom and going up that adjustments would be automatic and you would be paying for our merchandise based upon its ability to draw at your box office."

The basis under which M-G-M is willing to deal is on the individual conditions affecting the individual theater, Rodgers said.

Producing Chinese Features in Malaya

Production of Chinese features has been started in Malaya, with 12 expected to be made during the year, it was said here yesterday by Maurice "Red" Silverstein, Metro's South Seas division head. About the same number will be made there in Malay. Production in Java is being stepped up and about two features monthly are being turned out. Latter are in Malay.

War Aids Far Eastern Market heads Metro's South Seas division with headquarters in Singapore.

The influx of troops, plus the wartime demand for tin and rubber, have combined to give a lift to all business in Silverstein's territory which now comprises British Malaya, the Dutch East Indies and Thailand, the Metro rep said. Theater biz he described as "quite good."

Theater Building Halted

Defense demands on steel, etc., have brought theater construction virtually to a halt. Only building at the present time is in the Dutch East Indies base of Bandoeng where three new houses, a 750-seat class theater, a 1,000-seat theater which will adopt a mixed policy and a 1,100-seat second-run theater, are being erected by two exhibs. who have combined to break a 10-year monopoly there enjoyed by F. Puse, who operates a string of 11 houses.

Houses in the Dutch East Indies, Silverstein revealed, now total more than 200; there are approximately 100 in Malaya. Seating capacities range from 200 to 1,500 in Malaya and Thailand and from 250 to 1,000 in the Dutch East Indies. All keys in Malaya are air conditioned with Carrier and York Equipment.

Average admission price in the territory is 50c Straits, equivalent to 25 cents in U. S. coin. Single bills prevail; games and giveaways are unknown.

Deals in the territory are essentially on a percentage basis; all Metro deals with keys are in that column and checkers function as they do here.

Tarzan No. One "Draw"

"Tarzan" pix, according to Silverstein, are No. 1 box-office draw. Comedies, musicals and fantasies—he mentioned "Thief of Bagdad" and "Wizard of Oz" specifically—are other prime favorites.

The war, it was added, has brought a sharp jump in the demand for American newsreels. Metro, meeting it, is shipping its News of the Day by Clipper and the reels reach screens within eight days from the time of release in New York. Incidentally, the British authorities cooperate 100 per cent in publicizing war clips in the U. S. reels as well as such shorts as "Eyes of the Navy," Silverstein said.

Discussing the effect of the war on censorship, he stated that, if anything, the censors were easing up, although still shying away from gun play in pix.

French, German Product Out

Dutch super-imposed titles are used only for prints distributed in the Dutch East Indies, English dialogue being alone used in Malaya and Thailand. Thanks to excellent Dutch and British colonial administration, Silverstein said illiteracy was non-existent. French and German product, once important factors in the Dutch East Indies, have disappeared as a result of the war.

American films are reaching distribs. with virtually no trouble, save that arising from the fact that branches seldom know when a boat is coming in, Silverstein commented. British features and newsreels are coming through but, in the instance of the former, they have to be "very good" to get real biz, while the time element works against the newsreels, it was added.

Silverstein, who arrived in New York this week after three years in the Orient for Metro, is on his honeymoon; his bride is Betty Bryant, Australian star seen in "40,000 Horsemen." They will return to Singapore in late November.

Para. Eager to Co-op. In Effort for Common Good

Philadelphia — Paramount is not only ready but eager to co-operate with any real and unselfish effort for the common good in this industry as a whole, Claude Lee, director of public relations, declared at the Allied convention here yesterday.

"If we have strength in unity for repelling a common foe," Lee said, "why isn't the same strength of unity a force and a power for accomplishment in maintaining the dignity and in advancing the general welfare of our business?"

Lee, in hoping that the all-industry group plan would materialize, said that the procedure which will develop the most faith and confidence is one conceived in the spirit of the round table—a table without a head or a foot—dedicated to the purpose of submerging personal advantage and aggrandizement to the ultimate good of all of us in the industry.

Call on CPB for Help, Levin Tells Allied Exhibs.

Philadelphia—Work of the Copyright Protection Bureau in safeguarding exhibitors from unfair competition was described yesterday by Jack Levin at the second session of the Allied convention here. The Bureau, he said, was designed to help exhibitors and they should call on its services whenever they need them.

Levin, who is chief counsel for the bureau, warned against making verbal agreements, adding that it was the duty of his organization to prevent "sloppy selling." The Bureau, he said, had been active in keeping itinerant or "gypsy" shows to a minimum.

Allied Cold to PCC's Monopoly Probe Bid

news of the PCC proposal reached the convention. Col. H. A. Cole, national president, said that Allied did not want to be drawn into an inquiry, such as is being conducted by the Senate sub-committee, on any false issue. Consensus here, unofficially, is that the monopoly issue was injected when the propaganda charges appeared to be unsubstantiated.

However, individual Allied members believe that the PCC has laid itself wide open to immediate subpoenas before the investigating committee and, while Allied may feel that monopoly exists, this is not regarded as the time to bring it up, especially when the movement toward unity is so definitely under way.

Schenck Will Face Senators Tuesday

Brooks, D., Ill., another sub-committee member, to return from the American Legion Milwaukee convention in time for the hearings which were expected to resume today.

Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's, Inc., president, is scheduled to be the first industry witness.

Chicago — National headquarters of the America First Committee is "not interested" in the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee's film inquiry, and plans no participation via requests to be heard, it was said here yesterday by Richard Moore, Committee's publicity director.

Desire of Brooks to be present indicates he intends to join in the cross-examination. It is not customary to adjourn a hearing for the absence of one member unless he specifically requests to be present.

The inquiry's sponsors stated emphatically that the White House comments on the investigation would have no effect on their plans, and the investigation would be pressed.

Clark said the sub-committee was not created to "persecute anybody." The investigation, he said, is still in a fact-finding stage and "if the movies can prove their case they have nothing to worry about."

"Perfectly Justified"—Clark

"On the basis of evidence thus far presented to the sub-committee," Clark asserted, "we are perfectly justified in concluding tentatively that the industry produces such (hate-inspiring) films despite the outcry of theater operators and patrons against them.

"Mr. Roosevelt has been a very busy man lately and it is improbable that he has had time to see many of these films, most of which have been released during the past six months."

Sen. Gerald P. Nye, (R., N. D.,) co-author of a resolution which opened the investigation, said he was not surprised by the President's statement; that he had expected "for some time" the administration would use "pressure" against the inquiry.

'Let Industry Censor and Label Propaganda Pix,' Suggests Nye

Rochester—Labeling of propaganda movies as such was advocated by Senator Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., in an interview here yesterday. Nye, here from Washington to address a No-War Committee rally, said he thought the industry could do its own "censoring and labeling" because it already has a censorship of its own.

The North Dakotan insisted with reference to the present Senate inquiry, "There is no want to censor, no appetite for Government control," but added that he thought the industry should entertain a larger responsibility toward the public.

Nye declared "we have evidence the movies injected propaganda into their pictures on behest of the Government. Either that, or the movies are deliberately misrepresenting."

(The Associated Press in a Rochester dispatch yesterday quoted Nye as declaring "as long as interventionists want to inject the anti-Semitic issues" in the debate over foreign policy, "perhaps this is the time to be speaking very frankly."

(The AP story continued: "The racial issue was injected by Wendell L. Willkie, attorney for the motion picture industry in the present Senate committee investigation and a foreign policy supporter, in connection with press announcements at the opening of the hearing," he said.)

Screen Publicists Guilds Demand Immediate Termination of Senate Film "Inquisition"

Immediate termination of the Wheeler-Clark-Nye "inquisition" was demanded by the Screen Publicists Guilds of New York and Hollywood meeting here in convention in a telegram sent to President Roosevelt, Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, Ariz., Senators Hiram W. Johnson and Sheridan Downey of Calif., and Robert F. Wagner and James M. Mead of N. Y., and Will H. Hays, MPPDA prexy.

The wire stated: "We, the national convention of the Screen Publicists Guilds, do condemn the current Wheeler-Clark-Nye inquisition of the motion picture industry as a vicious threat to American unity and to the inalienable democratic American rights of free press and free speech. We therefore demand its immediate termination."

Signatories to the wire were Steven L. Freeland, co-chairman, N. Y., and Nat W. James, co-chairman, Hollywood.

Singapore Exhib. in U. S. To Troupe With Own Films

San Francisco—"Singapore" Joe Fisher, probably the best known exhibitor in the Orient, is planning to tour the U. S., lecturing and showing color films he has taken himself. Theme of pictures and lecture are the defenses of Singapore and the Dutch East Indies.

Theater business in the Orient, outside of Japanese-controlled territory, is excellent, Fisher reports. He hoots at the possibilities of a successful Japanese attack on either the Dutch Indies or Singapore. In fact he is convinced that Japan now understands that the U. S. is not bluffing—and that there is little danger of war in the East.

Portland Clearance-Zoning Test Seen in Arbit'n Case

Portland, Ore.—Clearance action instituted before the AAA tribunal by William Graeper's Egyptian Theater here is regarded as a test case, with others to follow if the arbitrator's award favors the complainant.

☆ ☆ REVIEWS OF THE NEW FILMS ☆ ☆

"Suspicion"

with Cary Grant, Joan Fontaine

RKO Radio 99 Mins.

ACE ROMANTIC MELLER, SUPERBLY DIRECTED AND ACTED; A DIRECT HIT FOR OUTLETS AND FANS FAR AND WIDE.

Alfred Hitchcock has done it again,—scoring early and sensationally in the new season via a film which is superbly directed by him; which bristles with stark melodramatics interlaced with skillful nuances; and filled with those elements which quicken the heart-beat and raise bumper crops of goose-pimples. All is not excitement which glitters in the footage, for it is packed with fine acting and thoughtful technical touches.

Although titled "Suspicion," there is not even a remote doubt about this production's consistent success at box-offices everywhere. Its story, dealing with the romance and married life of a man and maid in pre-war England, stands in sharp contrast to the Hitchcock-directed "Foreign Correspondent." The latter was about the present War, while "Suspicion" is about a "war of nerves" which Joan Fontaine, the apparently headed-for-spinsterhood daughter of a retired General of the British Army, undergoes after becoming the wife of a "rotter" husband whom she loves with transcending devotion.

To Cary Grant is assigned the difficult role of the young husband with a thirst for living parasitically; shocked at the immediate post-honeymoon realization that his bride was no financial "catch"; and so tries to pay his marital way by borrowing money with only the racetrack as a channel of possible repayment. Miss Fontaine, brilliantly playing the rudely and progressively disillusioned wife, sees her irresponsible mate getting deeper and deeper into criminal tendencies. He is dishonorably discharged as manager of his cousin's estate for appropriating money; lies habitually; and then appears to plot the murder of his prospective partner in a real estate venture, Nigel Bruce.

When the latter dies in Paris under mysterious circumstances, the already nerve-wracked Fontaine sees Grant's hand in the deed. To add fuel to the fires of suspicion which are gradually consuming her, there are grounds for belief that she is to be murdered by him for her life insurance. Here Hitchcock turns on the full power of his reservoir of spine-chilling with a climax scene wherein Grant takes his distraught wife to her mother's home via automobile. The route lies along precipitous cliffs. As a result of her sudden hysteria, the car nearly plunges into the sea. There is a happy ending growing out of her straight-off conviction that suspicion, and not fact, was the seed of her fears. Featured with the Grant-Fontaine starring combo are Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Nigel Bruce and Dame May Whitty, all of whom turn in top-flight performances, as do other members of the cast. If any flaw is to be cited in this virtually flawless film, it might prove to be the title itself,— the word "Suspicion" being something of a tip-off to audiences looking at the picture that Miss Fontaine's terror is groundless, thereby tending to dilute the tremendous potential suspense.

RKO Radio, its customer-outlets, and all entertainment seekers have a bonanza in this one.

"Outlaws of Cherokee Trail" with The Three Mesquiteers, Lois Collier

Republic 56 Mins.

A SLAM-BANG WESTERN; ONE OF THE MOST EXCITING TO GALLOP OFF THE REPUBLIC LOT RECENTLY.

Action aplenty as the Three Mesquiteers ride with the Texas Rangers. Six-shooters do not get the opportunity to grow cold in this film. Both the law and bad men really sling lead and the number of casualties as a result of the gang's lawlessness probably reaches a new high. It all points to red-blooded entertainment.

Director Les Orlebeck unerringly followed the formula with good results and gets credit for a snappy megaphone job. Photography and musical score are blended well with the action. Three Mesquiteers, Bob Steele, Tom Tyler and Rufe Davis, act the part of cowboy heroes and prove right handy with their fists. Lois Collier supplies the necessary heart-throb with Tom Chatterton, Roy Barcroft and Joel Friedkin in satisfactory supporting roles.

Film has to do with ruthless gang under guidance of Barcroft which takes a jurisdictional advantage by remaining behind the Cherokee border after they have done their dirty work in Texas. Head of Texas Ranger asks men to observe law and not cross boundary line for bandits.

In meantime, gang leader has planted one of his henchmen with captain of Texas Ranger. Three Mesquiteers get wind of gang's plot to kidnap captain's daughter, Miss Collier. In a hard riding and walloping finish, The Three Mesquiteers withstand the gang and help effect their capture.

CAST: Bob Steele, Tom Tyler, Rufe Davis, Lois Collier, Tom Chatteron, Joel Friedkin, Roy Barcroft, Philip Trent, Rex Lease, Peggy Lynn.

☆ SHORTS ☆

"The Kitchen Quiz"

(Quiz Reel)

Columbia 11 mins.

Good Femme Attraction

Featuring Ed East and Polly of the radio, this subject will attract the ladies. East, a jolly gent, queries his audience on kitchen and cooking problems, making for a lot of fun while adding to their knowledge of kitchen tricks. Hints embrace a number of problems, from shopping for watermelons to cleaning silver with sour milk, all done in a light manner.

"Miracle Makers"

(Hollywood Novelty)

Vitaphone 10 mins.

Routine Effort

Featuring the Cyclatron, a device to smash atoms, with an explanation of its possible potentialities, this subject will prove of scant interest to most audiences. Film traces the development of power from the early methods utilizing water, through steam and electricity and closes with a hint of the power contained in the atom and its possibilities when means of controlling that power are found.

"Shooting Mermaids"

(Sportlight)

Paramount 10 mins.

Interesting Technique Expose

Film fans, having seen numerous swimming scenes taken under water, will be interested in this subject showing how such material is photographed. With Ted Husing narrating, the reel shows the paraphernalia necessary for this type of shot and the way it is used. With an aquatic chorus for action, the film reveals the glass studio used by the performers between shots, an underwater "filling station" where they can get breaths of fresh air, a tank-like object for the camera, and other interesting stuff.

"In a Pet Shop"

(Speaking of Animals)

Paramount 8 mins.

Very Funny

The first of the Speaking of Animals series was a laugh riot in theaters all over the country and this follow up should do about as well. Through a combination of trick photography and animation the birds and animals in a pet shop talk back to the narrator and to each other using a series of very funny gags. Birds, fish, a turtle, rabbits and dogs turn to the audience and give out with remarks that should produce plenty of hilarity. Examples are the battered sparrow who claims he got mixed up in a fast bandminton game and the Spitz dog that does!

"The Ice Carnival"

20th-Fox 7 mins.

Entertaining

Cartoon is the familiar one about the race between the hare and the tortoise. Egged on by his children, the tortoise races the hare. The latter, cocky and confident, skates rings around his opponent. Little tortoise then plunges under the ice and with the aid of a magnet and a big fish helps propel his father over the finishing line first.

"The Gay Knighties"

(Madcap Model)

Paramount 9 mins.

Technically Good

Artistically and technically this subject is fine but it suffers from a lack of the action which is a feature of the better cartoons. As always, Producer George Pal's backgrounds and models are striking and the Technicolor is first-rate. Story involves Jim Dandy's adventures with an orgre in the days of Knighthood, how he charms the big one with his music and marries the princess.

"Broken Treaties"

Columbia 8 mins.

Dated Material

The well-known commentator, Raymond Gram Swing, makes his screen bow in this subject but the material is so old that its value, except as a historical review, is doubtful. Via animated drawings the subject explains the early days of the war from Hitler's acquisition of Czechoslovakia through the conquest of Poland and its division with Russia. Material appears too new to pass as history and to dated to be current comment.

"The Henpecked Duck"

(Looney Tune)

Vitaphone 7 mins.

Funny Cartoon

Against a barnyard divorce court background, the comical adventures of Daffy Duck are told. Seems that the duck-pecked Daffy was entrusted to sit on an egg while Mrs. Duck went visiting. He tries out him amateur magic, makes the egg disappear but can't make it reappear until his final effort in court.

"Guardians of the Wilds"

(Paragraphic)

Paramount 10 mins.

Good Forestry Subject

Picturizing the many activities of the Forest Service of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, this reel will be of great interest to many people. The manifold jobs of the Forest Rangers, from predicting amounts of spring water for crops to fighting forest fires, and embracing national park recreation, and management of Government grazing lands, are well photographed and make interesting material.

Prepare for Decree's End, Warns Myers

as to their experiences to date under the consent decree in order to determine a satisfactory selling method if the decree should be abandoned, Abram F. Myers urged yesterday.

Unless the so-called "Little Three" are brought in under the provisions of the decree, the Allied general counsel said, nothing is going to keep the present consent decree effective. Then the industry must devise a sales plan that will be both satisfactory and permanent, Myers said, indicating that it was not too soon to start thinking about it.

Commenting on the arbitration procedure, Myers said that a criticism he could make was the battery of distributor attorneys who often sit in on the hearings. The average exhibitor's lawyer, he continued, is not familiar with industry jargon and terms so that the distributors' lawyers, many of whom helped write the consent decree, can deliver a lecture to the arbitrator in what he can or can't do, thus putting the complainant at a disadvantage.

In this regard, W. F. Rodgers, M-G-M sales head, later said that his company would not have its lawyears at hearings unless they are of unusual importance.

Myers said technicalities should be held to a minimum so that a decision can be made on the facts.

Myers praised the trade papers for their work in reporting arbitration cases and decisions and urged exhibitors to read them carefully.

Yesterday's meeting closed with Myers conducting a questions and answers session on the new admission tax.

The ban was to have been lifted Sept. 22, but new outbreaks may cause further postponement, at least in some counties.

There have been 406 cases of the disease reported in 54 of the state's 67 countries, but with the exception of 11 counties no ban has been placed.

The epidemic has hit theater attendance, not so much because children are not permitted in theaters, but because adults have become panicky, thereby dropping attendance.

Leo, Our Bums, a Drive-In, and a Penthouse:

● ● ● IF you were to take over the motion picture desk of your local newspaper, just what changes and improvements would you make? ......How would you approach reviews?......Would you report audience reaction and comment and/or your opinion?......Would you use Hollywood columns?......If so, which ones?......Would you cover local events daily in a by-line column?......All these questions are being asked exhibitors and publicity men currently by M-G-M on a nation-wide scale......and we quote from Leo himself, the reason why:

● ● ● "THE FILM DAILY poll of motion picture editors (published in the 1941 Production Guide and Directors' Annual on Sept. 4) resulted in a wealth of constructive and interesting information......They asked the editors what they would do if they were producers, publicity directors, etc.......We found the results extremely valuable in checking our service to the editors ......It occurred to us that a similar poll of exhibitors might result in some illuminating comment and information which would serve the same purpose for the editors"......So Leo is asking the exhibs. and publicists to tell "What I would do if I were a motion picture editor"......—and the producing company will publish the findings in its weekly round-robin letter to the said m.p. editors......It's a smart and serviceable move......

● ● ● IT'S a contest to end all contests that election being conducted by the Brooklyn Dodgers Victory Committee to determine the most popular and most colorful players fighting for the National League pennant under the McPhail banner......Ballots, printed in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, are cast in boxes in the Fabian Fox or Brooklyn Paramount Theaters on the stages of which the prizes will be awarded the winners the night of Friday, Sept. 26......Not even the hottest borough election in Brooklyn's history has created quite the stir of this contest, piloted by a committee that is a veritable local "who's who"......Votes are pouring in by the tens of thousands......the Eagle's circulation is zooming......and the Fabian lobbies are thronged......Nice going on the part of Si Fabian, Al Reid, Hal Fisher, Charles Dowe and Joe Lee...... all of whom have put their shoulders to the wheel......P.S.: Who was it that said baseball was "opposition," anyway?......

● ● ● OUT in the Town of Cheektowaga (suburban Buffalo, N. Y.), stands the Drive-In stand managed by Go-Getter Milton Harris who has that "house," whose roof is the sky, co-opping with the Treasury Department......Instead of giving patrons coin for change (unless the fans insist otherwise, which few do), 10c Defense Stamps are substituted......Additionally, Harris promotion is helping the theater, community prosperity, and the local boys in military service......One per cent of the Drive-In's employes' salaries together with contributions by regular three-time-a-week patrons goes to the Buffalo News fund to buy cigarets for the Army lads......A famous furniture store was sold the idea of purchasing several thousand Drive-In admissions and these tickets are given to the emporium's customers making a purchaser of $1 or more......

denied this right, will take the battle to the floor of the Senate.

In this fight he will join Sen. Claude Pepper, D., Fla., who last week issued a withering blast against the committee; Senators Scott W. Lucas, D., Ill., and Charles O. Andrews, D., Fla., who yesterday attacked the committee by inference on the floor of the Senate; and Senator Ernest McFarland, D., Ariz., who has been carrying the torch for freedom of expression before the sub-committee.

Film Execs. Who Will Testify

His committee in recess until Tuesday, Chairman D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, announced yesterday that Harry M. Warner, Barney Balaban and Lieut.-Col. Darryl F. Zanuck would follow Nicholas M. Schenck on the stand, in the order named.

The "entire financial and economic standpoint" of the film industry will be subjected to a thorough going-over by the sub-committee when its inquiry into alleged war propaganda via films resumes Tuesday.

This was disclosed by Clark, who outlined the scope of questioning to which Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., and other industry execs. will be subjected. Clark indicated that the monopoly aspect would receive primary attention.

(The AP reported: "The chairman said he would question Mr. Schenck about methods of distributing and booking recent war pictures in an attempt to learn if independent theater operators and exhibitors were forced to show them.")

Clark pooh-pooed suggestions that his committee might lack authority to continue its inquiry and he likewise hit back at a statement of Wendell Willkie, counsel for the film industry, that asserted war propaganda films portrayed only the truth.

Questions Allocating Funds

The issue of questionable authority for expending Senate funds on the inquiry was suggested by Lucas, chairman of the Senate Audit and Control Committee, which controls the purse-strings on Senate expenditures and funds.

Lucas pointed out that the sub-committee inquiry was solely on a resolution by Senators Bennett Clark, D., Mo., and Gerald Nye, R., N. D., asking a Senate investigation on asserted war propaganda and monopoly. The Illinois Senator said a question of expenditures was being studied, although he denied any attempt to shut off or halt the inquiry.

"We have all the powers of any committee of Congress to conduct hearings and call witnesses," Senator Clark told reporters. "We certainly can't pass upon this resolution without some facts and a record of some kind.

"This is just a case of somebody's very rich ox being gored."

Referring to Willkie's statement, Clark commented to the newsmen: "The truth is no answer to this. Murder and rape probably are committed every day in this country. We don't want them portrayed in our films even though they might be the facts and the truth."

Clark observed that recent blood purges in Russia and similar brutal events in other nations might have been the truth, but should not be forced upon the theater-going public in what he called "an effort to develop a mass hate."

REVIEWS OF NEW FILMS

"The Apache Kid"

with Don "Red" Barry, Lynn Merrick, Leroy Mason

Republic 56 Min.

LIVELY WESTERN STARRING DON "RED" BARRY WHICH SHOULD RATE HIGH WITH COWBOY FANS.

As "The Apache Kid," Don "Red" Barry holds his own with the rest of the Republic cowboy stars. He gives a convincing performance as the lad who saves his friends and neighbors from the clutches of his unscrupulous uncle.

Forced west because their Missouri land has been ravaged by dust storms, Barry and his neighbors head for the Oregon frontier. Barry's uncle, Robert Fiske, has the party head into his territory where he is building a government road. It is Walker's aim to have the people work on the road with as little pay as possible.

Payroll robberies by Walker's henchmen serve as an excuse for Walker to pay the farmers in scrip. Barry sets out to prevent the scheme and robs the stagecoach himself making sure the money is turned over to the sheriff so his friends can get their full pay.

Most of the action is confined to the efforts of Walker's gang to trap Barry. George Sherman, as associate producer and director, keeps the chase scenes brimming with action and gun play. Lynn Merrick is an attractive heroine. There is a good comic characterization by the stagecoach driver .

CAST: Don "Red" Barry, Lynn Merrick, Leroy Mason, Robert Fiske, John Elliot, Forbes Murray, Monte Montague, Al St. Johns, Fred Toones.

☆ SHORTS ☆

"Soldiers of the Sky"

20th-Fox 10 mins.

Swell Reel

An interesting pictorial account of Uncle Sam's newest fighting organization, the 501st Parachute Battalion. Excellent camera work marks the reel as all the steps in making a parachute jumper are traced. Finish has the sky filled with parachutes as the soldiers complete their training course. It is absorbing program material and a creditable addition to the series of Adventures of a Newsreel Cameraman. Paul Douglas did the commentary.

"The Quiz Kids"

Paramount 11 mins.

Will Go Over

Known all over the country, the Quiz Kids will be a natural drawing card on a theater marquee. And their performances in this reel will not disappoint their fans. Asked a variety of tough questions by Quiz Master Joe Kelly, the youngsters display an amazing lack of any camera shyness as they give their answers—getting most of them right in an unrehearsed performance. Subject is the first of a 1941-42 series.

"The One Man Navy"

20th-Fox 7 mins.

Amusing Reel

Gandy the Goose is the feature of this Technicolor cartoon. Disappointed because he is turned down by the Army, Gandy originates some of his own marine equipment such as having the hens lay eggs loaded with TNT. He sinks a submarine and is honored by the Navy.

"American Sea Power"

20th-Fox 10 mins.

Absorbing Subject

A day with the U. S. Navy handled with a fresh slant. Highlight of the reel is the camera shots of the big guns of the fleet in action which were photographed and recorded by Al Brick and Warren McGrath. Subject covers the activities of the sailors aboard a ship and how the Navy trains them. Lowell Thomas does the commentary.

"Show Dogs"

(World of Sports)

Columbia 10 mins.

Good Canine Subject

Let the dog fanciers in the locality know about this reel and they will be greatly interested. "Show Dogs" features shots at a large dog show and covers a wide variety of prize dogs with special emphasis on one Nornay Saddler, winner of 60 first places in the canine exhibitions.

Contract Innovations Rapped by Allied

exhibitors to resist the new methods and to insist that their deals be written "cleanly in accordance with methods which they fully understand which do not hold such grave danger in the future."

Opposes "Sliding Scale"

While not mentioning M-G-M, the resolution was directed against the sliding scale method which, it was declared, affords the sapping of all profits from the exhibition of pictures and to increase the "domination of the distributors over the business and operations of the exhibitor."

Allied in particular protested against the retention by distributors of the right to re-designate pictures in their "sole discretion notwithstanding that the pictures have been completed, tradeshown and the terms inserted in the schedules opposite the titles."

Protest also was registered against the emphasis placed on overages and particularly the printed provision in one form for an overage of 50% on all pictures for the reason cited in sub-paragraph "A," plus "the obvious fact that once this practice has been established there will be a constant temptation to lower the splitting points."

Fears Percentage Increases

Exhibitors were cautioned that these contract forms were prepared for use at a time when business was poor, but, according to Allied, when business improves, it will be found that the new selling methods will allegedly provide a ready and effective means to increase percentage demands.

Steve Broidy, Monogram sales manager, spoke briefly at the final session, thanking exhibitors for their support and declaring that Monogram hereafter was going to be known as the "grateful company."

No Carbon Shortage

E. A. Williford, manager of the carbon sales division of National Carbon Co., told the convention that there was no danger of a carbon shortage and there would be no increase in prices.

A vote of thanks was extended to Sidney Samuelson and his committees for having made the convention an outstanding success. Thanks also went to the speakers for their addresses and contribution to the events of the convention.

The annual banquet last night was the final event on the convention program; delegates depart homewards today.

Lawuers Guild Hits Film Investigation

Washington Bur., THE FILM DAILY

Washington—The Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee's film inquiry is assailed as "a shocking misuse of power and usurpation of authority" by the National Lawyers Guild in letters to Senate leaders.

Clark Ducks on Censorship

Sidesteps ACLU "Forthright Position" Plea

Replying to the American Civil Liberties Union's request that his sub-committee "take a forthright position against any Federal censorship of motion pictures," Sen. D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee's sub-committee conducting the inquiry into alleged film and radio propaganda stated that "we have no specific legislation in view."

Subsequent developments, Senator Clark added, "will be the guide as to whether or not any legislation will be necessary."

In answering the Union's statement that discussion of the motives of film producers, arising in the course of the inquiry, beclouds essential issues, Senator Clark wrote:

"I quite agree with you that motives are often indeterminate things and can easily obscure issues. However, since motion pictures are supposedly made to entertain, and since many of them are obviously not entertainment but propaganda, it is difficult to separate motives from the end results in this case. If pictures are propaganla pictures, then we are immediately confronted with the question as to why they are propaganda, and the motives behind them beecome extremely pertinent to the issue."

The Union's warning against Federal film censorship was evoked by current charges that the investigation threatens freedom of speech and communication. Writing to Senator Clark, the Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, the Union's board chairman said its chief concern with the inquiry is that it may "tend to discourage the treatment of controversial themes by motion picture producers."

Commending the film industry for treating pictorially aspects of political and economic life, the Union pointed out that "any unfairness which may result from bias can best be corrected by public pressure to insure a fairer presentation of the varied sides of controversial matters. Elimination of all controversial subjects, the Union maintained, would be contrary to the public interest.

Court Theater, Sommerville Wins Cut in Clearance claiming that the 21 days' clearance was excessive.

Playhouse is a new theater and Fitzpatrick in his finding said that the distributors should not suffer any loss of revenue from reduced clearance between the houses. Case is one of the few in which the arbitrator was not an attorney. Fitzpatrick is a General Motors executive. Costs were divided between the five distributors and Raritan Amusement.

Columbus Clearance Squawk Unfounded, Says Arbitrator

Cincinnati — Clearance complaint filed by Main Theater, Inc., operator of the Main, Columbus, against Net's Eastern, charging that seven days clearance between the houses was excessive has been dismissed with Arbitrator Herbert Koch's finding that the clearance is reasonable.

Sheridan, North Chicago, Files on Clearance

Chicago — The Sheridan Theater of North Chicago has entered an arbitration case against the Times Theater of Waukegan, Ill., and the RKO and Vitagraph film exchanges. The complaint calls for abolition of all clearance which the Times Theater of Waukegan now has.

It is reported that negotiations are under way to settle the complaint without arbitration.

Legion's Conclave Helped Evening Biz, Hurt Matinees

Milwaukee — Downtown theaters reported a brisk evening business during the American Legion convention which terminated here yesterday but with plenty of wide open spaces during the day time. Neighborhood houses generally reported business off with most people attracted to the downtown area of festivities.

Only houses to operate on a lengthened schedule were Fox's Miller and Princess, downtown subsequent run theaters, which opened at 8 a.m. and ran most of the night featuring sex flickers after midnight.

Fox's Wisconsin, Palace and Strand theaters reverted to single feature programs during convention week, but the Warner retained its twin bill policy. Fox augmented its film shows at the Wisconsin and Palace with P.A.'s of players in town for the confab.

Hayes McKinney Named Oriental Arbitrator

Chicago—Attorney Hayes McKinney has been named as arbitrator in the Oriental Theater's clearance demand.

Sees Film Inquiry Threat to Pulpits

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—Freedom of the pulpit is among the basic American liberties threatened by the current Senate sub-committee investigation of motion pictures, according to the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, pastor of one of the nation's oldest churches, the Marble Collegiate (Dutch Reformed) of New York City.

"It may seem like a long way from a free screen to a free pulpit," commented Dr. Peale, technical adviser on Warners' "One Foot in Heaven." "Destroy free motion pictures, however, and the trail leads directly to every form of free expression."

"The best way to kill freedom is to allow self-appointed head-hunters to have their way. The point of these so-called investigators is that they only want freedom of expression for their own ideas. If the movies were expressing the ideas of Wheeler, Nye, Lindbergh and company, you would never hear a peep out of them. They want to silence every voice raised in opposition to their views.

"They are the real Fascists. For the real Fascist is so constituted by nature that he cannot tolerate a dissenting opinion."

Dr. Peale, here to view "One Foot in Heaven," leaves for New York by air today.

Brazilian Characters For Disney Cartoons

Rio de Janeiro (By Air Mail)—Future Disney releases are likely to include characters based on the Mico, Papagaio and the Tatu de Bianas, Brazilian birds and animals. While in Brazil for the "Fantasia" opening, Disney made an extensive study of local legends, lives and customs and took back an abundance of material for the possible creation of new characters. He also secured the rights to some Brazilian music and left with a collection of sheet music, and recordings.

Yamins Stigmatizes Resolution as "Poison"

journment of the convention, the directors refused to accept the vote as a test of exhibitor sentiment, ordered a plebescite by its regional associations within 10 days and declared it would abide by its result.

The Board also received but refused to accept the resignations of all national officers, and asked that they carry on for the time being.

When Cole asked for comment, Yamins arose and literally tore the proposal to shreds. He charged that the Board was trying to railroad through a document which would have the effect of selling out to the distributors. He termed the proposal as "dangerous" and said that the Department of Justice would get the idea that all was "peace and harmony" within the industry.

Yamins asserted that the Board had acted in secrecy and charged that the resolution had not been put up to the directors in the first place. This was refuted by Cole and Abram F. Myers, general counsel, who said that Yamins may not have attended the meeting at which the plan was discussed but that it had been approved nevertheless.

Sugar-Coated "Poison"

Yamins said that the resolution was a "sugar-coated" document and that, when it was analyzed, it would be found to be "poison." A joint committee was not necessary, he asserted, contending that in the case of an emergency, Allied leaders can always call Will H. Hays or Ed Kuykendall for support on united action. Yamins especially attacked the third paragraph of the resolution which called for the consideration of a more "elaborate and enduring form of industry organization."

He indicated in plain language that Allied "can't sleep with the distributors and keep its virginity." He said that years ago he was called a pacifist because he wanted to do just what Allied is proposing today. Yamins did not say, however, what had changed his attitude.

Resolution Voted Down

After Yamins had made his plea against the adoption of the resolution, Jack Kirsch, Cole, Myers and Sidney Samuelson came to the defense of the plan. Myers asserted that Yamins had given his approval in a letter even though the letter indicated that the distributors would not "go for it."

The matter was then put to a vote, first for the adoption of the plan with the elimination of the third paragraph and then on the question of the resolution itself. First vote killed the third paragraph and when the entire resolution was put before the convention, it was voted down.

Myers later told THE FILM DAILY that the situation was the strangest in the history of Allied, inasmuch as the Board had approved the resolution and the convention killed it. He was at a loss to know just what the status was.

TEXT OF SPURNED UNITY PROPOSAL

Here is the text of the resolution for a National Joint Conference Committee which the Allied convention scuttled in Philadelphia yesterday:

"Resolved, by the Board of Directors of Allied States Association of motion picture exhibitors this 15th day of September, 1941, that we approve the plan for the establishment of a national joint conference committee of the several branches of the industry to promote the common interest of and foster co-operation among such branches.

"Resolved, further, that the Chairman be and he is hereby empowered and directed to appoint a committee of not to exceed five to meet and confer with like committees or individuals representing other branches and organizations of the industry with a view to carrying such plan into effect.

"Resolved, further, that it is the sense of the board that such national joint committee, when organized shall in addition study the possibility and desirability of bringing the several branches and groups into a more elaborate and enduring form of industry organization and shall report their findings and recommendations to all branches and representative groups for adoption, revision or rejection.

"And be it further resolved, that this resolution be reported to the 12th annual convention of Allied States Association of motion picture exhibitors now sitting in Philadelphia with the recommendation that it be adopted as a convention resolution."

Steffes Predicts Exhib. Unit Destruction Without Unity

Philadelphia—Unless one, big industry organization is created, each branch and each individual will be conquered and destroyed as shamefully as the small nations of Europe were destroyed because they would not unite in one strong unit to save themselves.

Those are the sentiments of Al Steffes, an Allied pioneer and leader, who, unable to attend the current convention here, expressed his views on the proposed all-industry committee in a letter to Sid Samuelson.

"You are being attacked quite severely from without as well as from within," Steffes wrote. "Your patrons are deserting you in droves. The forming of one strong organization can, must and will be done if some of the surface hard feelings and petty differences are forgotten and that is as deep as these feelings go, otherwise you would not have representatives of all branches of the industry present at your meeting today."

Steffes urged that a small committee be appointed with authority to negotiate with all concerned a tentative plan, to be finally approved by the board of directors.

To Close Orlando's Vogue

Orlando, Fla.—Florida State Theaters, Inc., operators of the former Sparks interests, have purchased the Vogue Theater of Colonialtown (suburb). The Vogue, built about a year ago by G. C. Allied Board Statement in convention was not a representative vote. They expressed the view that the overwhelming majority of Allied members favor an effective liaison with the other branches of the industry.

"They pointed to the fact that not more than half of those present voted; that men from the West representing hundreds of exhibitors were out-voted by a comparatively few individuals representing only themselves, some of whom were not Allied members; that the margin was very close.

"Refusing to accept the vote as a test of exhibitor sentiment, the Board decided to request the regional associations to poll their members on the issue within 10 days. The resolution will thus be considered calmly and without the influence of impassioned convention oratory. The Board will accept the verdict of its plebiscite."

ALLIED LEADERS SAY UNITY PLAN NOT DEAD

ITOA Seeking an Injunction Against Ascap

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Unity Plan Scuttled

By L. H. MITCHELL

ALLIED: Biggest piece of news—the biggest surprise—developing at Allied's three-day convention in Philly was the scuttling of the board's proposed all-industry committee following an attack on it by Nathan Yamins in which he stigmatized the resolution as "poison." All officers resigned over the rebuff, but the board refused to accept the resignations....Both Metro and Paramount were ready to back the unity plan....Pete J. Wood, of ITO of Ohio, told the delegates value of the motion picture dollar would shrink by $105,000,000 by June 30, 1942.... Prexy H. A. Cole told the meeting that of the 36 features in the first blocks of five, Texas Allied had given "A" rating to but one.... Delegates were told to keep an eye on Ascap, also on the networks' BMI or exhibs. might find themselves paying tribute to both.

FILM PROBE: At week's beginning Chairman D. Worth Clark of the Senate sub-committee investigating so-called war propaganda on the part of the film industry, said the inquiry might drag on "for months"....Darryl F. Zanuck in Milwaukee at the American Legion convention, branded all the sub-committee's charges as false....President Roosevelt, by inference, ridiculed the inquiry, while the Allied convention, Actors' Equity, Screen Guild Council, the ITO and other organizations attacked it and requested its ending....Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.) will go to bat for the industry, on the floor of the Senate if the sub-committee does not accede to his request to appear before it....Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's prexy, will be the first industry witness at tomorrow's hearing.

Myers' Comment

Accusations hurled at Allied's directors by Nathan Yamins at the Philadelphia convention brought the following comment from Abram F. Myers, general counsel:

"Mr. Yamins assumed a grave responsibility when he accused the entire board of directors of 'railroading' the resolution for a joint conference committee; when he branded the movement as one to 'sell out' national Allied, and when, by his inflammatory attack, he side-tracked the movement towards unity in the face of great danger."

The contract had excited considerable speculation, not only because it is expected to reach considerable proportions, but also because the recently formed "Institute" was one of the main competitors for the job. In its bid the Institute stressed that it would tackle the job on a non-profit basis.

Office of Education officials while unable to estimate the extent of the work, said they expect to sell thousands of prints of the films to vocational schools and industries.

New IATSE Ushers' Union Wins Detroit Contract

Michigan, making the first union contract in this field. Agreement averts threat of strike which would have been called for Wednesday by the union.

This effects nearly 200 Detroit theaters, including nearly all except first and second-runs which are being negotiated, as independents have generally agreed to follow the Co-operative agreement.

Scale for usherettes, ushers and candy girls is 32½ cents per hour with 2½ cent raise in second and also third year, with six-day week of 40 hours and time and one-half for over time. Doormen and chief of service are five cents above scale. Cashier's scale is not settled yet.

Houses under 1,000 seats are given 2½ cent concession below scale. Houses under 500 seats have 30 cent minimum which will probably be maximum where special consideration is required.

Operators are not asking increase in their own contract in view of the new contract for other employes.

Argentina Slaps Ban On "Voice in Night"

By DR. W. P. SCHUCK
FILM DAILY Staff Correspondent

Buenos Aires (By Air Mail)—Proclamation of a nation-wide ban on "A Voice in the Night," British production released by Columbia, has interesting sidelights.

Until recently, there had existed a general agreement among Argentine lawyers that films could be banned only by a provincial government, by the city of Buenos Aires, and by the Central Government in those parts of the country which were still "territories"—such as the Chaco, Patagonia, or the Pampa.

When, however, the "Great Dictator" was shown in the province of Entre Rios after having been banned in Buenos Aires, the Central Government stepped in, proclaiming a ban for the whole country, and basing its decision on its duty to protect the friendly relations existing between Argentina and other countries —in the "Dictator" case, Germany and Italy.

It is noteworthy that the same reason was given for the ban on "A Voice in the Night" although the revelations of the so-called Argentine "Dies Committee" tend to establish that the Third Reich has no regard whatever for the friendly relations between a democratic Argentina and a Hitler Germany. It, however, should be understood that this Congressional Committee for the study of Anti-Argentine activities is not the Government, and that its conclusions which have been widely publicized, do not commit the Government. In fact, while for instance President Baldomir of Uruguay received Walt Disney on the very day of his arrival at Montevideo, nothing of this kind happened in B. A. On the other side, one should not overlook that Russian pictures such as "Professor Mamlock," with its outspoken anti-Nazi tendency, are now shown for the first time in B. A. vote. Regional associations were instructed to poll their members within 10 days.

Spurning of the resolution, following a blast against it by New England's Nathan Yamins, had a deadening effect, temporarily at least, on what could be considered one of Allied's greatest conventions. It was said to be the largest assemblage of exhibitors since the 5-5-5 conferences in Chicago several years ago, and the apparent enthusiasm for a harmony program before the final session gave no evidence of what was to come. After Yamins delivered his attack which apparently won 60 per cent of the 249 exhibitors in the convention room over to his side, the board held a meeting at which the national officers resigned in a body, but the directors requested that they stay in office for the time being.

W. F. Rodgers, M-G-M general sales manager, speaking at the convention banquet Thursday night, expressed keen disappointment over the convention's action. He urged that the delegates remain in Philadelphia for another day to reconsider their vote. This was not possible, however, as several of the directors could not stay over, and besides, it was believed that the poll of the units will represent a more accurate opinion.

Joseph Bernhard, head of Warner Bros. Theaters, told the banquet guests that he had prepared an address, based on the anticipation of the resolution's approval, but that such a speech now would be out of order. He, too, expressed disappointment. If the various branches of the industry can get together on defense co-operation, USO and other drives, why can't "we get together to do something for ourselves?" Bernhard asked.

Just how long the present officers will remain could not be determined. They agreed that they would withdraw their resignations "for the time being," but it was rumored that one or two would make their resignations permanent.

Polling of the units is slated to get under way this week.

Browne Ordered to Produce Union's Books

til today by Judge John W. Holland in spite of the objection made by the Government who said the union records were supposed to have been in court on Friday.

U. S. Attorney Mathias F. Correa plainly indicated that the seeking of the information on the special union fund, which, it was estimated, amounted to over $6,000,000 a year in special assessments from its members, was only a phase of the general investigation.

He also said if the evidence was sufficient to convict Browne and his personal aide, Willie Bioff, on the charges of accepting $550,000 in bribes, the Government would inquire further to ascertain if bribery, SEC violations, income tax evasion and other violations of the law had been committed by persons involved in making the payments to the union leaders.

David Asch, associate of Martin Conboy, counsel for Browne, asserted demand to produce union data was prejudical to the interests of his client. The Government maintained that the investigation of the union books could in no way be tied up with the extortion trial of Browne and Bioff.

Patrick waved a copy of "Mein Kampf on the floor of the House and shouted: "This sounds just like Lindbergh."

He read passages from the Hitler book and declared, "This makes me wonder where Lindbergh gets his ideas."

"Now Lindbergh even tracks Hitler so closely that he says we are being pulled into the war by the seat of the pants by President Roosevelt and the Jews," Patrick declared. "Where else," he demanded, waving "Mein Kampf" in the air, "has the air ever been saturated by such remarks before?"

He said that Lindbergh has "turned sour on the United States" and declared that "any barber is his equal, any justice of the peace his superior, in the matter of international affairs."

In the meantime, Chairman D. Worth Clark busied himself over the week-end, preparing a list of precedents with which to prove that his sub-committee's action in holding hearings without Senate approval is not unprecedented. He said he intended to present these tomorrow.

The second episode will lead off with Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's, Inc., prexy, testifying. All indications are that the group intends to give him a thorough going-over with the monopoly question playing the leading role, since the propaganda charge has not bogged down.

He will be followed by Harry M. Warner, Barney Balaban and Darryl F. Zanuck. What the program is after that is anyone's guess.

The Midtown has been claimed by Odeon Theaters of Canada as one of a group acquired from Sam Firestone. There are indications that a dispute may develop over the control of this house which was practically rebuilt last winter.

Army's Technician Call Leaves UK Studios Short

Less Than 2,000 Men Available for All Studios As Result of New Summons

London (By Cable)—British producers, it was announced at the weekend, will inform the Government they are prepared to co-operate in releasing technicians for military service.

The latest call up for duty with the armed forces will leave less than 2,000 men for all studios.

Effect on British production remains to be seen. It is believed that American companies with plans to resume or press British picture making may move to bring over Hollywood technicians.

Meanwhile, it is obvious that the studios will institute a training program for older men and women to meet the situation.

Producers recently had expressed their opposition to the Government plan to take more technicians for military duty.

☆ ☆ REVIEWS OF THE NEW FILMS ☆ ☆

"Ellery Queen and the Murder Ring" with Ralph Bellamy, Margaret Lindsay

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

Columbia 65 Mins.

SWELL MYSTERY-MELLER IS BEST OF THE DARMOUR-QUEEN SERIES; OKAY FOR ANY PLAY DATE.

Producer Larry Darmour has the best of his "Ellery Queen" series in this "Ellery Queen And The Murder Ring." That title is a bit grim and would lead one to expect a gory path of guns and blood to run through the film—but that is not the case. The story is highly plausible, with no more than the regular two murders. It's well acted, directed, and cast; and shows a lot of production for a low budgeter.

Ralph Bellamy and his partner in detection, Margaret Lindsay, carry the lead roles nicely with fine support from Charles Grapewin, Mona Barrie, James Burke and a pair of great comedy gangsters, Tom Dugan and Paul Hurst. Rudolph Flothow's production is good and the direction is capably handled by James Hogan.

Blanche Yurka, very rich owner of a large hospital, is heartily hated by every one who comes in contact with her—even her own son and daughter. When she is killed there are more suspects than the police can handle. As she is murdered in her own hospital the nurses and doctors, including the head physician, (George Zucco) find themselves in for the majority of the grilling.

Confusing the issue at every turn are a couple of gangsters who, while innocent of the crime, are implicated to the point that they want to get out. Paul Hurst, "the boss" has a broken leg and Tom Dugan's efforts to get him out of the hospital on a stretcher are hilarious mainly because the mugs play the entire thing straight, relying on situations for laughs—and there are many of them.

"Murder Ring" is bound to be accepted well wherever it is played.

"Doctors Don't Tell"

with John Beal, Florence Rice, Edward Norris

Republic 65 Mins.

FAIR-TO-MIDDLING MELODRAMA ABOUT TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS OF TWO YOUNG DOCTORS ABLY PERFORMED BY CAPABLE CAST.

In this particular instance, performers far outdistance material which they are given. It is a weak yarn about two interne friends who go different ways upon graduation or an anaesthetized modification of "Crime Does Not Pay."

The two doctors are well-played by John Beal and Edward Norris. Attractive Florence Rice serves to form the triangle. There is a good comic performance by Grady Sutton as the young doctor who is afraid to practice his profession because he is too tender-hearted. Jacques Tourneur gives the film standard direction.

Character of two internes is laid bare at opening when Beal goes through with operation to save Miss Rice although it might mean his suspension. After graduation, the medicos find it tough going.

A gangster, played by Douglas Fowley, persuades Norris to extract a bullet from his wounded bodyguard, Ward Bond. Beals discovers it and the pair splits. Norris soon becomes a successful doctor and when Fowley gets in a jam, Norris is forced to operate upon him to disguise his features. Meanwhile, Beal is with district attorneys' office as medical examiner and finds out about the operation. Search is on for Norris who finally shows up on trial to give damaging evidence and is killed by Bond after exiting court room.

CAST: John Beal, Florence Rice, Edward Norris, Ward Bond, Douglas Fowley, Grady Sutton, Bill Shirley, Joseph Crehan, Paul Porcasi, Russell Hicks, Howard Hickman.

Billion for Defense Booms Baltimore Biz

Baltimore — During the past 12 months, direct Army, Navy and Maritime Commission contracts have brought more than a billion dollars to Maryland industry, with a resultant boom in the state's largest city, Baltimore. Housing, traffic and recreational facilities have been overtaxed by the influx of defense workers who have swelled the population in and around the industrial centers.

Most visible effects noted by local exhibitors have been in increased week-end grosses, especially in downtown Baltimore. It is pointed out that newcomers, faced with free week-ends, and not very well acquainted with the native population, invariably wind up at the movies. Managers can easily spot first-timers by their queries about location of rest rooms, directions to cars and buses, etc.

"The Lone Star Vigilantes" with Bill Elliott and Tex Ritter

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

Columbia 58 Mins.

LOTS OF PRODUCTION AND GOOD YARN MAKE THIS RITTER-ELLIOTT STARRER A TOPPER.

Because the producer, Leon Barsha, has given this film a bit more in the way of production and story than is given most horse-operas, "Vigilantes" looks to be the best of the Ritter-Elliott starrers to come from the Columbia lot.

Ritter plays and sings a couple of excellent Western songs in his inimitable style and stands out again as one of the top-hands in the ranks of Hollywood Western stars. Elliott also, with his strictly he-man role, ranks way up on the list.

Luci Ward's screenplay is excellent, as is the work of the supporting cast. Benjamin Kline's photography is great.

Returning from the Civil War, beaten but un-bowed, Tex, Elliott and their pal Frank Mitchell, find their home state of Texas in a turmoil because of the activities of a gang of renegades posing as a branch of the victorious army. They decide on an appeasement policy until it becomes obvious that the looters are going to leave nothing when they finally leave the county.

Their first act of rebellion is reported to the thugs by the daughter of a doctor they have befriended, and the boys are forced to begin the fight in earnest. By clever sleuthing, Elliott discovers that the commanding officer is an imposter. He rides to the Union Army headquarters and reports it and is told he must bring proof before he will be given help.

Rather than bring proof, the boys crack the gang alone and deliver the self-convicted prisoners to justice.

"Vigilantes" has plenty of action and should prove a winner with the Western fans.

CAST: Bill Elliott, Tex Ritter, Frank Mitchell, Virginia Carpenter, Luana Walters, Budd Buster, Forrest Taylor, Gavin Gordon, Lowell Drew, Edmund Cobb, Ethan Laidlaw, Rick Anderson.

CREDITS: Producer, Leon Barsha; Direction, Wallace W. Fox; Screenplay, Luci Ward; Cameraman, Benjamin Kline; Editor, Mel Thorsen.

DIRECTION, Good. PHOTOGRAPHY, Good.

"Fugitive Valley"

with Ray Corrigan, John King, Max Terhune

Monogram 60 Mins.

FAIRLY ENTERTAINING WESTERN WITH BETTER THAN AVERAGE ACTION. SHOULD PLEASE MOST FANS.

This latest of the "Range Busters" series has good share of hard riding, shooting anl fisticuffs, with a dash of romance thrown in as Ray (Crash) Corrigan, John (Dusty) King and Max (Alibi) Terhune collaborate in rounding up a gang which operates from a secret base in so-called Fugitive Valley

In order to bag the bad men, Corrigan purposely gets himself jailed. His cell mate, a member of the gang, leads Corrigan and King to the hideout, following a jail-break which is part of the put-up job. There these Range Busters carry their stratagems further by holding up a stagecoach and "capturing" their buddy Terhune who is posing as a vaudeville magician.

Through the pigeons of the latter, the representatives of the law in the nearby town are kept informed of the Range Busters' progress toward bringing about the downfall of the gang whose leader is known as "The Whip." The latter turns out to be Julie Duncan, a comely gal who is also working on the inside to nab the mob which has outraged the local settlers. Naturally, the outlaws are wiped out at the finale, while the Range Busters ride off seeking new adventures.

It's a fairly interesting sagebrush drama for fans who thrive on such fare. Julie Duncan does right well as the heart interest, and flashes some good horsemanship. Several songs are injected to lighten the proceedings. Roy Luby's direction is solid.

CAST: Ray Corrigan, John King, Max Terhune, Julie Duncan, Glenn Strange, Bob Kortman, Ed Brady, Tom London, Reed Howes, Carl Matthews, Edward Piel, Sr., Doye O'Dell.

sub-committee inquiry. The measure said in part:

"It is clear the purpose of the inquiry is to block production of motion pictures which are termed 'anti-Nazi' because they deal honestly and realistically with war subjects and to effect a censorship on free expression of American culture, to which the Screen Actors Guild is unalterably opposed, and whereas inquiry has quickly indicated that it is designed to breed religious and racial discord in our nation, thereby to destroy the unity of a vast majority of the American people who support the foreign policy of the nation, thereby be it resolved the Screen Actors Guild does hereby condemn the action of the sub-committee as an immediate threat to free thought, free speech and to the very fundamentals of liberty upon which our great nation was founded and demand that this inquiry be stopped."

At a meeting of the Guild's Class A membership Sunday night, Executive Secretary Kenneth Thomson attacked the Senate investigation and said, in part: "I saw a fanatical desire to destroy the motion picture industry, in order to publicize before the American public certain isolationists ideas." He also condemned Jimmie Fidler.

Edward Arnold was re-elected president of the Guild: George Murphy, Paul Harvey, Walter Abel were re-elected vice-presidents; Lucille Gleason, recording secretary; Porter Hall, treasurer. Four new members elected to board of directors were: Charles Boyer, Olivia De Havilland, Walter Kingsford and Alan Hale.

In his report President Arnold said that for seven major charities alone, the production end of the industry in the period of a year raised nearly $2,000,000 in cash.

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—The first explosion in the bickering within Hollywood's artists' managers circles came when Leo Morrison filed a damage action in Los Angeles Superior Court for $150,000, charging that the Feldman-Blum agency had illegally induced John Wayne to attempt to break his managerial contract with Morrison for the purpose of securing Wayne as their client.

Morrison's damage action, filed through the law firm of Zagon & Aaron, seeks $75,000 in commissions due on the unexpired balance of his managerial contract with Wayne at the actor's present earning capacity, plus an additional $75,000 punitive damages.

Complaint names Charles K. Feldman, the Feldman-Blum Corp., Charles Kenneth Feldman, Inc., 10 John Does and 10 John Doe corporations as defendants.

way to write finis to the probe conducted by the committee headed by Senator D. Worth Clark (D., Ida.), first circulated late last week, received fresh impetus over the weekend and yesterday were coupled with others that internal dissension was splitting the presumably solid isolationist clique of four of the five committeemen.

Resent Wheeler's Inactivity

Presumably several of the committeemen feel that Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D., Mont.), chairman of the full Interstate Commerce Committee, has let them down by his failure to take an active and public part in the inquiry. At least one or two of the committee members also are said to take exception to the absence of Senator Gerald P. Nye (R., N. D.). They feel that Nye, too, should be in there fighting.

Meanwhile the matter of authorization of expenses incidental to the inquiry appears to be approaching the show-down stage as well with Senator Scott W. Lucas (D. Ill.), chairman of the Senate Audit and Control Committee, insisting he would not approve any expenditures until advised how long the sub-committee proposed to press the inquiry and how much it intended to spend. The issue was posed when Senator Clark of Idaho signed vouchers for a total of $552.04. This money would go to Jimmie Fidler and George Fisher, Hollywood columnists who appeared last week, Fidler receiving $287.54 and Fisher the balance.

May Propose Fund Limit

Senator Lucas was quoted by the Associated Press as saying that he might propose that the Senate limit to $250 the amount which the committee might spend on hearings not expressly authorized by the Senate. Inasmuch as a majority of the Senate is believed to be opposed to the tactics of the isolationist sub-committee this could easily mean a termination of the present inquiry.

It was indicated yesterday that the sub-committee proposed an early call to the stand of Will H. Hays, MPPDA prexy.

No War-Mongering by Industry, U.S. Critics Find

Charges Preferred at Senate Inquiry Emphatically Rejected in Telegraph Poll determine whether the screens in more than 17,500 film theaters of the United States were sacrificing entertainment for propaganda and were being employed to further the development of war hysteria in the country.

Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen in their syndicated Washington Merry-Go-Round column published in Today's New York Daily Mirror charge that the following persons are behind the present Senate inquiry: John T. Flynn, head of the New York America First Committee; Guy Juneman, G. Allison Phelps, Russell Mack and Winfield Sheehan. The columnists assert that Wendell L. Willkie, industry counsel, has the evidence to substantiate these charges. Sheehan, Mack and Phelps are styled in the column a "little group of ghosts in Hollywood."

The 210 invitations to vote went to staff men on important metropolitan and small city papers to insure complete geographical coverage, and to assure that the poll would be wholly representative of the newspaper field. At press time last night, 115 answers had been received; with few exceptions, they were specific and positive; in a very few instances, one or more of the questions asked were ignored.

Vote Spurning Charge 103 to 7

By a vote of 103 to seven, the critics spurned the charge made before the Senate subcommittee that 23 pictures—among them "Mortal Storm," "Foreign Correspondent," "Nurse Edith Cavell" and "Four Sons"—were collectively intended to influence the American people in the direction of participation in World War II.

By virtually the same vote, 103 to nine, the critics went on record as holding that such films as "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," "Sergeant York," "Escape," "Underground," "The Man I Married," "Manhunt" and "The Great Dictator" have created a greater appreciation of our democracy and American liberties.

By a still larger majority, 109 to four, the critics affirmed that it is not improper, as had been inferred before the Senate sub-committee, for Hollywood producers to make pictures portraying conditions in Germany under the Nazi regime.

Vote for Free Screen Unanimous

And unanimously the 113 critics who concerned themselves with the fourth question, "Do you believe Congress should take any action which would make impossible the production of pictures such as . . . those listed" (as war propaganda films by Senators Gerald P. Nye, Bennett Champ Clark and D. Worth Clark) called for a screen free from Congressional censorship.

While the telegraphed invitation to the critics and reviewers requested merely "yes or no" answers, many availed themselves of the opportunity to express their views at length.

Henry J. Murdock of the influential Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger wired: "For once our medium is so much in the right that the present Senatorial quiz is foolish and a waste of that money you and I will pay in increased income taxes next year. To question one—No. To question two—I don't think they told me any more than I already knew. I accepted them as topical films, some good, some bad—but from the construction as well as the ideological side. Question three—Any pertinent topic belongs to stage, screen, radio and newspapers. The Nazi conquest of Germany is worth screen recording because it is dramatic as well as dreary. Question four—Look, we pay Congress for serious tasks, not for fun and games."

A Dr. Osler Needed for Aged Cong.

Claude A. LaBelle, critic of the San Francisco News, telegraphed: "Hollywood always goes in for a 'trend' and certainly there has been no more solid ground for a trend than the pictures you list . . . I saw 'The Great Dictator.' I heard a man who came out with me argue with a cop over parking and he got away with it. What would a Nazi storm trooper have done to him? I saw the parallel and I'm sure every patron got a fuller appreciation of American liberty after seeing the picture. . . . Strikes me Congress is faced with enough work not to take on another job. When the general public doesn't want certain types of movies they proclaim it by their absence. What we need now is another Doctor Osler for superannuated old buccos as Senators Clark and Nye."

Charles F. Mulcahy of the Youngstown, O., Vindicator, telegraphed: "Congress ought to keep hands off the movies unless it is ready to subsidize the industry. Nobody is going to pay at the box office to see the kind of pictures some Congressmen would want us to see . . ."

Totalitarain Implications

Totalitarian Implications New Orleans Critic Sees In the Investigation

From New Orleans, Thomas Ewing Dabney of the New Orleans States wired: "Nye investigation on so-called propaganda activities of the cinema would be funny (in charges and witnesses) if it were not so tragic (in the totalitarian implications, which begin with suppression of thoughts and interests, and in forcing conformity to a minority pattern).

"I can see no propaganda whatever in the films past and present, except the general propaganda for decent living, fair dealing, and high thinking. To promote these ideals, the cinema has often invoked fairy-tale credulity in making good always prevail, but art is always idealistic, and there is no such thing as absolute realism in art, especially dramatic art, the form of which makes it the most artificial of all the arts.

"The films which Nye specifically mentions made me have a better understanding and strong love for American institutions. And helped me to comprehend the history we have made and are making. I say this as one opposed to war and as one who believes that our national policy has forced the present issue. I have found no one who has been made jingoistic by these films.

"I believe the audiences in New Orleans would walk out of any theater that tried to railroad their thoughts into war. It is just as right for the cinema to portray life in general, present and past, as it is for newspapers, magazines and books. I believe it is their inescapable duty in the same sense that it is the duty of other media of intelligence, to portray conditions in Germany and France and every other part of the world where those conditions transcend the normal. Certainly the movies have never made the charges which many newspapers, magazines and books have made.

Freedom of Thought is Real Issue

"THE FILM DAILY invites you as an outstanding American film critic to express your opinion on issues involved in the following:

"Senator Gerald Nye has charged that motion pictures are designed to create a war hysteria in this country and that the movies have ceased to be instruments of entertainment and have become the most gigantic engines of propaganda in existence to rouse the war fever in America and plunge this nation to her destruction.

"In support of these charges, the following pictures have been named by Senators Gerald Nye, Bennett Clark and D. Worth Clark:

"'Mystery Sea Raider,' 'Phantom Sea Raider,' 'They Dare Not Love,' 'Murder in the Air,' 'The Man I Married,' 'One Night in Lisbon,' 'The Devil Commands,' 'So Ends Our Night,' 'Four Sons,' 'Dispatch from Reuters,' 'Sergeant York,' 'Dive Bomber,' 'Nurse Edith Cavell,' 'Flight Command,' 'International Squadron,' 'Manhunt,' 'Escape,' 'Mortal Storm,' 'Confessions of a Nazi Spy,' 'Foreign Correspondent,' 'Underground,' 'The Great Dictator' and 'War in the Desert,' latter a short.

"Underground" Biz Spurred by Inquiry

Warners' "Underground," mentioned by Senate sub-committee investigating so-called motion picture propaganda, is now averaging a gross of 162 per cent, with indications it will be among Warners' 10 top grossers of year. Interest has resulted in another spurt, with many exhibitors re-booking.

"Underground" had been steadily gaining percentage in all play-dates, averaging 132 per cent, prior to investigation.

Film Investigation Draws Editor's Fire

Syracuse, N. Y.—The Senate subcommittee's film inquiry is made an editorial target here by the Herald Journal, which read:

"We doubt very much if a poll of the public would support the alarmed Senators in their view that the films are deliberately inciting to war. After all, they cannot perpetually ignore in thematic material what is going on in the world about them. And if the Senators push their idea a little farther they may have to investigate the Senate itself, which voted the Lease-Lend Bill and helped to enact compulsory military service."

Reviewers Find Probe a Threat to Free Expression

Yoo Hoo, Senators Nye and Clark! Here's A Columnist Who's Ready to Be a Witness

Miami—Hal Pearl, Miami Daily News amusement editor, would welcome an opportunity to appear before that Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee which suspects that columnar raps of its propaganda inquiry smacks of a press conspiracy.

"I will be only too glad, if called, to go to Washington to answer questions and prove Clark, Nye and their cohorts are ridiculous," Pearl told THE FILM DAILY. "Just because 75 per cent of an intelligent group of specialists are agreed that black is black does that smack of conspiracy? The probe is so obviously stupid that there was no wonder in the amount of criticism it aroused. What surprises me is that only 75 per cent of the columnists blasted it. What would Clark and Nye have the industry do? Show what a happy life the Nazis have brought to the nations it has so altruistically taken into protective custody?"

Denver Post Reviewer Would Inquire If Gov't Brought Pressure on Pix action Nye invokes, that freedom would be lost."

A. De Bernardi, Jr., drama-film editor of the Denver Post, commented: "Investigation should be continued to ascertain if Government agencies have attempted to use pressure on the film and radio industries for any purpose whatever. Any contemplated legislation should be directed at Government officials or agencies making their use of coercion against any medium of free expression, a crime comparable to treason."

Harry Martin, critic of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, and president pro tem of the Newspaper Film Critics of America, wired: "Perhaps a very few of the pictures listed did influence the public mind as charged in the same way boy meets girl influenced a handful of couples to the altar, but do not believe they were so designed either collectively or individually or that any purpose is gained by keeping facts of modern life from the masses of our people."

Hitler-Launched Anti-Semitic Drive

Fritz Jochem, Milwaukee Journal film reviewer, augmented his straight ballot with this commentary: "Apparently Hitler has launched his anti-Semitic campaign to divide and weaken America. The purposes of the Nye-Clark investigation seemed vague at first, but developments of the past few days, including Lindbergh's dastardly anti-Jewish speech, which was obviously correlated with the investigation show up the quiz in its true light. It is part of a vicious Nazi-type drive against all Jews, intended to split American unity if possible. Another obvious conclusion is that Nye, both Clarks and Illinois' stooge, want pro-Hitler movies."

From Herbert L. Monk of the St. Louis Globe Democrat came this comment: "I do not believe Congress, or any other legislative body, should take any action, now or ever, which would make impossible or even limit the production of pictures such as those mentioned, or any other kind."

E. D. Keilman of the Topeka, Kans., Daily Capital took exception to the phraseology of the questions, wiring: "Your questions are not correctly worded and the titles of films do not include the ones that contained most propaganda. Two years ago I wrote in one of my reviews on 'Let Freedom Ring,' as follows—'I can see it coming. Now they are rallying us. Soon they will give us a cause and then we will be giving until it hurts.'

Find Films Built on Fragments

"I have been radio and movie critic for nearly 25 years and always in my advice to young writers I have said, 'Don't write about something you don't know.' That's what Hollywood and its screen writers are doing right now. They have only fragments upon which to build. For instance in 'Four Sons' it is not shown that the Czechs and Slovaks were anything but good neighbors, when in reality they were far from that. Charlie Chaplin's 'Dictator' is a caricature built to get the money, not caring who was hit and hoping that the target was an unpopular one.

"I do not think Congress or anyone should pass any law putting restrictions on movies, radio or newspapers. One can read propaganda in everything these days. Maybe it is propaganda and maybe it's intentional—maybe it's just to 'get the money' and maybe it's absolutely innocent. There is a big temptation on the part of the man who spends millions on movies to try to make movies that will bring at least some of that money back to their coffers. Irrespective of whether it is proper for Americans to make movies about conditions in Germany, I believe it is impossible. However, American moviegoers want to be entertained and something they know a little about attracts their dimes."

"Why Pick on Movies"

Paul Hochuli of the Houston Press wired: "Why pick on movies, when all other agencies are busy portraying conditions in Germany? News stories of hostages shot, of Jews being herded like animals into camps, the very published laws of the Nazi regime themselves, tell stories that bear out—and many times reach further—than scenes built into American movies. Why not say reporters must stop their stories; commentators must go off the air; authors must quit writing books? That's just as fair as saying the movies must quit portraying conditions as they are in Germany.

"Being a newspaperman, freedom of speech is very dear to me. And freedom of projection — within bounds of public decency—is one and the same. A law saying what shall be photographed and what should not, is just a chisel chipping away at freedom of speech. It's bad enough on the radio now, and it could easily spread to newspapers and magazines. It's not what is photographed or printed that injures a nation; it is what cannot be that tears down a democracy. Was the German form of government built upon journalistic and movie truth? Let Congress meddle with something less likely to explode in its face."

A. A. Daugherty of the Louisville Times, one of the nine to vote "no" in answering the second question, commented that "Propaganda exceeds all bounds of good taste."

Pix "Should Be Anti-Nazi"

Boyd Martin of the Louisville Courier-Journal, however, commenting succinctly on the second question, wired: "They should," and went on to say, "If the movies weren't anti-Nazi, I should be ashamed to write about them. I just hope this investigation doesn't increase their own inward censorship."

Herb Kenney, Jr., of the Indianapolis News, casting a "No" vote on all four questions, registered an exception to "the deceiving generality of your questions" and said he would prefer to "hedge," with some "ifs" and "buts."

Harold Hunt of the Portland (Ore.) Journal telegraphed: "I consider the film hearings silly waste of money I have helped to pay."

Marion Boon of the St. Louis Star-Times commented that "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" was "too obvious in intent, too inflammatory for date of release" and asserted that "Manhunt" and "Great Dictator" went out of bound to express hatred for Hitlerism."

Reverts to Nazi Methods

Jay Cassino of the Newark Star asserted in answering the fourth question, "What Nye fails to see is that by the very suggestion of such censorship he resorts to the Nazi methods of restricting liberties."

Vincent Townsend of the Birmingham (Ala.) News and Age-Herald asked: "If the Senators are worried about motion picture propaganda, I wonder why they have not stopped the showing of 'War in the West' and other plainly labeled Nazi propaganda scare pictures?"

Helen Barret of the Wilmington, Del., Journal Every Evening added to her ballot: "Contrary to investigation, believe films have shirked their responsibility and evaded their duty in not showing more films such as those mentioned."

Critics See the Probe Reverting to Methods of The Dictator Nations

From Ernest Rogers of the Atlanta Journal came this comment: "The American moviegoer has a right to see on the screen what he reads in the newspapers and hears over the radio. If the screen tells the story more effectively it is no fault of the motion picture industry."

Films Need More Freedom

Elinor S. Hughes of the Boston Herald telegraphed: "Motion pictures need more freedom from restriction rather than less. Congressional action undesirable and unwarranted, would reduce film industry's value and importance to disastrous extent."

David B. Kaufman of the Mason City (Ia.) Globe Gazette took the opportunity to warn that the censorship suggested in the fourth question "is but the first step in curbing freedom of speech and the press. It inevitably leads to totalitarian methods."

Garrett D. Byrnes of the Providence Journal and Evening Bulletin found himself unable to answer the first question with a "yes" or "no," explaining in his telegram: "This group of films, coming from several sources, obviously was not 'collectively designed' to influence war participation, but their cumulative effect on the public mind would tend in that direction."

Fremont Power of the Indianapolis Times commented: "It seems to me that the Nye Committee is completely out of bounds. Congressional action curbing rights of motion picture producers would be simply one step toward curtailing the freedom of newspapers and other media. I think Nye is simply using this investigation as a political springboard for isolationist arguments."

Eight More Major Circuits Closed for First RKO Five

Eight more major circuits signed for RKO's first package of five pictures last week. Deals include:

IATSE Records, Books Going to Grand Jury

Jersey local of the union, as a material witness in the investigation.

Correa's victory was the result of a ruling by the court that Browne, who faces an extortion trial here on Oct. 6, would not be testifying against himself in producing the records. Judge Holland held that the chief purpose of the subpoena was not for preparation of the extortion trial but was part of the general inquiry into the IATSE transactions. As an added point, the Court stated that the records were the property of the union and not of Browne personally, and could even be used in the extortion trial without violating the defendants' constitutional rights.

On the question of Kaufman, the U. S. Attorney revealed an unsuccessful search for the witness who, he stated, was missing from his office and home. Kaufman's appearance is essential for the Grand Jury investigation and also for the extortion case, Correa declared.

The Court ruling was in face of the plea of Martin Conboy, Browne's attorney, that Correa was using the Grand Jury investigation as a device by which to prepare himself for the extortion trial. Conboy asked for an exception to the ruling as basis for an appeal. Browne need not testify personally before the Grand Jury, Correa said after the hearing.

Ill. Operators Conference Votes Support for Browne

Danville, Ill.—George E. Browne, IATSE international president, in his tangles with the Federal Government will have the support of the Illinois Conference of Moving Picture Operators.

Meeting here, the delegates from 25 state locals gave Browne a unanimous vote of confidence and backing.

Frank Stickling of Elgin was named chairman while Jack Wald, business agent, Peoria; Charles Horn, Springfield and Fred Shoup, Bloomington were named to the executive committee.

Delegates from several of the Illinois locals, reported negotiations were under way for new contracts, with wage increases asked, owing to the increase in living costs.

Chicago delegates reported their negotiations for a 10 per cent wage increase and vacations with pay are still under discussion.

Frank Olson of the Chicago IATSE represented the International Union at the convention and reported membership throughout the country at peak.

Casey, Five Union Execs. Called for Browne's Trial

Federal subpoenas were served upon Pat Casey, studio labor contact, and five union officials to appear as witnesses at the trial of George E. Browne and William Bioff Oct. 6.

Union officials are William Hutchinson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Joseph Weber, of the American Federation of Musicians, Joseph Touey and J. W. Gillespie of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, and L. Helm of the Utility Workers union.

release engagements, the reports on which came in yesterday.

Sears, who pointed out that the reports represent a cross-section of business ranging from first-runs in Los Angeles and Hollywood to Amsterdam, N. Y., and from Cumberland, Md., to Nashville, said that the pic in every instance ran from 35 per cent to almost 200 per cent ahead of "The Fighting 69th" which had established new records.

"Sergeant York," completing its sixth week at the Hollywood Theater Sunday night, chalked a week's gross of $20,340. Picture has now earned over $250,000 in its Broadway first-run, going over $100,000 during its run at the Astor and totalling more than $150,000 additional during its run to date at the Hollywood.

W. C. Finter Rites Held

Des Moines — Funeral services were held Saturday for W. C. Finter, 55, former well-known Iowa representative for local film exchanges.

Browne Still on Union's Payroll—Chi. Tribune

Chicago — The Chicago Tribune charges that William Bioff and George E. Browne, IATSE prexy, were still on the Chicago union's payroll, that Chicago union funds were used to operate the Old Colony Night Club, under Nick Dean's management (Dean was Browne's special representative) and that the Chicago union collects excessive membership dues.

Chicago union officers deny these allegations, but say they posted $50,000 of union funds with a bonding company for Browne's cash bail.

Metro Wins Sosna Arbitration Case

the case under Section VI of the consent decree, Sosna charged that the M-G-M had refused to sell him product and that after pictures had been offered, the price asked was too high.

The arbitrator ruled that M-G-M had lived up to the decree and granted Sosna no relief. Costs were directed against the complainant, but the Frisina Amusement Co., which intervened, was ordered to pay its own expenses.

Meanwhile, two new demands for arbitration have been filed here in the last week.

Mrs. Mildred Karsch, owner of the Ritz Theater, Rolla, Mo., has filed a complaint against the five consenting companies, charging refusal to license pictures for her house and discrimination in favor of the Rolla-Mo Theater.

A similar case was filed by Floyd L. Lowe and W. A. Snell, owners of the Star Theater near Fort Leonard Wood on Highway 66. Naming the five consenting companies, the complainants charged that the companies have refused to license them pictures and are discriminating in favor of the Lyric Theaters, Lebanon, Mo.

Case of Victor Thien, owner of the Palm Theater, St. Louis, will be heard Oct. 4 before J. Wesley McAfee, former judge, as arbitrator.

Kaster Arbitration Demand Names Loew's and Paramount

William Kaster, owner of the Arden Theater, New York, has filed a demand for arbitration against Loew's and Paramount. Kaster claims that last year his theater had day-and-date availability of the Olympia Theater but that now he has to follow the Olympia by 44 days. He asks that the former arrangement be restored.

Rotus Harvey Loses Round In Fight for a Better Run

San Francisco—Rotus Harvey, independent exhibitor leader, lost the first round in an attempt to obtain a better run for his Westwood Theater. F. J. Hellman, arbitrator, decided, following a hearing last week, that Harvey's complaint, naming T & D's Sierra Theater, did not fall within the arbitration board's jurisdiction. Complaint may be revised so that action can be re-filed.

WHO'S WHO IN HOLLYWOOD

LESTER COWAN. Producer. Born 1906, Akron, O. Educ. public schools; A. B., Stanford University, 1927. News boy, amateur featherweight champion of Ohio. John Knight, noted publisher, first gave him a job as reporter on San Francisco Chronicle; doubled as circulation aide for San Jose district. Was sponsored by Milton Sills in 1929 to inaugurate classes in motion picture appreciation for use in American colleges. Identification with Academy of Moton Picture Arts and Sciences thus begun, he instituted Academy Award statuette, now known as "Oscars." Work in organizing classes in sound for studio employes was next. Appointed as executive director of the Academy, remained in that spot until resigning to represent 16 arts and crafts in NRA hearings in Washington. Returning to Hollywood, he assumed producer's berth at Universal; made "Whole Town's Talking" starring Edward G. Robinson; made shrewd boxoffice gamble in teaming W. C. Fields, first with Charley McCarthy in "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man" and again with Mae West in "My Little Chickadee." Now at Columbia as producer, his association with Gilbert Miller, stage producer, has brought him to the high spot of his career in the production of "Ladies in Retirement." Another Miller play is "Brighton Rock," which is scheduled for him to produce. Out of studio hours, he is still the enthusiastic teacher; conducts classes in writing for the screen at the League of American Writers School evenings. Married to Ann Ronell, noted for "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf" music.

May Walk Out on Basic Pact

10 IA Studio Unions May Negotiate on Own

the IA officials, it was learned yesterday.

Rank and file sentiment has revealed desire of the membership of the locals to negotiate their own contracts instead of signing one blanket agreement, it was said. Business delegates of the various locals will make their decision today at the meeting in Casey's office.

Laboratory technicians, Local 683, is one union which has already broken away from the IA leadership. It recently negotiated its own contract with the producers on the Coast and the membership passed a resolution against signing the basic studio agreement. Lab union officials are attending today's session to make sure scale and conditions negotiated are in no way changed by the final IA agreement made here.

Seven Unions Set 10% Increase

On Saturday seven craft unions signed a five-year basic agreement starting Oct. 1 calling for a 10 per cent wage increase and a minimum six-hour call. Crafts affected include culinary workers, carpenters, electricians, teamsters, plasterers, laborers and musicians.

According to Casey final details of the musicians' terms will be worked out on the Coast since that union has a separate contract. He said negotiations with the culinary workers, which is a new union, and the plumbers and steamfitters union will be completed upon his return.

Casey yesterday estimated that the raises granted to the seven craft locals will increase studio payrolls about $350,000 and if the IA locals receive a similar hike in wages, it will cost the studios an additional $1,000,000 a year.

Execs. at Newark Parley

Attending the meeting for the producers at the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark Saturday at which Casey presided, were: Nicholas M. Schenck, Barney Balaban, W. C. Michel, vice-president of 20th-Fox, Carroll Sax of Warner Bros., John J. O'Connor, executive assistant to Nate Blumberg at Universal and Leonard Picker, Columbia. From the studios were Charles Boren, of Paramount, Fred Meyer, 20th-Fox, and Dave Garber, Universal. Fred Pelton, assistant to Casey, also was present.

Labor's representatives included: Frank Carothers, secretary of the International's committee; William Hutchinson, Joseph Cambianno, J. Skelton and Jack Flynn, of the carpenters; Joseph Touey and J. W. Gillespie, of the teamsters; Joseph Weber and J. W. Gillette, of the musicians; Ed Flore of John M. Sargent, of the culinary workers; Edward J. Hillock, of the plasterers; Ed Brown and A. S. Speed, of the electricians; Walter Redmond and Ben Martinez, of the plasterers; and H. Rohrback, of the utility workers.

Monopoly Charge Torn Down by Calif. Senator

"You Pursue An Illusion," Senator Downey Tells Senate Inquiry

the right to make propaganda pictures if it cared to do so, but that so far it had exercised "astonishing moderation" in this connection.

Appeared on Own Request

"Our Bill of Rights is a common heritage, and its jealous preservation is an obligation which rests upon us all," the California Senator told the sub-committee. As forecast exclusively in The Film Daily last Friday, he appeared at his own request, upsetting plans of the group to commence immediately with the examination of Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's president.

Because senatorial courtesy literally compelled the group to hear Downey, Schenck's appearance was postponed until after Downey had had his say. The Loew exec. went on after Downey had finished.

"Freedom of expression is the steel frame supporting our democratic structure," Downey, who spoke as an "inveterate movie-goer," continued. "One fleck of rust will not cause the metal to disintegrate and the edifice to crumble. But rust—once it corrodes our shining steel—may spread until we abandon the structure into which we have poured so much of our toil, our blood, our vision.

"I believe that the producers of pictures share the same privilege with editors, soap-box orators, radio commentators, clergymen, yes, even Senators—the privilege of airing their own views in their own way on problems of public concern.

"No Senator can control the kind of publicity that the movies may produce, nor can movie moguls find a national sounding board on the floor of the United States Senate.

"But while I believe that the motion picture producers possess the privilege of free speech like the rest of us, I am convinced that they have availed themselves of it with moderation—somewhat astonishing it seems to me, if we compare it with the tide of publicity now flooding out in every newspaper, on every air wave, at every street-corner, and in the Congress of the United States. Specifically, I feel that a combing of films distributed in recent years has failed signally to reveal any such insidious propaganda for war as has been, I think, too lightly alleged."

Downey asked the group whether it expected Hollywood to "ignore the chaos and the strife and the tragedy of the world we live in, and devote itself exclusively to musical comedy, boy-meets-girl plots, and horse operas."

"Heaven knows, that is a sufficiently prevalent tendency not to need encouragement from the United States Senate," he shouted.

Charges Pursuit of Illusion

"The world is on fire and because a few pale shadows of its conflagration flicker for a moment or two on the screen which is Hollywood, you seek to throw cold water on California," he said. "You pursue an illusion. The blaze is in Europe and Asia, not in my state; the propaganda you seek for is history itself; the fiery unrolling of events across the seas, the tumbling into ruins of old civilizations. If you cannot put out the fire there, how can you hope to prevent its reflection here?

"The potent propaganda is not movies about Hitler; it is Hitler himself—his words and his deeds. The record—the bare, factual record—of this man is what conditions the mind of America toward hatred of Nazidom—not any ephemeral shadows of Europe's Armageddon. What movie genius could produce so fierce a piece of anti-Nazi propaganda as Hitler has himself brought forth in 'Mein Kampf'? What script could arouse our animosity toward his philosophy as surely as the simple chart of Nazi conquest—the torn up treaties, the invaded and subjugated countries, the destruction of millions of homes and the families that loved them, the cancer-like spread of concentration camps and slave labor from one end of Europe to another? No, the facts themselves make propaganda pale."

Tearing down the monopoly charge, Downey said:

"It may be charged that the domination of film production by a few companies has resulted in a monopolistic situation, and that this cannot offer the same possibilities of diversity of opinion as a more competitive condition.

Let me ask, if 500 men control an industry are they to have the right to free speech, but if the operation of a business is by 50 men are they to be denied protection of the Bill of Rights?

"Is there any law-giver who could aptly frame a statute stripping from a monopolist his fundamental human rights, any judge who could administer such a measure?

"Would anyone claim that if the number of movie producers were doubled or trebled and competition increased, that there would be any substantial change in the films being produced?

"I understand that in some small theaters in the United States pictures preaching Nazi philosophy are being shown. But with 90 per cent of our people energetically opposed to German conquests, can we expect the number of the theaters exulting in a triumphant Nazi tyranny to be of large number?"

Hitting back on the racial question, Downey added:

"And I am likewise convinced that any attempt to secure data on the foreign markets of movie companies, on the birthplaces of movie leaders cannot be justified before the bar of American public opinion. Such collateral inquiries can be relevant only if we intend to forbid, to the foreign-born citizen, his freedom of expression, to deny to the American business leader whose genius has developed a market abroad, the right to express himself on international issues.

"Surely, if we cannot have faith in an untrammeled freedom of expression for all our citizens, wherever born, however far-flung their enterprises; if we yield to the fear that our democratic heritage can be wiped out of our minds and hearts by a flickering propaganda, then the foundations of the republic are weak indeed."

As to censorship, Downey asked:

"In the last analysis who can censor but the Government, or some agency of it? And is the answer to private propaganda—Government propaganda under the cloak of censorship?"

Continuing, he declared:

"Surely, this could mean only an aggravation of our tendency toward centralizing governmental power—and a death blow to our individual liberties of expression."

Clark Denies Censorship Goal

After Downey concluded, Chairman D. Worth Clark (D., Idaho), told him that "in some ways you have built up a man of straw and proceeded to demolish it." No member of the committee and no witness before it, the chairman asserted, had suggested censorship. On the other hand, Clark said, there had been complaints that the industry had been "made not free by virtue of monopolistic control."

"One kind of censorship might be just as vicious as the other," Clark told Downey.

Senator Ernest W. McFarland (D., Ariz.), remarked that "this whole investigation is a straw investigation."

"We'll see," Clark retorted. "It may be a straw in the wind."

There was ringing applause in the crowded Senate hearing room as Downey strode out.

One for the Book . . . and Also One for NBC As Eddie Cantor Takes Wallop at Inquiry

Borrowed from Leonard Carlton's column in the New York Post last night:

"One will get you 10 that NBC blue-pencils it out of the script for tomorrow's broadcast, but Eddie Cantor, in rehearsal yesterday, had a lovely wallop at the congressional movie investigators.

"Carole Landis is introduced to Joe DiMaggio, who says he's never heard of her. 'You'll have to forgive Joe,' apologizes Eddie. 'You see—he's rather ignorant about motion pictures.'

"'Then what,' Miss Landis wants to know, 'is he doing with the New York Yankees? He ought to be with the Washington Senators'."

Westway Decision Upheld on Appeal

the arbitrator's decision in each case.

The Westway Theater had protested against the 14-day clearance granted to the Edgewood Theater, declaring that it was unreasonable. After reviewing the situation, Sefton Darr, the arbitrator, ruled that the clearance was reasonable, concluding with the statement that "to allow a much smaller theater (Westway), although modern and up-to-date in every respect, to move into the area and not be subject to a clearance in favor of the larger and more modern theater, could and probably would produce bad results, not only for the theater but for the producers and distributors."

The appeals board affirmed the arbitrator's award with costs.

3½ Million Loew Coin in GB

Gross Income 100 Million, Schenck Tells Probers

testify at the continuing inquiry.

Schenck will continue on the stand today, and will be followed, likely in the afternoon, by Harry M. Warner. Darryl F. Zanuck will follow Warner, probably appearing tomorrow.

In reply to questions as to Loew's other theater investments, Schenck said that the company owned seven theaters in Australia, three in Canada and had 129 in the U. S. Additionally, the committee was informed Loew's jointly operates 14 other houses with other companies or individuals.

Schenck Arouses Laughter

With the exception of an attempt by Sen. Charles W. Tobey, (R., N. H.), to quiz Schenck as to Loew's subsidiaries, the inquiry while the Loew prexy was on the stand was essentially on the lighter side. Schenck repeatedly had the audience laughing with his denials that the committee is doing anything but tilting at windmills in its attempt to establish the possibility of monopolistic conspiracy on the part of the industry.

Vainly Chairman D. Worth Clark (D., Ida.), tried to prove that the "Big Five" could freeze out Columbia, Universal and United Artists pictures through their combined control of numerous major outlets; or that there is any monopoly indication in the fact that leading figures in some of the majors are related.

"In a Competitive Business"

"We're a competitive business and this don't mean anything," Schenck asserted.

Even Clark himself frequently laughed with the audience, as Schenck, much like a kindly father explaining the facts of life to a son, lectured the Chairman on the tendencies of relatives when thrown into competition with each other. In contrast to any monopoly agreement, Schenck said he sometimes had a terrible time persuading the others to handle his pictures.

In reply to one of Tobey's questions Schenck said he was unable to recall the names of Loew's subsidiaries. Later, answering a Tobey interjection, Schenck pointed out he had been actively engaged in supervising the construction of many of the theaters, but the financial arrangements with the subsidiaries of Loew's were "nothing in my life."

Schenck told Tobey he had worked for three years without a day of vacation.

"I know my business; I know it awfully well," Schenck stated, "and I don't consider it any lack of responsibility that I'm sitting here and unable to remember some corporate names."

Later, to refute implications by Chairman Clark that major studios would not lend out their stars, Schenck pointed out he had loaned Clark Gable for "It Happened One Night," and praised the result.

"Don't forget Claudette Colbert," Tobey said, "I remember particularly the scene where she flagged a ride. I sure would like to see that picture again."

The solemn-looking Tobey smiled reminiscently, and the audience roared.

Hundred Million Gross Income

The witness testified that Loew's had gross assets of approximately $150,000,000,000, gross income exceeding $100,000,000 annually.

Questioned by Senator Ernest W. McFarland, Schenck said that when Loew's purchased a theater property it might set up a corporation to operate it for the sake of convenience while the stock was entirely owned by the parent company.

All in all, the capacity audience had the good show, full of the laughs it has been waiting for, and the committee accomplished absolutely nothing to establish the charges made last week.

"Charley's Aunt" Writ Denied; Trial Ordered

Kenneth O'Brien yesterday in the suit which seeks to prevent 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. from exhibiting the motion picture, "Charleys' Aunt." A trial of the action was ordered on the ground the Court would not grant drastic relief to the plaintiffs on the highly debatable question of whether the film employed newly devised stage business from the play which the plaintiffs produced on Broadway.

committee resolution, I said that Mr. Yamins had written me a letter to the effect that the plan was a good one but that the other branches of the industry would not go for it.

"Mr. Yamins admitted writing the letter but denied vehemently that I had given a correct version.

"The matter is unimportant but in view of the implication that I had deliberately misstated the tenor of the letter, coupled with other reflections on the national officers and the board, it is only fair that the text of the letter be revealed."

Myers atached to the memo a copy of the letter, part of which follows:

"Dear A. F.:

"I have your letter of the 22nd and I can't feel enthused about the suggestion, not because it isn't a good one, but because the industry (sic) is set up and based on experience and I fail to see how we can ever get the producing and distributing branches of the industry to meet with the independent exhibitors."

man, arbitrator in the action brought by the Andora Amusement Corp., operating the Liberty, Plainfield, N. J., against Warners, Paramount, 20th-Fox and RKO, ruled in a decision made public yesterday.

O'Gorman's decision reduced the clearance of the Strand over the Liberty from 30 to 21 days. The complaint was filed with the New York tribunal in late March. In it, Joseph Siccardi, operating the Liberty, claimed that the house was at one time a first-run but was pushed back to second-run and forced to follow the Walter Reade Strand.

Siccardi asked for seven days clearance on double feature programs and 14 days on single feature runs.

O'Gorman in his findings took the position that too great clearance was a deterrent to patronage.

DAILIES RAKE SENATE WITCH HUNT

Inquiry Reminiscent of Nazis' Reichstag Fire Trial, Declares the Dayton, O., News

Sensing the underlying significance of the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee's "witch hunt" for alleged war propaganda in films, editorial writers and newspaper columnists throughout the country are pouring a withering fire into the inquiry and the charges made against the industry.

Extracts which reflect the prevailing newspaper reactions follow:

DAYTON (O.) NEWS: "On the boards now in Washington is a 'Senate' investigation without the consent of the Senate . . . Wheeler and his little group are plaintiff, prosecutor and jury. The program is reminiscent of the trial of the men in Germany accused by the Nazis of starting the Reichstag fire which the Nazis themselves had set. . ."

BUFFALO COURIER EXPRESS: "The American public is not totally puerile. Its standard of intelligence is not so low that a congressional committee has to tell it whether it is being besieged with chauvinism in the movies. . . Sales Policies, Decree Hit by PCC's Trustees

Seattle — Sales policies and the New York consent decree were attacked in a resolution passed here by the trustees of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theater Owners.

The PCC contended that the decree was designed to relieve major problems but that it did not contain any language to prevent such high rentals as are allegedly being asked by the consenting companies. As Universal, United Artists and Columbia have not been brought in under the decree, no relief has been afforded to independent exhibitors as a result of the Government anti-trust case.

The organization particularly protested against M-G-M's sliding scale policy based on the "per unit of gross," which, the PCC declared, was unreasonable.

The resolution asserted that deals being asked are "becoming more difficult for independent theater owners," and that all sales policies be "especially protested and condemned."

ing up a new studio basic agreement.

A report that George E. Browne, IA president, and William Bioff, West Coast representative, would eventually handle the negotiations for the craft unions was denied at the IA office.

Session yesterday at which Pat Casey, studio labor contact presided, concerned itself with ironing out demands made by Joseph Touey, of the teamsters. IA locals were conspicuous by their absence.

Delegates of the Hollywood craft locals have drawn lots to see which union negotiates first with the producers. Studio utility laborers, sound men and camera men were the locals which were represented at Tuesday's meeting.

There is, however, no meeting with IA locals scheduled for today it was said by a producer's spokesman. Indications are that IA delegates are ready to call upon the parent body for aid. Locals reported in favor of such a move are said to be the property men, the grips, studio utility workers and the electricians.

Browne, who at first refused to give up the books, reiterated to the Court his contention that the Grand Jury's action was a violation of his rights under the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution.

His original refusal to comply, it was said, was made as a preliminary step to taking an appeal. Browne maintained again before Judge Holland that the inspection of the books was a preparation for the extortion case against himself and William Bioff. price of dishes is responsible for the service charges which range from five to 10 cents.

In the past, 20-cent theaters put out half the admission price for premiums but good 10-cent merchandise currently is scarce. Instead, these houses are making 13-cent deals and collecting a five-cent service charge, thus bringing the cost of the premium down to eight cents. Result has been that the patron gets a higher quality premium and is better satisfied.

In the theaters charging 25 cents and up, the service charge has not been so prevalent but premium concerns believe the tendency there is increasing, too.

manager of Warner Bros. theaters, at a meeting of Stanley-Warner managers here yesterday. Bernhard warned against dissipation of playing time under the New York consent decree.

Managers were cautioned to watch maintenance because of the possibility of shortage of materials. Nothing should be thrown away that may have some use for the Government later on, it was said. Bernhard repeated his often-repeated slogan, "Expense is the enemy of profit."

Awards in the company's fourth annual contest were announced. The district supervised by Maurice Gable was the winner of the first award of $500, with the runner-up being Al Plough's district which took the $250 award. In another contest Paul Costello received $700 and Gable, $300.

Three cars were presented by Bernhard to three winning managers, Irving Blumberg, Joseph Murdock and Joseph Dougherty.

target for the committee's barrage of questions, there was general agreement among the observers packing the caucus room where the inquiry's sessions are being staged that the Senatorial ammunition was blanks—just that and nothing more.

In the verbal give and take, Schenck had so much the better of it that it must have been exceedingly painful for Chairman D. Worth Clark and Sen. Charles W. Tobey, R., N. H., who posed the questions obviously designed to make the day uncomfortable for Loew's prexy.

The New York World Telegram in a special Washington despatch yesterday said that many company executives in Washington for the Senate propaganda inquiry will take advantage of the opportunity to confer with both State and Treasury Department and with British officials now located in Washington to "seek transfer of a larger share of their British profits."

"Although there has been no talk of it in the meeting it has been understood for some time that an American threat to cease picture exports might weigh heavily on British officials," the story said. The despatch added that Government officials seem to be helping in negotiations impartially.

Harry M. Warner and probably Darryl F. Zanuck will go on today after which the committee likely will adjourn for all next week. The committee members expect to see some of the pictures alleged to contain war propaganda during that time.

Block-Booking Dragged In

Although admitting that the matter is not before the sub-committee, and that, anyway, it was taken care of by the New York consent decree, Clark took Schenck, into all the intricacies of block-booking.

Clark's excuse for dragging up this issue was that many of the pictures complained of as war propaganda were released before the consent decree was signed.

When Clark explained this, Schenck retorted:

> "Now, how can I agree that the so-called propaganda pictures to which you refer that we made are war propaganda pictures? They are 'The Mortal Storm,' 'Escape,' and 'Flight Command,' and they are not war propaganda pictures."

Clark read lengthily from Government reports in an attempt to prove the cancellation clause was ineffective.

Schenck offered to produce records showing that "some very good movies" had considerable rejections. He mentioned specifically Metro's "Marie Antionette."

"But the consent decree was drawn for the purpose of making improvements of these things," Schenck reminded Clark.

Pix Not War Propaganda

Clark said something about "war propaganda pictures" and Schenck whipped back:

> "I will never agree with you that these pictures are propaganda. It irritates me every time I hear it."

Clark renewed charges that Loew's branch manager in Seattle, Maurice Saffle, had tried to force showing of "Land of Liberty" by threatening pressure of the Federal Government.

Schenck said the Government had nothing to do with it and that the branch manager had simply been over-zealous. He said he approved of efforts to get broad distribution of the film because it was a patriotic picture, the proceeds of which went to charity.

Clark wanted to know if "Bundles for Britain" might be included. Schenck replied in the affirmative, and said that after one particularly vicious Nazi air raid the industry had sent $50,000 to Britain.

Audience Applauds Schenck

The audience quickly broke into a tremendous outbreak of approval.

Schenck explained an advance was made to that cause, anticipating a later accounting of profits.

"Was any of the money sent to the starving people of occupied and unoccupied France?'" Clark demanded.

Schenck answered that, as a member of the committee which would dispose of the profits, he said he had not given any thought to that yet.

When the witness said he had refused to discharge Saffle and supported Saffle's efforts to get the picture shown, except for his mention of the Government, Clark asked:

> "Then you believe in the policy of forcing exhibitors to take a picture of this kind against their will?"
> "Oh, no, Mr. Chairman," Schenck answered. "You know my answer, certainly not."

McFarland Praises "Land of Liberty"

Sen. Ernest McFarland at this point broke in to say that he thought "Land of Liberty" made up of historical scenes taken from feature pictures produced over a period of many years, had been exhibited "for a very worthy purpose" and he wanted to commend Schenck and his associates.

Tobey, announcing he was going to question Loew's prexy, regarding "alleged high-handed tactics" of the motion picture industry toward the press, asked the witness flatly whether he believed in censorship of the press or radio.

> "Certainly not," Schenck assured.

Tobey attempted to tie Schenck up with Jimmie Fidler's accusation the industry had tried to censor the Los Angeles Times.

Schenck explained this was a local stituation of which he knew nothing, and offered to produce Howard Dietz, who handled the situation.

For an hour or more Tobey tried to involve Schenck in the accusation, and got nowhere.

> "I know nothing about it," Schenck replied persistently. "I am certainly opposed to censorship and my company has never attempted it, to my knowledge."

In reply to a particular vigorous outbreak by Tobey, Schenck replied:

> "Senator, I am here to help you by answering questions. But I don't think you should try to force me to answer questions about things of which I know nothing. Why don't you let Mr. Dietz talk?"

Tobey said Dietz would be called later.

Paying tribute to Schenck's ability in not permitting himself to be put on the spot, Tobey said:

> "You certainly don't need a counsel. You can give any attorney cards and spades and hold your own."

Dietz Denies Fidler's Accusations

Howard Dietz took the stand in the afternoon and categorically denied Fidler's accusations that he and others in the industry have tried to censor press and radio.

"Fidler is a congenital liar and it would be against his conscience for him to tell the truth," Dietz declared.

Commenting on Fidler's statement M-G-M tried to censor his column out of the Nashville Banner, Dietz said he was informed a local manager in Nashville had made an "over zealous" threat with no authority whatsoever to do so following Fidler's attack on "Marie Antoinette" and Norma Shearer.

> "I abhor any attempts at censorship," Dietz declared. "In fact many of us resent this investigation because we feel it is an attempt to censor the industry."

Replying to Dietz's accusation against Fidler, Senator Tobey declared:

> "If Fidler perjured himself, this

PROBE'S 'REAL ISSUE': THAT GOWN

Jimmie Fidler Does a Telegraphic Postscript to His Senate Propaganda Sub-committee Testimony

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington — The Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee investigating charges of film war propaganda got down to what Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, D., Ariz., with a fine manifestation of irony termed the "real issue" yesterday.

And that, believe it or not, turned out to be that Alice Faye gown which did—or did not, depending on which version you accept—cause the 20th-Fox star humiliation by falling apart the first time she wore it.

The Senate caucus room took on somehting of the aspect of a fashion salon when Senator McFarland read into the record a telegram from Columnist-Commentator Jimmie Fidler replying to one from Harry Brand, 20th-Fox studio ad-publicity head, which went into the record on Tuesday. Brand's wire had disputed Fidler's "buy my soul" testimony and had charged that Miss Faye's gown, purchased from a shop in which Fidler's wife was interested, had fallen apart the first time she donned it, to the star's great embarrassment.

(Brand's wire was essentially the statement he had originally made public in reply to Fidler in Milwaukee. Both Fidler's testimony and Brand's answer were fully covered in THE FILM DAILY on Sept. 16.—Ed.)

Fidler's telegram related how two years ago he and his wife considered Mr. and Mrs. Brand intimate friends. When Mrs. Fidler and Gladys Parker, New York dress designer, opened a gown shop, Fidler wired, Brand himself conceived the idea of special gowns for the stars, the idea being to name the gowns according to screen roles.

"I'll get you Alice Faye," Fidler quoted Brand as promising, "because her picture, 'Hollywood Cavalcade,' will be premiered soon."

Fidler's wire added:

"The gown was widely photographed and both the shop and Miss Faye received much publicity. As for Brand's unfair charge that it fell apart at the first wearing and caused Miss Faye much humiliation, that is not true.

"The shop informs me that Miss Faye did not pay her bill until 40 days later. She had ample time to report any faults or request any repairs or changes, if such were needed.

"If such a thing as Brand describes happened, why did Mrs. Brand, 60 days later, give a cocktail party for 50 of her personal friends to introduce Parker gowns?"

Senator McFarland observed that the inquiry resolution didn't cover "Fidler's accusations, or Fidler's dress shop."

"You'll Never Get Rich" with Fred Astaire, Rita Hayworth

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)
Columbia 88 Mins.

ASTAIRE-HAYWORTH OFFERING IS PLEASANT PACKAGE OF ENTERTAINMENT; CLASSY COMEDY, DANCING, MUSIC AND PRODUCTION.

This is a pleasing package of entertainment that scores on several counts. It has Fred Astaire and his nimble feet; the comely Rita Hayworth doing some very graceful dancing, which is not surprising when it is recalled that she is a member of the famous family of dancing Cansinos; John Hubbard, Robert Benchley, double-talking Cliff Nazarro, Osa Massen, Frieda Inescort, Guinn Williams, Donald MacBride and others.

Sidney Lanfield has delivered a splendid job of directing, and has brought much comedy to the screen, while Samuel Bischoff comes in for his quota of praise as the producer. Cole Porter concocted six songs which were pleasing to the ear, and Robert Alton staged the dance numbers which were equally pleasing to the eye. Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano fashioned the screenplay, which has many fresh, bright moments.

Robert Benchley, Broadway producer, has a roaming eye for beautiful girls. He "observes" his fifteenth wedding anniversary by buying an expensive bracelet for Rita Hayworth, a chorus girl, in his new show. When his wife, Frieda Inescort, interrupts the presentation scene, Benchley insists that his dance director, Astaire, bought the bracelet and asked Benchley to present it to Rita.

Astaire is happy when he is drafted, because he wants to get away from the wily Benchley. He begins to fall in love with Rita, and meets John Hubbard, who poses as her brother, but who is really also in love with her. To impress Rita, Astaire "borrows" a captain's uniform and poses as an officer. He runs into Hubbard, who is a real captain, and is soon thrown into the guardhouse.

Benchley arrives at the camp to produce a show for the selectees. With him is Osa Massen, whom he plans to star in the production. Benchley has Astaire released from the guard house to stage the musical comedy. Many complications ensue, but in a novel ending, Astaire wins Rita away from Hubbard.

"Riders of the Timberline" with William Boyd, Brad King, Andy Clyde

Paramount 59 Mins.

EXCITING AND SKILLFULLY PRODUCED HOPALONG CASSIDY SAGA WITH POWER TO SCORE WITH ALL OUTDOOR FANS.

Popularity which the Hopalong Cassidy series widely enjoys among devotees of red-blooded outdoor pix will receive added momentum via this particularly good feature in which Producer Harry Sherman transplants William Boyd from the sagebrush to the tall timbers.

In sharp contrast to predecessor "Hoppy" pix, the beneficent Mr. Boyd does a minimum of riding on his stunning white steed, but other and thrilling riding he does, such as aboard a rapidly moving hand-car and atop a huge log which dangles from the cable of an aerial tram as he and his side-kick, Brad King, speed to prevent the villian's henchmen from blowing up the lumber camp's dam, which act would have made impossible the filling of a contract by Boyd's friend, J. Farrell McDonald.

The story recounts the machinations of Edward Keene to grab, through terroristic methods, the McDonald-operated timber tract, but their schemes are wrecked by Boyd's counter-action wherein he has the help of Brad King, plus the happy circumstance that pretty Eleanor Stewart, McDonald's daughter, succeeds in importing lumberjacks to take the place of loggers who have been intimidated and frightened by the Keene gang's tactics.

There are free-for-all fist fights, gunplay and melodramatics galore. The comedy slant is handled by Andy Clyde. Too, there is some rousing and melodic music for contrast and atmosphere. Lesley Selander's direction is nifty and free-flowing, and the cast, from Boyd to the small bits, is highly efficient. In "Riders of the Timberline," Sherman shows again his flare for solid production values. Russell Harlan, as usual, turns in eye-filling and showmanlike photography. The picture is bound to please action fans everywhere because it has pep and power.

48 Central States Houses Book "Ape" for Hallowe'en

Des Moines — Monogram's exchange has set "The Ape," in all 48 theaters in the Central States Circuit on Oct. 30-Nov. 1 as the Hallowe'en attraction.

"Outlaws of the Desert"

with Bill Boyd, Brad King, Andy Clyde
Paramount 66 Mins.

INTERESTING, ACTIONFUL "WESTERN" WITH ARABIA AS LOCALE WILL PLEASE ACTION FANS ROUNDLY.

Entertaining at the rate of at least a full gallop, "Outlaws of the Desert" proves four points: (1) that Bill Boyd (Hopalong Cassidy) is just as inspiring and efficient a hero on the sands of Arabia as on the silicon wastes of our own wild Westlands; (2) that a change of venue and fresh surroundings give contrast and fresh interest to prairie pix (even though the change of scene is psychological); (3) that there is one producer, namely Harry Sherman, who takes advantage of current Near East prominence to inject novelty into film footage; and (4) that even without the usual magnificent scenic backgrounds for which all Sherman production are renowned, a picture at his hands has a character and appeal all its own.

"Outlaws of the Desert" is a good action opus with plenty of thrills. It recounts how Hoppy goes with his sidekicks to Arabia to buy horses for the U. S. Cavalry; how he has the support of a friendly Sheik; and how they together bag an evil tribesman and his henchmen who are linked with kidnapping and a plot to fleece the Cassidy party out of some $50,000.

Naturally, the dark doings don't succeed, but their thwarting materializes only after gunplay, fisticuffs, and a pitched battle on the Arabian sands 'twixt hosts of horsemen.

Cast throughout does well, and assignments are efficiently delegated. Luli Deste is an exotic figure as the "Borgia" of the piece. Howard Bretherton's direction is up to his high standard, and so is the photography by Russell Harlan.

CAST: Bill Boyd, Brad King, Andy Clyde, Forest Stanley, Jean Phillips, Nina Guilbert, Luli Deste, Albert Morin, George Woolsley, George Lewis, Duncan Renaldo, Jean Del Val, Mickey Eissa, Jamiel Hasson.

Affiliated Theaters Will Buy for Y & W Circuit

Indianapolis—Affiliated Theaters, Inc., has assumed the purchasing of all film for the Y and W Management Corp., which operates and owns 29 Indiana theaters.

Y & M headed by V. U. Young, of Gary, will continue the actual operation of its theaters. Tom Baker is president of Affiliated Theaters, Inc. Both firms will occupy new offices in the Illinois building next week.

With 78 theaters under its direction, Affiliated Theaters, Inc., now has the largest combination of theaters under one supervision in this territory.

"Niagara Falls"

with Marjorie Woodworth, Tom Brown, ZaSu Pitts, Slim Summerville
Hal Roach 43 Mins.

SWELL PROGRAMMER WHOSE PLEASING JUVENILES, SKILLFUL COMEDY TEAM, AND HILARIOUS GAGS SCORE.

"Niagara Falls," the second of the Hal Roach streamlined features, has been compressed into 43 minutes and stripped down to the bare essentials. Its tried and true gags are put over effectively, perfectly timed, and earn an enthusiastic audience response.

Marjorie Woodworth is very pleasant as the young lady, whose "book of rules says that being locked in a room with a man over night means marriage." Tom Brown is more than adequate. Slim Summerville does the most with the material furnished him, and ZaSu Pitts gives a sample of what she can do with a comic satire of the love-hungry female who is constantly thwarted by a cruel and needling fate. It's too bad that her brilliant flare isn't given broader scope.

The story is in fact so bare as to be embarrassing. A pair of middle-aged newlyweds (ZaSu Pitts and Slim Summerville) check into a Niagara Falls hotel for their honeymoon, see Marjorie Woodworth and Tom Brown walk up to the clerk and ask for separate rooms. Believing the two youngsters married, Summerville tries to patch up what is apparently a lovers' spat. He locks them into a bridal suite, keeps them there at the point of a gun, finds out that they had never even been introduced, and decides to end both his life and the picture.

Despite the overmilked basic situation, complete absence of characterization, the film should serve admirably to round out a program. Gordon Douglas' well-paced direction is deserving of much praise and he makes the most and more of all the material offered him.

CAST: Marjorie Woodworth, Tom Brown, ZaSu Pitts, Slim Summerville, Chester Clute, Edgar Deering, Ed Gargan, Gladys Blake, Leon Belasco, Rand Brooks, Margaret Roach, Jack Rise.

Weigh Price Boost, Ohio's ITO Advises

sider a general increase in admission prices as of Oct. 1.

Exhibitors should bear in mind, Wood pointed out, that the Federal admission tax (Ohio has a .3 tax) amounts to a minimum impost of 12 per cent upon the box office intake and "every exhibitor should dispel the thought of adjusting his price scale to absorb the tax. As a matter of fact, the law is worded so as to give every theater owner a legitimate reason for passing the tax on to the patron."

Thanksgiving Observance Confusion More Scrambled

further complicated by the fact that five states which clung to the last Thursday in November in 1940 this year will observe Nov. 20 while six others which a year ago fell into line with the President's choice have switched back to the traditional observance.

At least 17 states this year will observe the traditional last Thursday, a survey indicates. These are Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee and Vermont.

But Massachusetts, where the Pilgrims started it all, will break tradition and celebrate Nov. 20.

Others switching to the Roosevelt version in 1941 are Maine, North Carolina, Rhode Island and probably Connecticut.

Georgia, Montana, New Mexico, Nebraska, South Carolina and Delaware, however, are departing the presidential line-up and will celebrate Nov. 27. Matters aren't definitely settled in Missouri and Texas as yet.

In 1942, the last Thursday date is expected to be unanimous.

Suggests Shelving "Bad Man"

Chicago — The Mexican Counsul General, Richard Hill, has protested here that M-G-M's "The Bad Man" is a reflection on the people of Mexico, and suggests that the picture be shelved as a gesture of good-will.

WEDDING BELLS

Eveline Yolanda Felasea of Castle Films will wed Robert Yosco Saturday in the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Brooklyn.

Indianapolis—Joe Coffey, manager of the Paramount Theater here, and Gladys Spaulding were married at Holy Cross Rectory.

Associated Circuit Forms Managerial Teams To Review Pictures at "Big 5" Tradeshows

Cleveland—Associated Circuit, operating an independent chain of more than 25 theaters, is meeting the trade screening situation by dividing its managerial man power into eight teams of three men each. Each team will serve as a review committee for one week and will submit written reviews of pictures screened during the week. These reviews will be available to all circuit managers. This plan obligates the managers to only one week out of eight to see the screened product.

Higher Quality Vaude Seen

"Flesh" Shows Appear Due for a Comeback

usual spots; namely, the Colonial, Dayton; RKO Boston, Boston; Palace, Cleveland; Shubert, Cincinnati, and the Golden Gate, San Francisco. As an indication of the popularity of name attractions, it was pointed out that Tommy Dorsey and his band already have been booked for the Palace, Cleveland, during the week of Jan. 17, 1942.

Headliners of the highest quality have been booked by RKO for its regular stage show houses, in addition to a number of spots where special shows will be booked in on spot dates.

May Use More Vaudeville In RKO West Coast Spots

San Francisco—Nat Holt, new West Coast RKO head, is a strong vaudeville booster, and may increase stage bookings in RKO's Coast houses. Local RKO Golden Gate has played stage shows without a break since it was opened in 1925.

There's quite a bit of interest here over the fact that Fox West Coast is also dabbling a bit in vaudeville for the first time in years. Circuit is feeling out public interest in stage attractions. Idea is that if stage shows click it would give houses a chance to hoist prices and cut out double bills. Principal question mark is that it is doubtful if enough good standard acts are available.

Wilby Interests Booking Legitimate for Birmingham

Birmingham, Ala. — Evidences of fatter purses and looser money here because of national defense activities have caused the Wilby interests (Richard Kennedy, Alabama manager) to book every legit. pointed toward the road for the biggest flesh season since the lush twenties.

Scheduled to open Nov. 4 with "Blossom Time," the list includes a Lunt and Fontanne play, "Student Prince," "Life With Father," "Helzapoppin," "Hold On To Your Hats," "Ziegfeld Follies," and "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Canton Theater Resuming "Flesh" After Six Years

Canton O.—After an absence of almost six years, stage shows are being revived at the Palace and Loew's, the city's two major film houses.

Stage attractions were dropped because the musicians' union here demanded a 100 per cent standby band in the pit. The union has agreed to allow a 50 per cent standby band under the new setup, which will bring stage units to the two theaters alternate weeks.

Toledo Theaters to Use Acts For the First Time in Years

Toledo, O.—Both the Rivoli and the Paramount are offering occasional stage units this season, for the first time in some years. Opener at the Paramount will be Cab Calloway's orchestra Oct. 3-5.

Stage Shows on Split Week Policy in W & V National

Richmond, Va. — Wilmer & Vincent's National has resumed split week policy of stage shows for four days and second-run features three days.

During the Summer months the house played first-runs and carryovers from the Colonial, other first-run Wilmer & Vincent house, managed by A. Frank O'Brien.

"Life with Father" Booked In RKO Temple, Rochester

Rochester—Extension of the original two-day engagement to three and new dates have been set for "Life with Father" when it plays the RKO Temple here, according to Manager Lou Mayer. The stage comedy will stay at the house four days instead of two, with two matinees. New dates are Nov. 5-7 and 8, instead of Oct. 28-29 as originally announced.

Three Legit. Attractions Slated for Grand Rapids

Grand Rapids, Mich. — Keith's Butterfield is set to present three legit. shows this Fall. They are "Boys and Girls Together," on Oct. 17-18; "Life with Father," Nov. 12-13, and "My Sister Eileen," Dec. 5-6. Others may follow.

Top "name" bands will be booked from time to time along with the usual films.

Alabama Circuit Booking 9 Legits. for Montgomery

Montgomery, Ala.—A legit. season, the like of which has not been seen here in 15 years, is booked for this town with Alabama Theaters, Inc., as sponsors. A minimum of nine plays is planned. First will be "Blossom Time."

Scent "Flesh" for Shea's, Toronto, in Lapp's Signing

Toronto—A step in the direction of flesh presentation at Shea's Theater, Toronto, which is being converted into a first-line deluxer, has been taken by Famous Players Canadian, in the booking of Horace Lapp, Canadian orchestra conductor and musician, as the organist of the theater following its re-opening Sept. 26 after alterations. The organ has been silent for years.

Shea's will have a single-feature screen policy, according to Manager Fred. Trebilcock, and will re-open with "A Yank in the RAF."

Civic Theater, Portland, Me., Reported Planning "Flesh"

Portland, Me.—Civic Theater is reported planning to add stage shows, booking out of RKO Boston. Town has long been shy of swing-and sway, girls, frills, tights, barelegs and . . . acrobats. Should click with lots of sailors and soldiers in town.

Northampton, Mass. — Martin F. Shaughnessy, manager of the Academy of Music, local movie house, has been promoted from first lieutenant to captain in the 26th (Yankee) Division.

St. Louis—Bob Pratchett, former Paramount booker, who was drafted by Uncle Sam, is now at Angel Island en route to Hawaii with the Coast Artillery. He has been succeeded on the booking staff by Roland Menown.

U. S. Dailies Editorially Rake Senate Witch Hunt

Rep. Emanuel Celler Set to Blast Senate Inquiry in Radio Talk Over WMCA Tomorrow

Rep. Emanuel Celler, Brooklyn Congressman from the 10th N. Y. District, will take the air over WMCA at 9:45 p.m. tomorrow to pay his respects to the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee's film war propaganda inquiry. It is understood that Celler is prepared to verbally rake the probe fore and aft.

WMCA invited the Congressman to discuss the investigation, and he promptly accepted. Program will run 15 minutes. So far as is known, WMCA is the first station to make time available for this purpose.

co-operate in defense work, to persuade army and navy enlistments, to buy defense bonds, etc. For their efforts in this direction, we unhesitatingly say, the moving picture producers are entitled to commendation, not condemnation at the hands of irresponsible public-seeking individuals."

GALVESTON (TEX.) NEWS: "In order to acquit the movies of warmongering it isn't necessary to prove that they have taken a position of neutrality as between democratic and totalitarian principles. That is far from being the case. The motion picture industry, rightly regarding itself as a medium of public information, has endeavored to interpret world affairs from the democratic viewpoint.

"It has engaged in propaganda in the sense that it has exalted the American way of life and dramatized the current menace to that way of life. But it cannot be said that the industry has compromised its independence or made itself an instrument of official policy in the way that totalitarian pictures, press and radio have done. . ."

ROCHESTER DEMOCRAT and CHRONICLE: "Undoubtedly the hearings are the result only of the isolationist Senators' great itch for continual obstructionist activity whether they promise anything important or not."

TOPEKA (KANS.) CAPITAL: "Without a doubt the freedom of the screen is as important as freedom of the press, radio and other means of expression . . . The fundamental American principle of freedom of expression applies to the screen, and the industry recognizes the distinction between liberty and license."

FREEPORT (ILL.) JOURNAL-STANDARD: "The whole question is much bigger than that of the right of Hollywood to put out 'The Mortal Storm' or 'Escape' or 'The Great Dictator' or similar pictures. . . . The question raised by the Congressional committee affects press, platform and radio quite as much as it does the screen. It is really the old, old question of censorship. . . ."

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) JOURNAL: "To accuse the movies of pro-war propaganda, as Senator Clark does, is only to reveal the hollowness of the isolationists' arguments."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH: "As an impartial, judicial inquiry, the Senate subcommittee investigation of the moving picture industry is a farce. . . . Nothing will come of the hearings but fur-flying, caterwauling and ill-feeling. It is unfortunate that animosity should needlessly be stirred up at this time."

PEORIA (ILL.) JOURNAL-TRANSCRIPT: "The Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee has invited a losing battle in its attempt to indict the movie industry for war propaganda. Movies have more pull with the people than senators. . . ."

CINCINNATI ENQUIRER: ". . . From the look of things this will not be an inquiry, but a political attempt to discredit the motion picture industry and at the same time to inspire new hostility and contempt for the administration and its foreign policy. . . ."

"LEWISTON (ME.) JOURNAL: ". . . . It is difficult to see any call for a 'smear campaign' such as Senators Nye and Clark are embarking upon. . . . Doesn't the public . . . deserve a rest from such as Nye and Clark?"

WASHINGTON POST: "It will be a good bet that if the hearings go on in the present vein, it looks as if the isolationists responsible for the resolution will wish they had never thought of it."

BALTIMORE EVENING SUN: ". . . In their efforts to make people believe that there would be no danger from abroad if it were not for Roosevelt, the isolationists find that people are attending movies which indicate that Hitler is also a factor in their calculations. The red-herring investigation of Hollywood follows logically—once you have made up your mind to believe that the national danger is not the greatest military machine of all time, but only those who talk and make movies about it."

OMAHA WORLD-HERALD: ". . . We also think that freedom of the films . . . now belongs in the same category as freedom of speech."

WILKES-BARRE RECORD: "Unsupported assertions that the film industry is trying to get this country into war are manifestly unfair, and they are entirely out of accord with the natural tendency of some of the newsreels depicting the results of bombings to create an abhorrence of war. As far as the national defense program is concerned, nobody can be indicted for supporting it. It would be unfair not to include the screen among the media for enlisting support, and unpatriotic for the screen to fail to respond."

AUBURN (N. Y.) CITIZEN ADVERTISER: ". . . The motives back of the Senate's decision to put Hollywood through the mill just now seem about as scurvy as anyone could imagine. . . . If the senators find that it is criminal to boost the U. S. A. on the silver screen, while permitting others to degrade it in the press and on the lecture platform, the voters will know that it is time to do some house-cleaning in Congress."

GRAND RAPIDS PRESS: "Senator Wheeler may be wholly sincere, but he will hardly accomplish anything by a Congressional sideshow of this sort. . . ."

NEW YORK DAILY WORKER: "The American people should call upon their Senators and Representatives and upon the White House to halt the scandalous proceedings of the Wheeler-Nye-Clark committee. For such activities jeopardize the national security of the United States just as much as does a Hitler torpedo, bomb or panzer division."

MANCHESTER (N. H.) UNION: "Like every other industry, the movies are doing all in their power to co-operate with the Government in its national defense program.

"The American people will not need to be told by Senators Wheeler or Nye or any other isolationist whether this is a crime."

LOUISVILLE TIMES: ". . . The Federal Constitution provides that free utterance shall be safeguarded in this democracy. The stage and the screen are among its vehicles. . . . The film industry . . . has as clear a right to free utterance as any individual newspaper or newspaper chain has."

NEW BEDFORD (MASS.) MERCURY: "Senator Nye's contention . . . offers no legitimate excuse for the Senate to spend public funds on an investigation that is not properly within the jurisdiction of that body and which amounts to nothing more than a witch hunt."

CHICAGO TIMES: . . . "By every right radio and motion pictures should be as immune from intimidation and influence as newspapers."

YOUNGSTOWN (O.) VINDICATOR AND TELEGRAM: "The isolationists' . . . complaints are so obviously without foundation as to constitute an abuse of Congressional privilege. But now that the issue has been brought up, it should backfire to the total discredit of the men who publicized it."

SEATTLE TIMES: "The Senate's investigation . . . isn't desirable nor necessary and it promises no great enjoyment for anybody.

"If the sentiment of the industry has been given some expression in its products, it can have offended only those who have more regard for Hitler than for human rights. Some of the Senators who have forced this investigation may find cause to regret it."

PORTLAND (ME.) PRESS HERALD: ". . . Since when did editorializing in the creative arts call for Congressional investigation?"

NEWARK STAR LEDGER: ". . . While Nye believes that Hollywood is obligated to give the Nazis propaganda opportunities in the movies, he does not seem to believe that a U. S. Senate committee is obligated to give the movie industry the same opportunity to cross-examine witnesses that he has."

ROME SENTINEL: ". . . Whether or not the pictures are to be regarded as coming under the constitutional guarantee of free speech and a free press as do individuals, newspapers and periodicals, it ought to be regarded as an abuse of Congressional authority to hale representatives of the industry before the bar, for supporting the Government in its formally declared objectives."

ST. PAUL PIONEER-PRESS: ". . . Any medium of expression should be free to voice varying attitudes on public affairs, without running the risk of being summoned to Washington to undergo a public scourging by Senators of contrary opinion."

AUGUSTA (GA.) CHRONICLE: "War-conscious isolationists have no more right to censor the films than they do to censor the press, magazines or radio. . . We say let's have more and better war pictures, without interference by the isolationists or anyone else."

PARIS (TENN.) POST-INTELLIGENCER: "In proposing that a Senate sub-committee be appointed to 'investigate' anti-Nazi motion picture films Senator Wheeler is revealing an approval of Nazi methods in controlling expression of opinion. . ."

SALEM (ORE.) CAPITAL-JOURNAL: "Congress has no more right to legislate on film themes nor to impose a Nazi censorship than it has to attempt similar control of the press.

"If such a precedent is established, it bodes ill for our democratic way of life."

RUTLAND (VT.) HERALD: "... To say that this kind of film is war propaganda is equivalent to saying that the old gangster films, in which the mob leader was glamorized, indicated that the movie industry was trying to promote gangsterism in the United States."

INDIANAPOLIS STAR: "The craze for Congressional investigations and the efforts of an appeasement minority seem chiefly responsible for the inquiry. . . It is not expected the public will manifest great interest in the proceedings, which are likely to seek an outlet for political views rather than a serious attempt to reveal an organized propaganda campaign on the part of the screen moguls."

BIRMINGHAM AGE-HERALD: "All who use the great American privileges of free expression may make mistakes. But if when they did so, their freedom was cut off, there soon would be no free expression in this country."

Argentina Cuts Tax On U. S. Pix Profits

10 per cent of the amount exported from the country.

It was explained in New York that it had been Argentina's contention that all of the money shipped out of the country was profit, and therefore taxable. U. S. distributors asserted such a theory was not true and the amount was lowered to 50 per cent which met with further objections by the distributors. Issue went to the Supreme Court which set the 10 per cent figure.

According to the cable received from THE FILM DAILY'S staff correspondent in Buenos Aires, companies affected are Warner Bros., United Artists, First National and Vitaphone.

Daily Newspapers Rake Senate Witch Hunt

There is plenty that is wrong with the films; but in respect of venal propaganda, born in hate and palmed off on the public with the gross ulterior motive cleverly hidden—well, the charge is so ridiculous that one question, posed by Senator MacFarland . . . would seem to answer it.

" 'Do you mean,' he asked Senator Nye, 'that we should conduct this inquiry just for publicity?' "

BUFFALO NEWS: "Isolationists are frequently claimants to the right of freedom of expression. They should bear in mind that the film industry, also, has that right in this country."

ROCK ISLAND (ILL.) ARGUS: "The movies have done a grand job of promoting the national defense, as they always do when they pitch into anything with all their talent and resources. For this they should be commended."

REVIEWS OF NEW FILMS

"City Limits"

with Frank Albertson, Lorna Gray, Jed Prouty
Monogram 63 Mins.

YARN WHICH HAS NEWSPAPER REPORTER AS ITS HERO IS SPOTTY PROGRAM FARE.

Another overdone version of how a flippant reporter gets his story and the daughter of a millionaire. Film is shy on action, depending mainly on the dialogue for the dramatic buildup. Script has its moments of comedy but is not strong enough to hold the show together. Jean Yarbrough's direction is standard.

Reporter who is not fazed by his city editor is Frank Albertson. His story is about a hypochondriacal railroad millionaire, Jed Prouty, who outwitted his rivals in gaining control of the line. Albertson poses as a doctor to gain entrance to the house but the daughter, Lorna Gray, recognizes him.

They plan to give Albertson the slip but he catches up with the train. Prouty falls off the private car and disappears. His rivals attempt to recoup their losses at Prouty's expense. Meanwhile Prouty is enjoying the company of two hoboes, Frank Faylen and Charles Hall, which scenes, incidentally are the comedy highlight of the film. Albertson finds Prouty in time to save him from getting routed by his adversaries.

CAST: Frank Albertson, Jed Prouty, Lorna Gray, Kathryn Sheldon, Frank Faylen, Charles Hall, John Maxwell, John Dilson, Mary Field, Paul Maxey.

CREDITS: Producer, Lindsley Parsons; Director, Jean Yarbrough; Cameraman, Mack Stengler; Screenplay, Joseph West.

"Norway in Revolt"
(MOT, Vol. VIII, No. 2)

RKO 20 mins.

Topical Two-Reeler

Indication of how the underground revolt against Hitler is spreading in the Nazi-dominated countries of Europe is capably presented by the March of Time editors who selected Norway as a sterling example. Considerable detail is given to how the young men of Norway escape in their sail boats to England where they join the British Army and Navy. Included are newsreel clips of British and Norwegian naval raids on the coast of Norway. Film concludes with a visit to the Royal Norwegian Air Force training in Canada. All in all, it graphically brings home the struggle of a free people to throw off the yoke of dictatorship.

"The Old Oaken Bucket"

20th-Fox 7 mins.

Ordinary Cartoon

This animated tale of the romance of a frog and its lady fair is a routine rehash of many of its predecessors. Cartoon is done in Technicolor and describes how the frog calls on his girl friend in the well and takes her to the amusement park.

"Two Latins From Manhattan" with Joan Davis, Jinx Falkenburg, Joan Woodbury, Fortunio Bonanova

Columbia 65 Mins.

SO-SO MUSICAL SUFFERS FROM POOR SCRIPT AND DIRECTION.

It is rather difficult to predict with any degree of accuracy the possibilities of this picture, because while it is badly directed, and not too intelligently cast, there are other factors which some audiences will find pleasing and others possibly entertaining.

On the "error" side of the ledger are: the erroneously tagged "original" screenplay by Albert Duffy; the fake, forced comedy of the really talented Joan Davis; the over-involved situations, and the "driven" attitude of most of the cast toward each other, the director, the script, and during particularly belligerent moments toward the innocent, bystanding audience.

On the other hand there are scenes with good production values, some clever songs, and in the case of the tag song number, solid entertainment. One Fortunio Bonanova, a grad of finer schools than this, adds a lone note of authenticity with an excellent straight-comedy performance.

Joan Davis, press agent of a New York night club, substitutes her room-mates, Jinx Falkenburg and Joan Woodbury, for a pair of Cuban songsters, who for some unexplained reason are kidnapped as soon as they set foot in New York. The kids make a hit. They are uncovered as impostors. Everyone is given a watery explanation which they accept—but which the audience won't—and the film winds up with Miss Davis doing a stock prattfall.

"Latins" rates only as a filler.

CAST: Joan Davis, Jinx Falkenburg, Joan Woodbury, Fortunio Bonanova, Don Beddoe, Marquita Madero, Carmen Morales, Lloyd Bridges, Sig Arno, Boyd Davis.

Dismiss Separate Defenses In Pickwick Anti-Trust Suit

fore Judge Carroll C. Hincks of the U. S. District Court here Tuesday.

The "separate defenses" had moved in turn that the entire action be dismissed because one of the plaintiffs, Fairfield Holding Corp., was a foreign corporation which had not qualified with the Secretary of State. Judge Hincks decided that this General Statute of Connecticut regarding foreign corporations did not apply in Federal cases and applied only in contract, rather than tort actions.

The defendants were at the same time granted subpoenas duces tecum, which will permit them to require the plaintiffs to exhibit their records.

committee will know what to do with him."

Chairman Clark said he thought it "unfortunate" that Warners' "Sergeant York" had crept into the list of alleged propaganda pictures.

He made this statement in reply to an assertion by Schenck that he couldn't understand why "Flight Command" had been included. Clark said he thought several of the pictures on the so-called "John Flynn list" should not have been there.

"As a matter of fact I thought a good deal more propaganda pictures had been made than there are," Clark added.

Governor Matthew M. Neely, a former Senator and foe of blind-selling and block-booking, dropped in yesterday at the hearing "to see what was going on." Neely said he just happened to be in town.

SWG Demands Definite Date For Appearance at Inquiry

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—Charging undue procrastination by the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee investigating charges of film war propaganda in setting appearance dates for its representatives at the Washington inquiry, the SWG has sent a letter to the clerk of the Senate protesting the committee's failure to answer its request for a copy of the resolution outlining the probe's scope.

The letter also demanded a more definite statement as to when the Guild's representatives would be scheduled for appearance.

It was announced that Mark Connelly and Ralph Block, representing Guild and Authors' League of America, will represent the traditional point of view of Guild and League and all American writers of standing; that it is, primarily, writers who initiate and create ideas, and that the wish to convey a point of view of any aspect of life is implicit in the very act of expression.

Senate Probers Turn Down M of T Screening Proposal

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—Louis De Rochemont, producer of the March of Time, yesterday requested of the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee in view of propaganda charges made against the M of T "permission to screen for your sub-committee the latest March of Time release entitled 'Norway in Revolt' and following this screening, present for your examination a group of members of the Royal Norwegian Air Force," who took part in the re-enactments which are used in this film.

De Rochemont said the air men would come to Washington in their own planes today.

Chairman D. Worth Clark, however, ruled the sub-committee shouldn't interrupt the procession of industry witnesses.

Chances for Better British Remittance Terms 'Obscure'

Chances of U. S. distribs. for obtaining more liberal British remittance terms upon the expiration of the present agreement on Nov. 1 are still "obscure," according to a Washington dispatch to the Wall St. Journal yesterday.

The story said:

"American authorities have interposed no objection to the discussion of more generous terms. In fact, the State Department appears to be the channel through which they are being conducted.

"Some individual officials have questioned the propriety of the British making increased dollar payments to any non-defense industry at a time when the United States as a whole through the Lend-Lease program is waiving dollar demands on England for war aid. This attitude, however, has not been taken by any department as a whole."

Remittance negotiations have been in progress for some time.

counsel from time to time. Decision was reached last week at a board meeting held the day before the organization's annual convention in Philadelphia.

It was announced that except for the January sessions, usually held in Washington, and one held in conjunction with the national convention, all other meetings are to be held in Allied territories.

Allied, it was pointed out, believes that with the latest AID data to serve as a basis, the regional meetings can be turned into buying clinics for the devising of legal and effective means for resisting the dangers which many "thoughtful exhibitors see in the new selling policies and methods." Because of the possibility that the escape clause of the consent decree may become effective next June, the meetings also will permit exhibitors to decide for themselves the kind of selling system they would like, after full discussion, the bulletin declares.

PLAIN TALK

. . . about equipment

By GEORGE H. MORRIS

Equipment Editor, THE FILM DAILY

IN THESE days when America and its perpetuation is the business and hobby of us all, it is appropriate to note that National Theater Supply Co. is celebrating the 15th Anniversary of its founding. Between the nation and National there are some interesting similarities and parallels other than the relationship in name.

By a strange circumstance, National came into being (1926) an even century-and-a-half after the nation itself (1776). Currently, National is commemorating a decade-and-a-half of existence.

And there is another equally-odd circumstance which may have escaped industry notice. It is that the nation has achieved "one-ness" by bringing into concert more than 50 heterogeneous States and Territories, while National achieved "one-ness" by bringing into concert more than 50 heterogeneous equipment houses in 1926, thereby launching the company as we know it today.

BUT it is in the matter of "Credo" that the parallels twixt contemporary America and contemporary National outcrop. As a nation we have believed in democracy,—in the tenets of justice and equality,—and these twin concepts have motivated National Theater Supply since the outset. Customers of the company fear no extension of partiality, favoritism or discrimination. And no better proof of this can be found than the writer's experience in phoning an NTS executive recently when the potential supply of equipment was theoretically menaced by reports of impending priorities. Reply to the question of status came back clear and strong: "We shall continue to

Many Items Entering Into Industry's Normal Operation Should Get Materials' Clearance From the Govt.; Customers Ready to Join Drive; Odlum's Support Sought

Small firms manufacturing film equipment of various types are currently eyeing the necessity of gaining for themselves a low priority rating on material essential to the commercial well-being of the trade, and are reported taking steps to present their case to official circles in Washington.

Coincident with this report on Tuesday, FILM DAILY EQUIPMENT NEWS learned that customers of a number of such manufacturers are joining the latter in an effort to alleviate a situation which, if not rapidly corrected, may see shortages in certain forms of supplies whose annual volume sales are comparatively small yet vital to motion picture industry operation.

sell in any event on a first-come-first-served basis"

In the province of equality as advocated by National, this example will bear citation: The writer once asked an officer of NTS to explain the close harmony which prevails in the organization. The reply: "That is very easy,—there is none among us who thinks himself better than the other fellow."

ON a vast scale, the nation is now organizing manpower and machinery. In each of these respects, National has done its own organizing efficiently and well, having reached out and obtained officers, directors, executives, branch managers, salesmen and office workers of unusual ability, and garnering as merchandise to sell to the exhibition field the most up-to-date and efficient products of equipment manufacturers.

Again, what the nation is doing for defense of America, National is doing for the defense of circuits and exhibitors,—large and small. This latter "defense" is directed against equipment deterioration and obsolescence; against the forces which bring physical and visual discomfort to filmgoers; yes, and against the tendency of us all,—Mister Exhibitor included,—to leave until some tomorrow corrective acts which should be done today, for, indeed, National has been the militant apostle preaching the box-office benefits which accrue through proper theater upkeep.

THAT National has had its commercial problems to solve, just as has the nation, is but natural. That they have been solved on all occasions is a tribute to the skill and resource of its president, Walter E. Green, and that president's "cabinet."

This 15th Anniversary of NTS belongs not to it alone, but to the entire industry,—and the nation.

This month, we at National Theatre Supply Company are celebrating a birthday. Our 15th, to be exact.

If you think we're pretty proud to be 15 years old, you're right. We are. We're proud, happy and tremendously thankful. We hope you've enjoyed doing business with National as much as we've enjoyed doing business with you.

As all of us know, this is an industry of constant shifts and changes; the currents of popularity build up swiftly and tear down with even greater speed. Glance back at the names that made news in the trade papers 15 years ago and you are struck almost immediately by the terrific mortality even among the greatest.

But through all these years National Theatre Supply Company, piloted by a shirt-sleeved personnel that understands the exhibitors' problems, held to a course that has brought it leadership in its field.

We like to believe that we have fulfilled the prophecy made editorially in the Exhibitors Herald of 1926 when it said that "National . . . is now in a position to render nationally a thoroughly indispensable service to theatre owners in matters of equipment, maintenance and operation."

Today, as then, National's 29 branches and 300 employees are dedicated to the proposition that "day or night, wherever you are, there's a National branch nearby to serve you better."

The new seats have already arrived in Wilmington. A crew of 25 men has been engaged to get to work immediately reseating the theater. Plans for remodeling and improving the theater are extensive. New wall panels, electric fixtures, display frames, mirrors, etc., will adorn the lobby. New fixtures and display frames will decorate the outside of the theater.

New sound and projection machines will be installed along with the latest wide dimension screen. All the electrical fixtures throughout the theater will be replaced with the latest in modern design.

The upright electric sign reading "Loew's" will be taken from the present theater on Delaware Avenue and placed on the front of the new theater. This will be the only fixture or furnishing taken from the old theater.

Individual speakers will be provided for each car, and many innovations will be introduced in this open-air movie, such as a waterfall in front of the screen which can be frozen over in the winter and used as a skating rink. Its location being on a corner and facing two roads, the side road will be for exit with three drives. Enclosure of the Drive-In proper will be made of Transite with baffle plates for each lane of cars. Baffles will be indirectly lighted. Enclosure will be with Transite fence and will have poplar trees at a height of some 30 feet, spaced every eight feet. Drive lane will have concrete bumpers and a black top covering the earth. Drop Plans To Erect Detroit 2,000-Seater

Detroit—Plans for construction of the 2,000-seat Carthat Theater, which is already partly erected, were dropped by Joseph Miskinis, Ben Marshall, and Phillip Gorelick, Marshall disclosed.

The house is in the northwest section where several new theaters have ben built or planned within the past year, and fear of adding to overseating worries led to the decision. The structure will be used as a bowling alley instead, Marshall said.

WHO'S WHO IN EQUIPMENT

CHAS. F. HORSTMAN. Supervisor of Sound, RKO. One of the quartet of key men of the technical department of four major circuits,—Isaac, Loew's; Ruben, Paramount; Cahill, Warner Bros.; Horstman, RKO. Born in Schenectady, N. Y., 1907. Graduated from high school, 1923, and same year got his first job,—laboratory assistant, General Electric, Schenectady. Young, still young, frankly admits it, but plenty of experience. Worked for two years with GE on electrical recording of phonograph records. Until 1930 in Research Department, on development of Photophone which GE and Westinghouse were manufacturing for RCA. In 1930 went to RCA Photophone as a field engineer. Transferred to RKO Theaters Corp. in 1931 as assistant supervisor of sound projection. Appointed supervisor, 1933. RKO then had over 100 theaters. In this important position, Horstman has turned in a brilliant job. Is modest and reitring, but earnest and efficient. Shows same fine cooperative spirit in filmland as his fellow members of the "Quartet." Member of SMPE and interested in any activity which leads to progress in sound and visual projection. Is married, lives in Larchmont, N. Y. He and his wife have a seven-months-old son who is their major interest in life.

Seats are so arranged that no person is directly behind another.

Temlock paneling in pastel shades is used horizontally for wall decorations, the paneling being broken by vertical hand decorated panels. Much glass brick has been used, particularly in the lobby, thus permitting beautiful lighting effects.

The marquee is offering a patriotic motif, being shaped the letter "V" for Victory, with interchangeable lettering and colored lights. A Brenkert projector combined with Western Eletcric microphone system is used.

and members of the office staff.

Charles Fay, representing the factory employees, presided as toastmaster at the dinner introducing the officials of the company among whom were: Earle G. Hines, president; A. J. Palmer, executive vice-president; H. Griffin, vice-president; R. B. LaRue, secretary; E. L. Worfolk, controller and assistant treasurer; J. F. Campbell, plant manager, and H. W. Baker.

Hines, speaking briefly, expressed the pleasure he took in being present and stressed the fact that everyone present contributed to the success of the company by giving his best work. He pointed out that the large attendance was evidence of the good will existing in all the departments and was proof that the company is receiving the fullest cooperation from the employees of the IPC.

Fay then introduced Harry Marcus of Consolidated Film Industries who is president of the Motion Picture Base Ball League, and George Woodward, honorary president, who were on hand to present the IPC Team with a trophy for coming in second in the league games, Paramount having come in first.

Through the day there were many activities, but the outstanding event was the baseball game between the All Star Team from the Motion Picture League and the IPC Simplex Team. Prizes were given to the winning and losing teams, but the game being a tie, 3-3, the IPC players conceded first prize to their guests, the All Stars. The following are the players and the affiliations of the two teams: All Star Team, P. McGuire, Paramount; J. Germain, Paramount; C. Grobergia, Paramount; H. Yezer, Paramount; M. Rosenbaum, Skouras; H. Davis, M-G-M; L. Di Ganci, M-G-M; C. Reardon, Universal; S. Todd, Universal; B. Dosche, Universal; IPC Simplex Team, G. Shields, H. Plant, W. O'Neill, H. Gargiolo, H. Wathey, G. Gustafarri, P. Onorato, J. O'Toole, J. Smith, A. Tessorioro, F. Farrell, L. Spangen, M. Gedra, J. Dwyer, R. Rosdick.

Supper was served in the evening and there was a general acknowledgement that the success of the IPC outing fully justified a repetition next year.

McDonald To Build A $100,000 Theater

York, Pa.—Charles MacDonald, owner of the Southern Theater, has announced that construction of a new $100,000 motion picture theater in North York will be started soon.

The building, will be ready for its opening on Jan. 1, it is hoped. Construction will be of brick and a seating capacity for 500 will be provided. The building will be air conditioned for both winter and summer.

A definite picture policy has not yet been worked out, MacDonald said.

Marshall to Lecture At SMPE Meet Oct. 9

Season's first meeting of the Atlantic Coast Section of SMPE, to be held in the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West 39th St., at 8:00 p.m., on Oct. 9, will be addressed by Dr. Roy K. Marshall, former assistant director of the Fels Planetarium, Philadelphia, and astronomer at Cook Observatory, University of Pennsylvania.

The Marshall talk will take the form of a lecture, entitled "Astronomical Applications of Photography and Cinematography," and will cover photographic art in determination of stellar magnitude, the making of spectograms with the Schmidt camera, and will be illustrated by lantern slides and 16 mm. films.

Atlantic Coast Section calls attention of members to the fact that this meeting, and subsequent ones this season, will be held on Thursday, instead of Wednesday as has been past practice. Decision is result of recent balloting that was held on the question of meeting night.

Nova Scotia's Royal Hurdles Gov't. Ban

Truro, N. H.—Despite the Government ban on theater construction, the Royal here has been completed and opened. It is of one-story front, which is of tapestry brick, and claims the largest ticket and projection booths in the eastern provinces. There are 1,000 seats, all on one floor, which is saucer shaped, and claimed to be the first such theater floor in the eastern provinces.

Owning and operating the Royal is the F. G. Spencer Co., of St. John, N. B., which also operates the two other theaters in Truro, the Strand and Capitol, the latter built seven years ago. There is now a gross seating capacity of 2,500 in Truro, which has a population of only 8,000. However, a war boom prevails, and business at all the theaters is good, and has been so the past two years.

The construction of the Royal was permitted in spite of the dominion ban, but had to be in compliance with a new building code of the Government. It is believed that there are more theater seats to per capita population in Truro now than in any other community in Canada. The Royal is the only new theater construction in the eastern provinces in 1940 or 1941. There has even been great difficulty in getting Government permission for enlarging and remodelling theaters.

Wyo Theater Is Example Of Equipment Trend

Sheridan, Wyo.—In a campaign conducted during three weeks, theatergoers here submitted several hundred names for the new 850-seat theater opened recently by Fox-Intermountain Theaters, Inc., and name "Wyo" was elected for the new house.

Theater is outfitted with American Seating Co.'s Bodiform chairs, International projectors, Wentzel ticket register, Sheridan cooling equipment, thermostatic controlled. The walls are tapestry, acoustically treated, the newest idea in giving perfect sound effects.

Indirect lighting system, installed by the Art Neon Electrical Products Co. of Denver, is the last word in this type of equipment.

C. M. Morehead, formerly of the midwest division of the circuit, is manager of the new house and is assisted by J. Custis. John Hargis is in charge of projection of the new house.

Dearborn Well Equipped

Detroit—Wisper & Wetsman have a new theater in Dearborn, Mich., called the Dearborn Theater. NTS has supplied the equipment for this new theater and has equipped it with Simplex Four-Star sound, Simplex projectors, Hertner generators, Peerless Magnarc lamps, B & L lenses, Walker PM screen, National Crestwood carpeting and a National marquee.

CAC Gets Permit For New Honolulu House

Honolulu, T. H.—Approval for construction of a new theater in the Palama district of Honolulu was granted to the Consolidated Amusement Co. by the city planning commission.

At a previous meeting, members of the commission had objected to the proposed construction on the grounds that insufficient provisions were being made for parking facilities. Construction of the theater on Dillingham Blvd., main artery to Pearl Harbor and Schofield Barracks, would be a traffic menace, it was feared.

Esmond Parker, general manager of Consolidated, assured the commission that no traffic hazard would result, as parking facilities would be ample for the needs. It pointed out that the new Palama Theater will be in a thickly populated section where most patrons would walk to the theater.

Westinghouse Employes Reach All-Time High

Pittsburgh—Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. has increased its number of employes to 71,000, an all-time record high, it is announced here.

St. Louis Amusement Reopens The Maffitt

St. Louis—The Maffitt Theater, on Vandeventer Ave., between Maffitt and St. Louis Aves., one of the St. Louis Amusement Co.'s chain under Fanchon & Marco management, has reopened its doors after being remodeled and refurnished at an estimated cost of about $50,000.

The theater, one of the oldest of the better type of neighborhood houses back in the days when the industry was just coming into its own on the nation's most popular entertainment vehicle, was practically torn down and rebuilt by Sol Abrahams & Son Construction Co., the general contractors.

The plans and specifications, prepared by Leo Abrams, Title Guaranty Building, left only the bare walls of the original theater building. A new modern structural glass front was installed, new lobby, ticket booth, rest rooms, and smoking room. In addition, a modern air conditioning system and fluorescent lighting have been provided.

which have recently come to light is the instance of a company making 1,000 ft. and 2,000 ft. motion picture reels which are regularly purchased by many leading customer-outlets in filmland. Despite the fact that nearly all the national producers and distributors are supplying the U. S. Army and Navy, as well as other Government channels, with entertainment, the reels on which the film is wound may not soon be obtainable unless the steel required is made available via low priority rating.

Also on Tuesday, Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan asserted that "unless the priorities starvation now facing our small industries in Michigan is relieved, Michigan faces a welfare and economic problem far worse than the depth of the last depression." A number of the smaller film equipment makers indicated on Wednesday their approval of the Van Wagoner pronouncement inasmuch as it expressed what they themselves fear may be the result of failure to recognize on a national scale the need for the "little fellows" to receive prompt consideration on priorities.

Both because of his intimate understanding of economics as they apply to present-day business, and his interest in the motion picture field, Floyd B. Odlum is being looked-to by the small equipment manufacturers for his support, informing sources declared at mid-week. On Sept. 4, President Roosevelt, it was pointed out, named Odlum,—president of Atlas Corp.—, to direct a new Division of Contract Distribution in OPM, to break up Army and Navy orders into smaller units and institute reforms in Federal buying.

While Odlum's duties, they admit, do not embrace actual allocation of priorities, a considerable amount of film equipment is for national defense, and indirectly, equipment being manufactured for the commercial film industry should be expedited by official Washington because of its importance in sustaining civilian morale.

Sen. Nye Endorsed 'Nazi Spy', Warner Discloses

"May Correctly Charge Me With Being Anti-Nazi," But Not Anti-American; Warner

ity, Warner declared that the charges made against his company and himself personally were "untrue."

"The charges are either based on a lack of information or concocted from pure fancy," declared Warner, adding: "But the gossip has been widely disseminated."

In a prepared 29-page statement, Warner dealt extensively with the charges and discussed in relation to them the company's history, its production policy, the case history of specific pictures cited before the committee as propaganda for war, the public's interest in the world situation, the company's patriotic short subjects, the British market and the right of expression.

But perhaps the crowded caucus room derived its greatest "kick" from Warners' disclosure that "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," branded as a war propaganda film by Sen. Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., largely responsible for the inquiry, actually had been indorsed and praised by Nye after a private Washington screening May 11, 1939.

Ed. Harrison of Warners Brothers' advertising staff telegraphed him after the private showing that Nye indorsed the production, Warner declared. The telegram, introduced in the record, read:

In Boston Senator Nye said yesterday that he may have endorsed "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" "if the picture was one I recall being a very powerful message on avoiding war."

Nye said he would have to have access to his files before formally answering Warner.

"Senator Nye said quote the picture is exceedingly good. The cast is exceptionally fine. The plot may or may not be exaggerated but is one that ought to be with every patriotic American. As for myself I hope there may be more pictures of a kind dealing with propaganda emanating from all foreign lands. Anyone who truly appreciates the one great democracy upon this earth will appreciate this picture and feel a new allegiance to the democratic cause."

"I tell this committee honestly," said Warner in concluding his statement, "I care nothing for any temporary advantage or profit that may be offered to me or my company. I will not censor the dramatization of the works of reputable and well informed writers to conceal from the American people what is happening in the world.

"Freedom of speech, freedom of religion and freedom of enterprise cannot be bought at the price of other people's rights. I believe the American people have a right to know the truth.

"You may correctly charge me with being anti-Nazi. But no one can charge me with being anti-American."

During the course of his testimony, Warner said:

Charges "Reckless," "Vague"

"As I have said, reckless and unfounded charges have been made before your committee against Warner Bros. and myself. These charges are so vague that, frankly, I have great difficulty in answering them. However, they have been widely disseminated and may be believed by the uninformed. I have tried to summarize the charges. They seem to divide into four allegations, as follows:

"1. That Warner Brothers is producing a type of picture relating to world affairs and national defense for the purpose allegedly of inciting our country to war.

"This, we deny. Warner Brothers has been producing pictures on current affairs for over 20 years and our present policies are no different than before there was a Hitler menace. The pictures complained of were prepared under similar studio routine to all Warner Brothers productions.

"2. That the Warner Brothers pictures concerning world affairs and national defense are inaccurate and are twisted for ulterior purpose.

Administration Made No Suggestions to His Co., Warner Tells Inquiry

"This, we deny. The pictures complained of are accurate. They were all carefully researched. They show the world as it is.

"3. That Warner Brothers is producing pictures that the public does not wish to see and will not patronize. The proof of the pudding is in the eating. All of the productions complained of have been profitable. To the point is 'Sergeant York,' which, I believe will gross more money for our company than any other picture we have made in recent years.

"4. That, in some mysterious way, the Government orders us to make this or that type of picture.

"This, we deny. We receive no orders, no suggestions—direct or indirect—from the Administration. It is true that Warner Brothers has tried to co-operate with the national defense program. It is true that Warner Brothers, over a period of eight years, has made feature pictures concerning our Army, Navy and Air Force. It is true that we have made a series of shorts portraying the lives of American heroes. To do this, we needed no urging from the Government and we would be ashamed if the Government would have to make such requests of us. We have produced these pictures voluntarily and proudly."

Warner said that all the company's pictures against which propaganda complaints had been made, including "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" and "Underground," had been profitable, the first named grossing more than its cost in the first 11 weeks of its showing. Previous witnesses had said the alleged propaganda films lost money. In the instance of "Sergeant York," Warner said, "there is every sign that the gross receipts will be one of the largest in recent times."

7 of 140 Pix Alleged Propaganda

"I want to point out that although we have produced 140 feature pictures in the last 2½ years, only seven have been alleged to be propaganda" continued Warner.

"If Warner Brothers had produced no pictures concerning the Nazi movement, our public would have had good reason to criticize. We would have been living in a vacuum and dream world. Today 70 per cent of the non-fiction books published deal with the Nazi menace. Today 10 per cent of the fiction novels are anti-Nazi in theme. Today 10 per cent of all material submitted to us for consideration is anti-Nazi world situation and our country's problems better than any other man. I would follow his recommendation concerning a declaration of war."

"I am opposed to Nazism. I abhor and detest every principle and practice of the Nazi movement. I am not alone in feeling this. I am sure that the overwhelming majority of our people and our Congress share the same views."

* * *

"While I am opposed to Nazism, I deny that the pictures produced by my company are 'propaganda,' as has been alleged."

* * *

"'Sergeant York' is a factual portrayal of the life of one of the great heroes of the last war. If that is propaganda, we plead guilty."

"'Confessions of a Nazi Spy' is a factual portrayal of a Nazi spy ring that actually operated in New York City. If that is propaganda, we plead guilty."

"In truth, the only sin of which Warner Bros. is guilty is that of accurately recording on the screen the world as it is, or as it has been."

"If the committee will permit, we will present witnesses to show that these pictures are true to life. I am certain we can easily prove to you that Warner Bros. has not duped its patrons but has, in fact kept its obligation to the movie-going public."

* * *

"Apparently our accusers desire that we change our policy of picturing accurately world affairs and the national defense program. This, Warner Bros. will never do. This, I am sure the Congress would not want us to do. This I am certain the public would not tolerate."

* * *

"We receive no orders, no suggestions—direct or indirect—from the Administration."

"When we showed our first picture, 35 years ago, we wanted to please, entertain and inform our fellow-townsmen. Today, that is the objective of our studios, on a national scale."

"I have the idea that our accusers believe that I, together with one or two others, sit down in secret conference and plot the kind of pictures which we propose to make. Nothing could be further from the fact."

* * *

"I have no apology to make to the committee for the fact that for many years Warner Bros. has been attempting to record history in the making."

"You will note that Senator Nye said of 'Confessions of a Nazi Spy': 'Anyone who truly appreciates the one great Democracy upon this earth will appreciate this picture and feel a new allegiance to the democratic cause.' On this, I agree with Senator Nye."

in character. Today, the newspapers and radio devote a good portion of their facilities to describing Nazism. Today, there is a war involving all hemispheres except our own and touching the lives of all of us."

Finally, Warner turned to the allegation that financial considerations have influenced the industry's policy, saying:

"There is one last charge against the motion picture industry that I have not mentioned. It is repugnant to me. In essence, it is that we support Britain and oppose Naziism because we have a financial stake in Britain. Warner Bros. receives a net revenue of approximately $5,000,000 a year from Britain. If we were to stop receiving this revenue, we would continue to operate, just as we did in 1932 through 1934, when our gross revenue declined by $50,000,000. If we were able to adjust our affairs to offset this loss in revenue, then I certainly am not worried about a drop of $5,000,000. In truth, this charge challenges our business judgment and our patriotism.

Small Investment in England

"No one with any business judgment could possibly have acted on the assumption that the policy of this country towards England would be influenced by the relatively small investment of our industries in England.

"Warner Bros. has certainly not acted on the theory that our Government would pull our chestnuts out of the fire. When we saw Hitler emerge in Germany, we did not try nor did we ask our Government to appease him. We voluntarily liquidated our business in Germany. Business is based on keeping contracts, and Hitler does not keep his contracts with men, or with nations. No one can do business with Hitler's Germany, If, God forbid, a similar situation should arise in Britain, we would follow the same course as we did in Germany.

"We never ourselves or through our Government will try to save our profits at the expense of other people's lives and liberties. That would be as short-sighted a business policy as it is as a national policy."

Afternoon Devoted to Cross-Examining Warner

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—The cross-examination of Warner, which lasted all afternoon, was featured by attempts of Chairman D. Worth Clark (D., Ida.), to bring out that Warner produced propaganda pictures because he hated Hitler, and the admission by Clark that he hated Hitler, too.

"If we go far enough into this thing, I'm beginning to believe we will find out we both think just alike on this business," Warner finally said.

Clark contended there was a difference between holding opinions, and making pictures depicting Hitler in his true light because the latter might incite people to hatred.

"When you say you hate Hitler, that stirs people up just as much as a movie," Warner contended.

"But you're the responsible head of a big motion picture company—" Clark started out.

"You Are a U. S. Senator"

"And you're a United States Senator," Warner reminded him. "You're the chairman of an important committee, and people respect you for your position. When you say you hate Hitler one might say that stirs up people to hate him too, because people look upon men like you for guidance."

After a bit more palavering the two agreed that both are patriotic, that both hate Hitler, etc., but that Clark still thinks there is propaganda in movies and Warner doesn't.

There was a lot more talk again in the afternoon about Jimmie Fidler and the Los Angeles Times Advertising.

Warner assured the sub-committee that neither he nor any of the others had tried to censor either Fidler or the Times. And he made it very plain that he didn't think an awful lot of Fidler.

The hearing developed a bit of humor when Warner indicated he didn't agree with some of Nicholas M. Schenck's business methods. Schenck testified Wednesday.

Schenck said he wouldn't fire a man for using pressure to place "Land of Liberty" because he considered that the man was simply over-zealous, and had been "thinking right." It had developed that his district manager in Seattle had threatened Government force to place the picture.

"Then your method of operation in this case would be different to Mr. Schenck's?" Chairman Clark asked.

Method of Operation Differs

"My method of operation differs with Schenck's throughout," he replied.

He evoked even more laughter when he added: "I didn't inherit my business. I built mine."

On the method of operation angle, he added: "You heard Schenck testify yesterday that he takes people at any price. Well, we develop them. He takes them. And don't forget," he added, "Schenck took my son-in-law."

Warner and Clark got involved in a controversy that lasted some time over who had brought up the subject of Jimmie Fidler. Both denied heatedly that they had brought him up, and at length they both agreed to drop him with no regrets.

Wants to Preserve Freedom

Warner told the sub-commtitee he is very interested in preserving this country because he feels he is the first generation of his family who has had the opportunity to enjoy real freedom, and that he wants to preserve that freedom for his children. But he denied that his feeling led him to produce pictures designed to stir up hatred of anyone.

He pointed out that "Underground" presents a sympathetic picture of the German people who are trying to preserve liberty. "Just the things you and I are desirous of preserving in this country," he told Senator Clark.

When Senator Clark asked him if the industry really wasn't thinking hatred, Warner invited him and the other committee members to see "One Foot in Heaven" which opens here Oct. 2. "That will show you what the industry is really thinking," he said.

So far as conspiring was concerned, he pointed out that he hardly ever saw, for instance, Nicholas Schenck, who had been mentioned previously.

"I've seen him more right here in this room, than I have in the last three years," he said.

Then Warner added: "His policy is so different, we don't consider him a competitor of ours."

Zanuck on Stand Today

The hearing continues today with Darryl F. Zanuck on the stand, and possibly Barney Balaban.

Senator C. Wayland Brooks who so far has been mum throughout the inquiry, broke through and put in a strong plug for "Sergeant York," which incidentally, is getting tremendous publicity out of the hearing, and to place himself somewhat on the side of the industry.

"I saw 'Sergeant York' and I considered it a great story of American life. There is no propaganda in it at all unless for patriotism and the glory of a great and free people. It was well done, and if none of the others are any worse than this one, you can call me as a witness in your favor, and the industry will through these hearings have cleaned itself of the charges against it."

Whatever else the sub-committee gets out of the hearing, its members are going to get in on some free pictures. In addition to the alleged propaganda pictures which they are to view, and the invitation to see "One Foot in Heaven," they were invited yesterday, along with all members of the Senate, to see "Land of Liberty" about which so much has been said at the hearings.

"I consider this a truly great and patriotic picture, and I think it will do the members good to see it," Senator Sheridan Downey, D., Calif., said in extending the invitation.

During the afternoon session, the hearing digressed into discussions of whether Wendell L. Willkie's election speeches were campaign oratory and whether it is proper for movie studios to use U. S. Army equipment in the making of films.

Use Army Equipment for Films

Senator Tobey said information had reached him over the signature of Aubrey Blair, whom he described as an officer of the Junior Screen Actors Guild, that Warner Bros. had made a film starring the late Douglas Fairbanks and Leslie Howard, in which much Army equipment at March Field had been used. He said the picture was called "Escape." Harry Warner, who was under cross-examination, said he recalled no such film but offered to check on it.

Senator Tobey said he also had heard that M-G-M made a picture called "West Point of the Air" in which six Army planes were wreck-

FILM HABITS OF SENATE PROBERS

The UP yesterday interviewed four of the five members of the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee investigating war film propaganda charges on their film-going habits with these results:

CHAIRMAN D. WORTH CLARK (D., IDA.)—"I've seen only two or three films during the past five or six years. It is quite likely that this is good, rather than bad, because the mind isn't cluttered up with a lot of set predilections and ideas."

SEN. CHARLES W. TOBEY (R., N.H.)—"I am a confirmed movie fan. Sometimes I see three of them a week, and I like all of them—excluding the propaganda pictures."

SEN. ERNEST W. McFARLAND (D., ARIZ.)—"I usually go when my family tells me of a real good picture or when I'm tired and want a little relaxation. I like comical pictures—pictures that have some fun in them. I also like films with historical values. . . I've seen a few of the 'propaganda' pictures—maybe four or five. Those I saw weren't harmful, as far as I could see."

SEN. C. WAYLAND BROOKS (R., ILL.)—"Unfortunately, I have not been to many movies in the last year. . .I saw 'Sergeant York' and it was one of the finest pictures I have ever seen. I consider it in no way to be propaganda."

Fifth member, Sen. Homer T. Bone, D., Wash., was unavailable.

ed. J. Robert Rubin, M-G-M counsel, admitted making the picture, but denied that any planes had been wrecked.

The discussion over Willkie's campaign speeches finally brought an outburst from the industry counsel who contended that Clark was misinterpreting his speeches without giving him the right to reply.

"You go right ahead as long as you give me an opportunity too," he shouted.

The fact that he has been denied the right to talk out at the investigation has continually rankled Willkie, and he finally broke down under the persistent reference to his campaign speeches and shouted into the microphone.

Meet Monday to Consider Films Probe Expenditures

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington — Senator Scott W. Lucas, D., Ill., chairman of the Audit and Control Committee which holds the purse-strings on Senate investigations, announced yesterday his group will meet Monday to consider expenditures by the war propaganda sub-committee.

Lucas has indicated he thought the hearings an outlaw proceeding since it was not authorized by the Senate and that he will approve very little expenditure for it. Although a number of witnesses have paid their own expenses, it is believed the committee already has exceeded the limit set by Lucas.

300 Organizations Invited To Join in Inquiry Protest

City-wide conference of civic, trade union and civil rights leaders, called to demand the discontinuance of the Senate sub-committee now investigating the motion picture industry, will be held on Monday at the Martin Beck Theater. Three hundred organizations have been invited to send representatives.

The call to the conference was signed by Frank Gillmore, president of the AAAA; Thomas J. Lyons, president of the N. Y. State Federation of Labor, Elmer Rice, president of the Dramatists Guild and Thomas Murtha, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York.

James F. Reilly, executive secretary of the League of New York Theaters, yesterday sent this wire to League members:

"The Governors of the League of New York Theaters have been requested by the Actors and Artistes of America, parent body of Equity and other actors' organizations to join in a protest against the film investigation in Washington being held by the Nye-Wheeler-Clark sub-committee. Our interest is that it constitutes a form of censorship that could eventually reach the legitimate theater."

In discussing the success of the Paramount, Weitman said, "We have always felt that the entertainment starts with the footman and the doorman out in front of the theater."

Weitman said that "we all should realize that we are not experts on what is good at the box-office. We are only experts at what we think is good at the theater, so let's know how to sell after we get them in, as well as before we get them in."

Nashville Manager Denies Withdrawing Metro Ads

Nashville, Tenn.—In a statement given to the local press yesterday, William Crull, manager of Loew's Theater, denied that he was personally responsible for the withdrawal of advertising from the Nashville Banner on a local showing of "Marie Antoinette" after James G. Stahlman, publisher of the paper, now a lieutenant commander in the United States Navy, located in Washington, D. C., refused to drop Jimmie Fidler's column from the Banner.

Crull said in part: "Mr. Stahlman took the attitude that I was asking him to kill the column, which wasn't true. All I asked was if they couldn't edit it and be more careful in the future. I never made any threats. I couldn't any more pull ads than I could raise my salary.

"I told him I couldn't see any reason for advertising in one column how good a picture was, while in the next Fidler was saying how lousy it was. Its' not the policy of M-G-M to withdraw advertising at any time, and the proof of that is the fact that the ads are still running in the local papers."

other branches of the industry for the purpose of setting up a conference group which would seek to "promote a common interest and foster co-operation" among the industry branches.

Approval for these actions, however, was given with certain reservations, designed to safeguard Allied's interests. The reservations provide:

1. That such committee shall report back to the national board any action, proposed by the general group, for approval or disapproval before it can become binding on Allied.

2. That all action taken by the general committee and reported out as an act of such group must be by unanimous vote of all groups represented, pre-supposing that each group will be entitled to one vote on every question. This is for the purpose of assuring Allied that it will not be out-voted at meetings of the industry group.

3. That adequate safeguards be set up to protect Allied from receiving adverse publicity through all actions taken by the committee or permanent organization.

The New Jersey unit has scheduled a general membership meeting for Monday in New York.

Warners Dip Prices 5c In Two Milwaukee Spots

Milwaukee—Warners have dipped prices at their Granada and Milwaukee Theaters a nickel. ment, said that he found it necessary to make the appointment because the organization had been receiving many bitter complaints from exhibitors in widely scattered territories regarding prevailing sales policies and "especially concerning the unfair trade practice of holding out pictures that have been bought in good faith and re-allocating them at increased rentals."

The committee is headed by Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia, and includes Max A. Cohen, New York, and Herman Levy, New Haven.

"Surely we can work out our differences among ourselves," Kuykendall said. "There never was a time when we needed industry unity more than the present. Now when we hear so much about industry co-ordination, and all-industry committees for the common good, why don't we play a little give-and-take and demonstrate sincerity of purpose by a spirit of fairness. Storm warnings are out; will the industry heed them?"

Kuykendall said the committee was serving in the hope of avoiding the courts and promoting a better relationship between exhibitor and distributor.

● ● ● UNIQUE in the annals of jaded Broadway and the industry at large were the goin's-on in and about the local Roxy Theater on Friday night......We mean that glittering world premiere of 20th-Fox's "A Yank in the RAF", which will be "A Pull in the Theater" of every exhib......Technically, the world premiere was a four-ply affair in that Grauman's Chinese, Hollywood, 4-Star Theater, Beverly Hills; and Loew's State, Los Angeles, also unleashed it......Sure, the Coast has the stars, but here in the East we have the sun, which puts the Coasters hours back of us in point of time......So the world premiere was first in New York......

● ● ● IT seemed to Phil M. that the bow here eclipsed in aura all predecessor premieres......It wasn't the outpouring of socialites, civic leaders, Army and Navy and Air Corps bigwigs; nor the rousing feature attraction; nor the fact that Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Mayor LaGuardia, and Under Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal were official sponsors of the event; nor that a sidelight was the one and only Outdoor Carnival that the Great White Way has seen in two decades; nor that a Military Ball was held in the Roxy rotunda; nor that great Army anti-aircraft searchlights bathed the facade and skies above the city......It was the combination of them all......It was of such things that showmen's dreams are made of......

● ● ● FIRST came the picture premiere at something after 9:30 ......Then in the environs of midnight as the gigantic 5,886-seater spilled, those with the $10 pasteboards (proceeds from which go to the RAF via the British American Ambulance Corps), repaired to the rotunda where the Midnight Military Ball got under way in a veritable sea of soup-and-fishes, glamorous gowns, and gold braid......The catering for this strictly formal affair was by Sherry of the snooty Park Avenue Sherries.....But despite the "spirit"-ual name of said caterer, there were no spirits served,—the stimulating practice of the Smart Set being to trek to nearby "21," the Stork Club, and similar high-tone oases......

● ● ● BUT don't get the idea this premiere program was just a Swank Show......Inded there was a plethora of Pop Appeal for Ole Jawn Q. Public and his wife and kids......That's where the carnival (held in great open spaces,—parking lot to you, —astern the Roxy) came in......And that was where John Q. came in, and how!......For the pop price of 25 cents, which ain't much more than the price of pop, the boys and gals from the highways and byways of New York Town mingled with celebs, social registerites and the glitter-names of stage, screen and radio ......Some 30 booths flecked the Carnival, some sports kicking in big greenbacks for little knick-knacks to aid the RAF to get ambulances......All evening long and far into the night throngs milled about the theater taking in the premiere pageantry while mounted cops inched around, lenses clicked floodlamps flashed, television cameras whirred, and microphones carried the Gargantuan gaiety over the night air......

● ● ● OH, Yes! Here was a premiere with a marvelous promotional build-up which reached vast crescendo,—one of the neatest example of co-ordinated showman effort we have ever lamped.....with Mister Botsford's 20th-Fox staff, the British American Ambulance Corps, and Irving Lesser's Roxy staff dovetailing their efforts with the Hal Horne Organization in charge of the bally.....Perhaps the best idea of how attention-riveting the premiere was can be gained via this fact:—not once did we hear anybody mention the Dodgers!

Portland, Ore.—Three declarations of intervention have been filed with J. P. Nelson, clerk of the arbitration tribunal here. They ask that the demand filed recently by Graeper's Egyptian Theater for reduction from 91 to 45 days clearance following showing of first-run pictures, be dismissed.

Definite date of the hearing has not as yet been named but it is believed it will be about Oct. 7.

Plebiscite Illegal, Says Nathan Yamins

directors after the adjournment of the convention to discuss a subject as important as a plebiscite violates Allied's constitution, Yamins said in New York, Friday. The constitution requires that a special board meeting can be held only after the directors have been given 10 days notice in advance by letter or telegraph, Yamins said. This was not the case when the board ordered the individual units to poll their members, he added.

Favors Special Board Meeting

Yamins said he was in favor of a special board meeting being called, at which a resolution could be framed that would satisfy everybody and without it being rushed through without proper discussion and consideration. Such a proposal, he declared, would get 100 per cent support.

Yamins denied reports that he had accused Allied leaders of selling out to the distributors. The New England leader quoted himself as saying on the convention floor that adoption of the plan "would have the effect of selling out Allied principles."

The highest respect for Abram F. Myers, general counsel, and all Allied directors and members was expressed by Yamins, who said that his so-called "blast" on the convention floor was meant only to bring on a discussion of the plan on its merits without any intent of going into personalities. The interests of the independent exhibitor were uppermost in his mind, he said.

He indicated that the action of the board in rejecting the vote of the delegates endangered all exhibitor conventions. If the delegates' votes on the other resolutions held water, why should the vote on the resolution be kicked out? he asked. Another directors' meeting to re-consider all angles might be the savior of all future conventions, he implied.

Defines His Unity Stand

As to his own stand on the unity question, Yamins said he was in favor of any plan that wold not hurt the independent exhibitor. To some extent, he said, there is unity in most of Europe today. But, he continued, it's a unity controlled by dictatorship and nobody wants that kind. As Yamins sees the proposed resolution, the independent exhibitor could be compared to Belgium, Norway and other conquored countries. "That kind of unity I don't want," Yamins said, adding that he was suspicious of the resolution because he could foresee MPTOA-Hays organization domination.

Even without the third paragraph of the plan, calling for the consideration of an all-industry organization, the proposal has suspicious angles, Yamins said, because in time that third paragraph would be utilized and the independents would be drawn into a web comparable to the MPTOA convention in Toronto where the affiliated theaters were admitted to the organization.

Yamins insisted that there can be unity without the adoption of the resolution and that Allied has the machinery to act without appointing committees.

When asked what his stand would be if most of the Allied units approved the plan, Yamins said he would go along with the New England unit on whatever platform it adopted.

on the tax boost, and all exhibitors agree on adding rather than absorbing the tax here. The boost, however, is dependent on action taken by first- and second-runs, as Friday's meeting covered only keys and subsequents. Big houses meet today. Subsequents ask that the present 10-cent spread between second- and key-runs be upped to 15, with the present split price 44-cent second-run admissions—the key to the situation. Sentiment is strongly in favor of five cent steps with no odd cents admission.

IATSE and representatives of Co-operative and independent houses reached an agreement on a scale for cashiers of $15 minimum over 1,000 seats, $13 over 500 and $12 under 500. Week is fixed at 35 hours, with time and half for overtime. Discussions are still on over a six-day week for cashiers, with adjustment to be made for some houses. Even wives of owners acting as cashiers have joined the union although not required to.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Execs. Deny Charges

By L. H. MITCHELL

PROPAGANDA PROBE: Opposition to the Senate-unauthorized probe of alleged war-mongering on the part of films was reported rising in both Senate and House. FILM DAILY survey of film critics of the country showed overwhelming majority denying industry was making war propaganda pictures. At mid-week inquiry was seen nearing the blow-up stage. Senator Sheridan Downey, D., Calif., appeared before the Committee at his own request and ripped the war propaganda charge to shreds. Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's prexy, first industry exec. to be heard, denied all the charges of the isolationist-probers as did Harry M. Warner, prexy of Warner Bros., who followed Schenck on the stand. Charges are "reckless and untrue," Warner said. Daily newspapers of the country continued to rake the committee's "witch hunt."

UNITY PLAN: With four Allied units early in the week pledging their support to the national Board's proposal for an industry unity committee, leaders of national Allied stated that the plan, defeated at the Philly convention, was not dead. Later N. J. Allied okayed the unity plan with reservations as did Allied of Illinois . . . Allied board decided to hold four meetings annually instead of one.

* * *

STUDIO UNIONS: Seven Coast studio crafts won a 10 per cent wage increase covering a five-year period. While it was reported that 10 IATSE studio unions might walk out on the basic pact and negotiate separate contracts with the producers (with three unions holding one meeting in New York), the plan quickly flopped and the unions went into a huddle with IATSE officials in New York.

THIS AND THAT: Government, in connection with the trials of George E. Brown, IATSE prexy, and his West Coast rep., Willie Bioff, will probe IA's finances. Browne was ordered to produce the IA books and records for presentation to Federal grand jurors. . . . ITOA sought an injunction against Ascap, voiding payment of future music royalties. . . . Castle Films of New York was awarded contract for Government films by the Office of Education. . . . Gabriel Pascal signed two-year pact with RKO to produce six pix, first being G. B. Shaw's "Arms and the Man." . . . Premium service charges seen now in vogue. . . . RKO theater execs see better vaudeville as its theaters turn to "flesh" with pix.

"Twilight on the Trail"

with Bill Boyd, Brad King, Andy Clyde
Paramount 58 Mins.

WELL-PRODUCED, SWIFTLY-PACED OUTDOOR DRAMA TYPICAL OF THE HIGH QUALITY OF THE "HOPALONG" SERIES.

The Harry Sherman touch,—which is to say the imparting of 24 karat production skill and resulting quality—, is present in "Twilight on the Trail." Film has, in addition to exciting situations, hard-riding, et al, some good melodies of the prairie type instrumentally rendered and crooned by the Jim Wakely Trio.

In keeping with other Sherman-concocted drama of the great open spaces, the direction by Howard Bretherton is smooth and the photography, often magnificent scenically by virtue of the selected backgrounds, is standout. Screenplay by J. Benton Cheney, Ellen Corby and Cecile Kramer, tells of a rancher whose cattle mysteriously disappear without as much as a trace.

He sends for Bill Boyd (Hopalong Cassidy) and the latter, aided by Brad King and Andy Clyde, set out to solve the puzzle. Boyd and Clyde, the latter in his amusing assignment as "California," locate the rustlers' hideout,—a streamside cabin so arranged that their horses and the stolen stock can be driven into a secret valley.

When the two sleuthing heroes are captured and bound in the cabin, matters look bleak for their safety, but Boyd manages to cause a bottle to break, cuts his bonds, and then with Clyde also free and Brad King arriving as reinforcements, the rustlers are mopped-up. Cactus-drama enthusiasts will get plenty of thrills and action in this one, which, with its companion films of the "Hopalong Cassidy" series, assure exhibitors and their customers of tingling spines in 1941-42 season.

CAST: Bill Boyd, Brad King, Andy Clyde, Jack Rockwell, Wanda McKay, Norma Willis, Robert Kent, Tom London, Frank Austin, Clem Fuller, Johnny Powers, and Jim Wakely Trio.

"Secrets of the Wastelands"

with Bill Boyd, Brad King, Andy Clyde
Paramount 66 Mins.

FRESH STORY WHOSE PLOT AND ACTION SET IT CLEARLY ABOVE RUN-OF-MINE CACTUS DRAMAS.

Getting a sagebrush script with some modicum of originality has long been a problem to the producer of westerns.

But "Secrets of the Wastelands" does get away from the cut-and-dried type of story in recounting Hopalong Cassidy's arrival in a small town on the edge of a desert to accompany a party of archeologists on an expedition, the aim of which is to explore the remains of an ancient walled city which stands stark and silent in the sea of sand. There are two factions which attempt to break up the enterprise,—one a group of crooks who suspect that hidden riches lurk in the ruins, and a clique of Chinese, whose "agents" succeed in impeding the argosy of "Hoppy" and the archeologists.

The motives of the two factions are diametrically opposite, the former seeking loot while the other only privacy, for the Chinese have set up a Utopian settlement in a hidden, fertile valley beyond the ruins. Bill Boyd, as "Hoppy," has to contend with the actions of both groups, the Chinese kidnapping the daughter of the chief archeologist as well as mysteriously ridding the expedition of its essential drinking water. At the finale, Boyd, aided by King, Clyde, and eventually the Chinese, unmask the evil designs of the villain faction which wants to file a claim on the hidden valley. Needless to record, Boyd sees that the Chinese get their land title.

There is swift action and a heavy aura of mystery throughout the proceedings. Derwin Abrahams does a good job of direction, and Russell Harlan of the photography. All in all it is a neat and exciting film.

'Honky Tonk' at 214% of Normal

World premiere of "Honky Tonk" at Loew's State, St. Louis, returned the year's biggest week-day opening at the house and one of the largest grosses in the history of the theatre. M-G-M reported over the week-end. The box-office recorded 214 per cent of normal business for the day.

"Stick to Your Guns"

with Bill Boyd, Brad King, Andy Clyde
Paramount 63 Mins.

SWIFT-MOVING WESTERN WHICH PACKS ELEMENTS ESSENTIAL TO ENTERTAIN THE OUTDOOR FANS.

Bark of six-shooters, bad blood among the members of a cattle-thieving gang, and the heroics of Bill Boyd in stamping out the rustlers in their hideaway in the Black Buttes stud this chapter of the Hopalong Cassidy adventures. Boyd and his pal, Andy Clyde, essay to act as one wing of a pincer movement to bag the mob, while Brad King and the boys of Bar-20 Ranch handle the other flank.

Bill and Andy get to their objective first and join the villains, Boyd posing as a notorious outlaw to work his way into the confidence of the rustlers. By boring from within, and awaiting the reinforcements headed by King, the Boyd-Clyde duo succeeds in sowing dissension among their prospective quarry, and also sowing the seeds of suspicions as to their identity. But after a smoke signal is wafted skyward by Boyd, the Bar-20 contingent gets on the track and wipes out the cattle thieves, but not until after the rescuing party is subjected to attack from ambush.

Jacqueline Holt is cast as the niece of an aged trail boss, and is the heart interest. Cast plays with keen realism. As is characteristic of all Harry Sherman-produced sagebrush sagas, "Stick to Your Guns" has headlong momentum and fine scenic background. Outdoor pic devotees will like this one. Lesley Selander handles the direction neatly, and Russell Harlan's photography is deft and well-conceived.

Arliss Fined for Failure To Register U. S. Stocks

London (By Cable)—George Arliss, as a result of neglecting to register U. S. and Canadian securities with the Bank of England, was fined £4,500 (approximately $18,000) plus 10 guineas ($42) court costs, after having pleaded guilty, "subject to mitigating circumstances."

Securities which he failed to record amounted in value to about $52,000 in U. S. currency. He told the Court he had left most of his financial matters in the hands of a New York agent because "I had what I call my own business to attend to."

"3 Sons O'Guns"

with Wayne Morris, Irene Rich, Marjorie Rambeau
Warner Bros. 65 Mins.

DAFFY COMEDY ABOUT KIND-HEARTED WIDOW WITH THREE SLAP-HAPPY SONS THAT NEVER JELLS.

Comedy yarn about efforts of Irene Rich to run a home for her slap-happy sons is pretty feeble stuff. Conducted along the harum-scarum lines of the carefree family made famous in "You Can't Take It With You," the film rarely flashes any real humor.

The boys are played Wayne Morris, who prefers his cornet to a job; Tom Brown, who enjoys the role of a fight manager; and William T. Orr, who imagines he is an actor. Meanwhile, a wealthy man, Moroni Olsen, would like to marry Miss Rich, who is always worried about her boys.

Situation unravels for a happy solution when the lads get called by the draft. Best performances are given by Miss Rich and Marjorie Rambeau as the aunt with the acid tongue. Director Ben Stoloff had a weak script to work with and it is reflected in his direction.

Celler in Radio Blast At Propaganda Probe

discussing the industry investigation.

Celler charged that while investigation of American-made films is being made, no member of the Committee has objected to the Nazi propaganda films now being shown in the United States.

The Brooklyn Congressman declared that approximately 50 Nazi newsreels and 120 movie shorts are released each year by the Universal Film Aktiengesellschaft, an American subsidiary of the Germany film monopoly which was not affected by the Presidential order closing Nazi consulates and propaganda agencies.

"There are at least eight Nazi picture houses in New York City," he said. "Other cities where the Third Reich is constantly glorified are Chicago, St. Paul, Milwaukee, San Francisco, and Boston. Yet not a peep out of the film inquisitors. American films are completely banned in the Reich. That did not get a rise out of the backers of the inquiry nor did it even induce any of them to ask for retaliation and embargo against Nazi film propaganda."

Zanuck Defends Industry's Portrayal of Nazis

"Duty of Every American To Support the President And Congress,"—Zanuck

Senate Interstate Commerce subcommitte here Friday.

Zanuck, a lieutenant colonel in the Signal Corps Reserve, tore into charges that the industry is guilty of war-mongering and told the subcommittee, further, that there was evidence to establish "the unfairness of the methods used in this hearing."

Zanuck began his testimony by citing his origin in the small town of Wahoo, Neb., and the fact that all his grandparents were born in the United States and were life-long members of the Methodist church. He pointed out that he enlisted as a private in the first World War, and drew a tremendous hand from the audience when he told how he rose to the "Rank of Private First Class".

"Senator Nye, I am sure will find no cause for suspicion of alarm in that background," the 20th-Fox exec. said, hitting back at Nye's recitation of industry members of foreign extraction.

And Zanuck minced no words in telling the committee of his position on the International situation, declaring:

"In respect to my personal opinion regarding the entry of the United States into the war at the present time: I want to say, first, that no man who was in France during the last war can look upon war with anything but the deepest abhorrence.

"I wish our country would never have to fight another war. I want this country to go to war only if it is an absolute necessity, either to defend ourselves now or to prevent a future attack.

"In this time of acute national peril, I feel it is the duty of every American to give his complete co-operation and support to our President and our Congress. To do everything to defeat Hitler and to preserve America. If this course of necessity leads to war, I want to follow my President along that course."

In reply to charges that the Government had asked producers to make propaganda pictures designed to arouse a war spirit, Zanuck declared flatly, "That is not so."

He said the industry has been asked to make training pictures for the Army, and had done so without cost as a matter of patriotic duty.

"I am happy to state the Chief of Staff, General Marshall, has told me that these films have done an immeasurable amount of good in saving man-power, material and time in organizing the defense of America". he added.

In reply to Senator Nye's charges that 20th Century-Fox has made propaganda films, Zanuck said he supposed Nye referred to "Man Hunt" and "The Man I Married", pointing out that the former first appeared in book form and later in serial form in the Atlantic Monthly, and that the latter had appeared both in book form and in Liberty magazine before it was put on the screen.

"To condemn the motion picture industry for dealing with subjects as timely, as vital and as important as the current upheaval in the world is to subject the industry to an impossible censorship," he said. "It would deny us access to the same vital developments which today fill our newspapers, magazines, books, the radio, and the stage. It would prevent us from giving to the people of America subjects that fill their newspapers, their books and their minds. It would leave the American motion picture as worthless and sterile as those made in Germany and Italy.

"The daily newspaper has always furnished me and my associates ideas for motion pictures. I made the first gangster pictures which helped uncover the rottenness of the underworld in our various cities. Perhaps some of you saw 'Public Enemy No. 1' which was the first expose on the screen of the underworld. We received many protests against that film. I suppose the underworld thought this was unfair propaganda against the gangster, just as some now feel our was pictures are unfair propaganda against Hitler.

"Hollywood didn't create the underworld, nor did it create Hitler and the Nazis. We have portrayed them no differently than they are pictured daily in newspapers, magazines books and all other mediums of expression. In fact we have merely portrayed them as they are."

Zanuck pointed out that the pictures in question are only a small fraction of the Hollywood output, and that nothing has been said about the large number of patriotic and religious films the industry has been turning out each year.

The production exec. cited the charged by Senators Nye and Bennett C. Clark that 20th Century-Fox had sabotaged "The Great Commandment" and pointed out that far from being sabotaged, the picture has been released and is now being shown.

"The fact that both Senators Nye and Clark have taken pains to put this charge into the record without the slightest attempt to secure facts, easily available to them which utterly refutes their charge, indicates the unfairness of the methods being used in this hearing," Zanuck asserted.

He said experience with "Brigham Young" taught the studio the public was not in the mood to patronize a religious picture. He said an elaborate world premiere was staged at the Uptown Theater in Kansas City, and despite the build up, "the box office result of this showing was the most pitiful in the history of the Uptown Theater."

Zanuck declared his company has an investment of $200,000 in "The Great Commandment" and despite unusual effects has received back less than $33,000 from American showings.

Zanuck called attention to Sen. Bennett Clark's testimony "that our industry was determined to wreak vengeance on Hitler by plunging this nation into war on behalf of another ferocious beast, referring to Stalin", and replied pointedly:

"Undoubtedly, Senator Clark has overlooked the fact that Stalin and Hitler were pals, joined in a non-aggression pact at the very time all of the pictures belaboring the totalitarian ideology were being made."

In a stirring extemporaneous tribute to the industry, which brought tears to the eyes of some of the "old timers" present, Zanuck closed in a blaze of glory.

During his oration one could have heard a pin drop in the immense hearing room, and at its conclusion, Chairman Clark said, "Mr. Zanuck, you are not only a great creative artist, but also a very beautiful speaker and cultural force."

In the speech, Zanuck explained how he had first been resentful at the hearing and then his anger cooled, because it gave him this opportunity to explain how proud he was to be a part of the industry.

He reviewed the history of the industry from the old nickelodeon through the "Birth of a Nation," to "The Covered Wagon" and "The Big Parade," to the "Jazz Singer" and on down through "Gone With the Wind" and "The Grapes of Wrath."

"And I look back and recall picture after picture so strong and powerful they sold the American way of life to the entire world," Zanuck said.

"And I am sure that when the whole celluloid record is put before the world you are going to agree with the people of America. We have grown only because the people have let us."

The hearing developed a lighter vein when Sen. Clark, trying to cross-examine Zanuck, quoted Harrison's Reports on "Four Sons" and revealed that he thought that Eugenie Leontovich, the star of the picture, was the name of the family in the picture.

Later on, Zanuck disagreed with something Harrison's Reports said, and Clark took exception to his disagreement. The audience rocked with laughter when Zanuck replied:

"But you're reading what he said about it. I'm telling you what was in the picture."

Clark was reading from the Reports in an effort to prove the picture contained propaganda.

It was at this point that Zanuck commended to Clark's attention the telegraph poll by THE FILM DAILY which showed that the critics thought the pictures listed contained no propaganda.

"THE FILM DAILY has been a leading trade publication for 22 years, and I commend their poll to your attention," Zanuck said, and continued to read the poll results, as published last Tuesday.

In reply to previous contentions independent producers could not obtain stars unless the major studios would loan them, Zanuck placed in the record a list of more than 300 stars who could be obtained by anyone.

Senate Probers to View Seven or Eight Pictures to be Chosen by the Industry

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—The industry scored a point Friday when, at the request of Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th-Fox production head, the Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee agreed to view seven or eight pictures to be selected by the industry in addition to as many others which the committee will choose from the list of those features charged to contain war propaganda.

Zanuck told Chairman D. Worth Clark that the request was made that the committee might get "a proper perspective" of what the industry is doing, and Clark promptly agreed this was an "excellent" idea.

Wendell L. Willkie, industry counsel, said the selected pictures would be made public without delay.

Few Questions Asked Of Balaban at Probe

a few feeble efforts to interrogate Balaban, but finally explained that he had secured from other witnesses all the information he needed.

In reply to one question by Clark why Paramount hadn't made any of the pictures of the type complained of, Balaban explained it was simply because his studio hadn't the manpower to produce pictures of this type, and that they had decided to continue making the lighter type.

With that, Clark apologized that the Paramount exec. had been kept so long and then called upon to testify so briefly.

After Balaban, the hearing deteriorated still further into a discussion as to whether the British Purchasing Agency is employing racial prejudice in hiring its employes. Sen. Ernest W. McFarland finally left in disgust, explaining he had to catch a train.

Showdown on Probe May Go to Full Senate

Poll Gets Stellar Probe Role

Zanuck Reads Critics' Vote; Clark Blushes

published last Tuesday, the critics overwhelmingly voted that there was no war-mongering by the industry.

Zanuck read the questions and the answers of the critics, and, concluding, paused for a reply, but Chairman D. Worth Clark merely blushed and quickly changed the subject.

THE FILM DAILY again figured in the hearing when Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, R., Ill., who had been reading a copy of the paper during the hearing, called Barney Balaban's attention to an item stating that attendance at showings of Warners' "Underground" had spurted as result of the hearings and asked Balaban if he didn't have some picture for which he wanted to get some publicity.

Balaban mentioned Bob Hope's "Nothing But the Truth" and said he thought this would be one of the best of year.

In line with the humorous situation which presented itself when it developed the Committee was straining to keep Balaban on the stand long enough to justify having called him, Austin Keough, Paramount counsel, laughingly told the Committee:

"We are disappointed that we are getting last billing like this." It was then Brooks made his reference to THE FILM DAILY item and asked Balaban if he had a picture he wanted to plug.

Audit & Control Com'tee Charts Its Course Today As to Probe's Expenses

reached. There is serious doubt there ever will be another formal session.

If any further tip-off was needed that the inquiry was heading for the final curtain it came Friday when the sub-committee's chairman, Sen. D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, tacitly admitted that he didn't know of any further line of attack while Prexy Barney Balaban of Paramount was on the stand. Balaban was excused in a hurry.

Continuation of the probe faces a dual threat, first, from Senate Audit and Control Committee, which will meet today to chart its course on the inquiry's expenses, and secondly, from Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, D., Ariz., who on Friday threw the hearing into an uproar by accusing the sub-committee of trying to sabotage the President's foreign policy under guise of the investigation.

Asks Submission To Senate

McFarland, in a heated exchange Friday with Chairman Clark, challenged the latter to submit to the entire Senate the question of continuing the inquiry and told Clark that he was confident at best only 18 members of the upper chamber would vote to continue it.

"The Commiteee will engage in debate with you on the floor of the Senate and not before", the chairman replied.

Thus, apparently, the way was paved for a possible show-down in the Senate itself, despite the fact that an array of other witneses await the committee's call—among them Will H. Hays, MPPDA prexy.

McFarland, whose ire particularly had been aroused by questions by Sen. Charles W. Tobey, R., N. H., involving charges of racial bias on the part of the British Purchasing Mission here, tossed a second verbal hand grenade at his fellow committeemen with the threat to have the House Dies Committee investigating un-American activities probe certain charges laid before the Senate group. Asserting the charges only could have the result of arousing race prejudice, McFarland also demanded:

"Who gave Senator (Gerald P.) Nye information the Government has tried to dictate the making of propaganda films?"

Hot tilts between Tobey and Clark on one hand, and McFarland on the other, on the question of race prejudice, featured the morning session Friday.

McFarland Takes Tobey to Task

The quarrel was started when McFarland read a letter from the British Embassy denying charges that the British mission had refused to hire Americans of German, Irish, or Jewish origin.

McFarland, Pix's Friend At Inquiry, in Hot Tilts With Both Clark and Tobey

McFarland took Tobey to task for the statement, adding:

"Such statements create race prejudice along the lines of the speech of Lindbergh, and I want to say here and now, that America is composed of all races, but above all we are all Americans, and we don't believe in racial prejudice. There is more harm in that in anything you can do."

Tobey said he concurred with McFarland in not wanting racial prejudice. "If the charges are true, it is these people who are fomenting the prejudice" he said, adding that he would produce witnesses later.

Here McFarland broke in to ask Tobey if he concurred in the racial prejudice implications of Senator Nye's testimony.

Chairman Clark cut in at this point, saving Tobey the trouble of answering. He said he resented implications that Nye had appealed to race prejudice.

"And Senator Nye will answer you on the floor," he added.

"I'll be mightly glad to meet you there" McFarland declared, "because I won't be by myself."

Stahlman on the Stand

The first witness of the day was publisher James G. Stahlman of the Nashville Banner, former president of the American Publishers Association who was called in to testify on charges by Jimmie Fidler, and subsequent denial by Howard Dietz, that M-G-M had tried to censor Fidler's column.

Stahlman testified that after the appearance of the Fidler attack on "Marie Antoinette" and the admitted threat by the local Nashville Theater manager, advertising was withdrawn from the Banner. He disclosed a letter he wrote to Will H. Hays in protest, but admitted that the advertising was restored before the letter reached the Hays office.

Stahlman, now on Navy duty here, also revealed a letter from the McNaught syndicate to the effect M-G-M had asked for a list of all papers carrying Fidler's column, and indicating strong belief that the organization felt M-G-M was trying to censor Fidler at that time. The letter said the syndicate, however, had received no cancellation.

Such Trouble Not Unusual

Under cross-examination by Sen. McFarland, Stahlman admitted it is not unusual to have trouble with advertisers.

"We have trouble every day," he conceded, "every publisher does."

In reply to the examination of Stahlman, Dietz issued a statement in which he said:

"It's a tempest in a teapot, a mountain out of a molehill or choose your own cliche. I never wrote to the Banner, M-G-M never withdrew advertising. The postscript in Mr. Stahlman's letter to Will Hays, explaining the controversy had been straightened out, bears out what I say. His complaint died a-borning before his letter was even mailed. M-G-M stands shoulder to shoulder with Mr. Stahlman fighting for the freedom of the press. And let's have freedom of the screen also."

Inquiry Attempts to Tell U. S. What to See and Read—Willkie

Washington Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Washington—Wendell L. Willkie, industry counsel, in a statement Friday charged that the Senate subcommitte's inquiry into alleged film war propaganda "is one of the first attempts in America to suggest to the American people what they should read or see."

Willkie commented that out of 40 American "best sellers" during the past two years 36 might be termed anti-Nazi or pro-British, while only four—Hitler's "Mein Kampf", Anne Lindbergh's "Wave of the Future", Gottfried Leske's "I Was a Nazi Flier" and Rene de Chambrun's "I Saw France Fall"—"could be said to be sympathetic towards Hitler, Nazism or Fascism".

"Unless the day comes in this country, as in Germany, when the public is denied the force of its own opinion and is compelled to witness praise for all that is contrary to its fundamental concepts of freedom and justice, the 'other side' of Nazism will never be accepted literature and will never be produced for exhibition by American motion picture companies," said Willkie.

Now Wheeler Would Probe Willkie's Business Ties

An investigation into the business connections of Wendell L. Willkie, industry counsel, was urged by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, speaking at an Oakland, Calif., America First rally. Said Wheeler:

"I make no accusation about Willkie's patriotism, but the record should be examined."

ACLU Warns Clark of Danger Of Investigating Motives

The American Civil Liberties Union, in a further exchange of correspondence with Sen. D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee's war prapaganda inquiry, warned against the danger of investigating motives.

Sen. Clark had written that "motives are often indeterminate things and can easily obscure issues"; but since "motion pictures are supposedly made to entertain, and since many of them are obviously not ententainment but propaganda, it is difficult to separate motives from the end results in this case." If pictures are propaganda pictures, the Senator added, "then we are immediately confronted with the question as to why they are propaganda, and the motives behind them become extremely pertinent to the issue."

The Union, through its board chairman, The Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, in the latest letter pointed out that a large part of the political influence of the films is attributable to newsreels, and that while the motion picture industry is primarily engaged in film entertainment, it also deals with themes reflecting political, economic or social philosophies. Any form of serious entertainment, the Union said, almost inevitably reflects some point of view, and a charge of deliberate propaganda can be brought only where one tendency is evident in the selection and handling of themes.

The Union emphasized the danger of confusing motives with facts, saying "the facts ought to speak for themselves without invading such debatable territory" as motives. The Clark investigating committee, the Union pointed out, is itself not above criticism in some quarters as to motives in making the film inquiry, apart from its justification on the face of the resolution.

SWG Calls All-Industry Hollywood Meeting To Combat Senate Inquiry's Misinformation

West Coast Bureau of THE FILM DAILY

Hollywood—The Screen Writers' Guild has called for a mass meeting this week of representatives of the Screen Actor's Guild, Screen Directors' Guild and executive and artist groups from every branch of the motion picture industry for the purpose of taking immediate action on the Wheeler-Nye Senate film probe in Washington.

Sheridan Gibney, SWG president, in his call stressed that there was a growing feeling among Hollywood people that the motion picture industry should take affirmative steps to counteract the unfavorable publicity it is receiving as the result of misinformation emanating from the Senate committee's investigation. Plans call for a forum with speakers from each branch of production.

Gibney said that both Wendell Willkie and Mendel Silberberg, attorney, speaking for the film producers, had expressed their enthusiastic approval of the mass meeting.

Intermediary Price Subject to Top Tax

over that portion of the tax law governing "established" and "reduced" admission prices, question being raised whether an intermediary price between the lowest (children) and highest (adults) was to be regarded as an "established" or a "reduced" price. If a 15 cent intermediary price had been classified as "established," it would have called for a 2 cent Federal tax. But classified as "reduced," it calls for a 3 cent Federal tax.

Members agreed not to absorb the Federal tax and discussed the possibility of a general price boost, irrespective of tax. No official action taken on this, leaving it to individual theaters to adjust price problems within each zone. Still to be determined is disposition of ticket stubs where choppers are used. Ruling will be asked.

Iowa Exhibs. Will Jump Prices to Even Figures

Des Moines—Iowa theater exhibitors in most cases will jump prices to even figures in meeting the new Federal defense tax and will be able to eliminate the tax on 10-cent children's tickets by charging only .098 cents.

On account of the two per cent state sales tax, exhibitors will charge .098 admission and .002 sales tax to get around charging children under 12 for the defense tax.

Generally it was agreed to jump 16-cent prices to 20, 20 to 25, and 26 to 30, although some exhibitors probably will increase 16-cent prices to only 18 cents.

Attorneys for Tri-States Theaters, Inc., who had worked on price scales with state and Federal attorneys, led the discussion at a meeting attended by 150 exhibitors and distributors.

A joint committee of exhibitors and distributors was set up to investigate and look towards control of portable circuits and 16 mm "unfair" competition. The committee will render its report at the next meeting. Named to the group were: Forest Judd of Monogram, chairman; Warner Grossman of Nevada, Bill Eddy of Indianola, A. B. Pettit of Winterset, Mrs. C. F. Hoffman of Knoxville, E. J. Tilton of Warner and Joe Manfre of Paramount.

Exhibitors reported little interest in tradeshowings, claiming they prefer to rely on trade paper reviews because of press of their business duties.

Buffalo Exhibs. To Add New Tax Only to Price

Buffalo—More than 100 exhibitors representing about 200 theaters in the Buffalo area yesterday met in MPTO headquarters, 505 Pearl Street, and agreed to raise admission prices only the approximate amount of the new Federal amusement ticket tax which becomes effective tomorrow.

☆ REVIEWS OF THE NEW FILMS ☆

"It Started With Eve"

with Deanna Durbin, Charles Laughton and Robert Cummings

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

Universal 90 Mins.

SWELL ENTERTAINMENT BLENDING COMEDY, ROMANCE AND BEAUTY WILL DELIGHT FANS AND CLICK SOLIDLY AT B. O.

Keeping step with its predecessors, the newest Durbin-Koster-Pasternak film, this time with Charles Laughton, will delight fans and followers of this magic trio equally as much as their previous films. It has much that is new in story, and the effervescent dialogue is highly laugh-provoking. Koster's skillful direction neatly blends comedy, romance and beauty. Pasternak's chore is well done with lavish production by top designer Jack Otterson a standout. The screenplay by Norman Krasna and Leo Townsend, from an original by Hans Kraly, has been well fashioned and makes for very entertaining screen fare.

Deanna Durbin is her usual charming self. She sings "Clavelitos," "Going Home," and "Waltz From The Sleeping Beauty Ballet" exquisitely—and in rare voice. Laughton gives a great performance as Cummings' elderly father. That subtle, Laughton handling of comedy lines is so very refreshing. Robert Cummings, (this is his third trip with Durbin) does nice work in the romantic lead. Others in the cast who are outstanding, are Guy Kibbee, Walter Catlett, Margaret Tallichet, Charles Coleman, Catherine Doucet and Dorothea Kent.

Charles Laughton on his deathbed, makes one last request; to meet his son's fiancee. Cummings is informed by the family physician, Walter Catlett, that it is only a matter of minutes before death will come. Unable to locate Gloria (Margaret Tallichet, to whom he is engaged), he offers Deanna Durbin, a hatcheck girl, $50 if she will pose as his sweetheart. Deanna accepts and when Laughton meets her he takes to her immediately and from that point on begins to improve in health. Complications arise when Cummings' real fiancee, and her mother, (Catherine Doucet) want to be introduced to his father. Deanna and Cummings decide to tell Laughton that their engagement is off, but when Deanna, who is ambitious to become a singer, learns that Stokowski will be at a party that Laughton is giving to announce their engagement, she changes her mind and stages a fake reconciliation with Cummings. Meanwhile Laughton has learned that Deanna is not really Cummings' sweetheart. Deanna does not appear at the party as per a promise made to Cummings. Laughton takes her to a night club and at the club learns that Deanna really loves Cummings. He tells the cameraman that the girl with him is his son's fiancee. When Margaret and her mother see the photograph in the paper the next morning they bow out of Cummings' life forever. As a result of Laughton's ruse, Deanna and Cummings discover that they love one another.

"The Maltese Falcon" with Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor

Warners 100 Mins.

FINELY MADE AND EXCITEMENT-STUDDED ATTRACTION WHICH STANDS HEAD AND SHOULDERS ABOVE THE AVERAGE MYSTERY PIC.

Most mystery pix wheel out of Hollywood with producer, distributor and exhibitor alike reasonably expecting them to be, at best, good-and-busy "B's" droning around the country and pleasing a certain type of film audience. Outlets will be making a great mistake in thinking that "The Maltese Falcon" is just an ordinary attraction of this sort. Actually it is ace entertainment which will undoubtedly go down in the 1941-42 season's annals as a gilt-edge property for the exhibitor and his customers interested in thrill yarns.

It is beautifully made, excellently cast and acted, while John Huston's direction of his own screenplay is as brilliant as any of the jewels which are alleged to encrust the figure of the falcon whose possession is the crux of the story,—a statuette whose lead replica is all that comes to light at the finale, yet is the instrumentality whereby the evil Sidney Greenstreet and his henchmen, who seek the original even at the cost of wholesale murder, are brought to justice. Humphrey Bogart, when his partner in a private detective agency is slain at the outset, seeks to avenge his death.

Slender clues branch into clear avenues for solution, but so ingeniously is the script fashioned that not until a whole series of hair-raising episodes and sharp twists of plot is Bogart in a position to draw the net around his dangerous quarry. "The Maltese Falcon," while an imaginative yarn, is studded with realism, particularly when the sleuth is drugged by the desperate Greenstreet and later sends Mary Astor, whom he loves but is deserving of punnishment, to pay the piper behind prison bars.

That Warners made this story a decade ago and the present film is a remake takes nothing whatever away from the latter. It shows how second shots can blast the target at the very core. Showmen who have sharp vision will do well to sharpen their pencils and underscore "The Maltese Falcon" on the list of available product, and not let it get away in the belief that it is another of those programmers.

CAST: Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor, Gladys George, Peter Lorre, Barton MacLane, Lee Patrick, Sidney Greenstreet, Ward Bond, Jerome Cowan, Elisha Cook, Jr., James Burke, Murray Alper, James Hamilton.

Wallis; Associate Producer, Henry Blanke; Director, John Huston; Screenplay, John Huston; Author, Dashiell Hammett; Dialogue Director, Robert Foulk; Sound, Oliver S. "One Foot in Heaven" with Fredric March, Martha Scott

Warners 108 Mins.

TOP-NOTCH ATTRACTION, WITH STRONG HUMAN INTEREST, IS TAGGED TO BULLS-EYE IN ALL SECTIONS.

Grandly entertaining, a credit to filmland, and one of the standout productions likely to come out of Coast lots this season describes "One Foot in Heaven."

Its quality and appeal spring from an inspiring screenplay; the shining performances of a Grade A cast headed by Fredric March and Martha Scott; direction of transcending worth by Irving Rapper; and the added fact that the film is as American as the Iowan scene itself, where March, a scintillating medical student who has become a Methodist minister,—shifting from the saving of bodies to the saving of souls,—repairs with his young wife to take over his first parish.

As shepherd of successive flocks, initially in a small community and later in Fort Dodge and Sioux City, he is beset with the difficulties and rigors of his vocation, raises a family, and takes over a parish in Denver.

It is in the latter city that the full dramatic sweep of the picture is unleashed,—drama interlaced with vibrant human interest; his battle to build a new church; the tremendous barriers he must surmount as a result of congregational "politics"; and the blackening of his innocent son's name by a group of parishioners who cause the boy's expulsion from school via the spreading of idle gossip that he was responsible for a certain family having to flee the city as a result of the lad's illicit relationship with the daughter. In the end, truth triumphs and the minister builds his new church.

The finale scene belongs among the fine sequences in recent film annals. Outlets from the biggest keys to the smallest of stands will find this a powerful, bound-to-please picture. Among its virtues is that it's splendid Americana, and will long be remembered by theatergoers. March and Miss Scott are great in their roles, and the supporting players top-notch. Photographically the footage is splendid.

On all counts "One Foot in Heaven" is a "must" for theaters.

CAST: Fredric March, Martha Scott, Beulah Bondi, Gene Lockhart, Elisabeth Fraser, Harry Davenport, Laura Hope Crews, Grant Mitchell, Moroni Olsen, Ernest Cossart, Jerome Cowan, Hobart Bosworth, Frankie Thomas, Nana Bryant, Carlotta Jelm, Peter Caldwell, Casey Johnson, Virginia Brissac, Olin Howland, Roscoe Ates, Clara Blandick, Paula Trueman, Harlan Briggs, Ruth Robinson, Cathy Lipps.

CREDITS: Vice-president in charge of production, Jack L. Warner; Executive Producer, Hal B. Wallis; Associate Producer, Robert Lord; Director, Irving Rapper; Screenplay by Casey Robinson; From the novel by Hartzell Spence; Dialogue director, Hugh MacMullan; In charge of sound, Francis J. Scheid; Assistant Director, Jesse Hibbs; Cameraman, Charles Rosher, ASC; Editor, Warren Low; Technical adviser, Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

Censorship of "Free Expression"

The resolution charges that the purpose of the inquiry was to block the production of anti-Nazi pictures and "is, in effect, a censorship of the free expression of American culture." It asserted that it was indicated that the inquiry was designed to breed religious and racial discord, "thereby to destroy the unity of the vast majority of American people who support the foreign policy of the nation." It condemned the actions as an immediate threat to free thought, free speech and to the "very fundamentals of liberty upon which our great nation was founded and strongly recommend that the inquiry be stopped."

The Stop Film Censorship Committee agreed to proceed on a national scale and to bring in thousands of organizations and individuals into the scope of its activities.

One of Jimmie Fidler's Newspaper Bosses Sets Down a Few Choice Words of Advice

Montgomery, Ala.—Jimmie Fidler, syndicated columnist, was soundly "spanked" in a three-paragraph editorial in the Montgomery Advertiser following the night club tangle with Errol Flynn on the Coast.

Headed "Advice to One of Our Employes," the editorial, after quoting Fidler's statement about not having a chance against Flynn because of physical proportions and age, says: "Of course, in the public prints and on the radio Flynn is the one who doesn't have a chance. The gossip columnist can take nasty cracks at the actor at will, and without fear of retaliation.

"As one of Mr. Fidler's employers, The Advertiser would advise him to confine his snears to men of less frail physique in future. Flynn might choose to hit with his fist instead of the palm of his hand next time."

306 Harris Arbitration Restrained by Court

circuit in a decision which restrained the arbitration proceedings.

Harry A. Harris, circuit head, had filed suit in behalf of nine companies, claiming that the arbitration ncitce served on Aug. 13 was invalid. He attacked the legality of arbitration on the grounds that the notice was issued too late; that it asked for retroactive increases; and that increases could only be obtained under the contract in the months of August of even numbered years.

The court stated that "a persual of the contract of March 23, 1938, which sought to establish a 10-year relationship failed to disclose any right in the petitioners to demand the arbitration." Additionally the court said some of the companies were no longer operating and that arbitration for these would be useless.

Calif. Clubwomen Condemn Senate's Industry Inquiry

San Francisco — Motion Picture Council of the California State Federation of Women's Clubs cracked down hard on Senate sub-committee's movie quiz.

Mrs. A. S. Musate, read a resolution, stating the Council "condemns strongly unwarranted and indiscriminate attacks on the motion picture industry under the guise of some political 'ism' that is attempting to serve its own interests by such attacks . . . and the Council is convinced political interests are attempting to use such an investigation to discredit the Administration's foreign policy."

The resolution was unanimously adopted. Council's move was interesting as the group often lines up against various film industry policies.

convention of the American Bar Association this week.

As chairman of the committee on copyrights, Sargoy's report will deal not only with proposals for the United States to join the International Copyright Union but with 10 bills pending in the present Congress pertaining to copyright properties.

Among the proposals disapproved by the committee is the adherence at this time to the International Copyright Union, but it recommends approval of the Kramer-Bone bill which would permit the President to extend the time during which native and foreign authors may file renewals of copyright or applications for ad interim copyright.

officials, Carl Cooper and Steve Newman, in attendance for the first time.

U. S. Indicts Two More IA Leaders of violating anti-racketeering statutes but did not name them as defendants.

Subsequently in Newark, Kaufman allegedly missing since Sept. 18, surrendered and then was released on $15,000 bail. U. S. Attorney Mathias F. Correa stated that the second indictment would not delay the trial of Browne and Bioff scheduled for Oct. 6. Federal Judge John C. Knox is slated to sit at the trial.

Dean, Browne's Chicago representative, has been missing since July 3 when a warrant for his arrest was issued. The second indictment is the work of the Grand Jury which has been inquiring into the financial affairs of the IATSE.

The victims of the alleged extortion are the same: Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.; Loew's, Inc.; Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, and Paramount Pictures, Inc. The profits from the alleged extortion, according to both indictments, was personal to the defendants and was obtained by threatening to call a nation-wide strike of the union's 125,000 motion picture and stage employes.

Calif. Labor Federation Soft-Pedals Browne-Bioff

San Francisco — The anticipated fireworks over Willie Bioff at the California State Labor Convention here, sputtered out. Sop was tossed to Los Angeles delegation by giving them six vice-presidents to their present three. Practically all present officers were re-elected.

One group at convention had intended to bring up resolution expressing confidence in George E. Browne, IATSE prexy, and Bioff—another group had intended a campaign to kick them out. Big boys in the back room sat on both factions hard, if quietly, and no skeletons walked on the convention floor. General opinion was that by the time Government is finished, Browne and Bioff will be out. Battle for control of IATSE, in that case, looks like a free for all, with no outstanding favorite, according to union politicians on the inside.

Senate Audit Com. Probe Curb Fades

the committee chairman, Sen. Scott Lucas, D., Ill., came a vigorous denial that any such meeting was scheduled for yesterday or, for that matter, for any other time.

Considerable importance had attached to the committee's supposedly scheduled meeting, as it had been indicated that the committee might "clamp down" on the sub-committee's expenditures. Senator Lucas on several occasions has expressed the conviction that the sub-committee's expenditures should be strictly limited.

An announcement, presumably from Senator Lucas' office, that the committee would meet yesterday was posted for the greater part of last week in the Senate press gallery. Stories based upon it had brought no denial until yesterday from Lucas' office. There was no explanation as to how the announcement found its way to the bulletin board.

Tobey on Lucas Committee

Incidentally, Sen. Tobey, R., N. H., who as a member of the sub-committee has been tearing into the industry, is also a member of the Lucas committee. Tobey is in New Hampshire this week on a speaking tour. The other two members of the audit committee are Senators Carl Hayden, D., Ariz., and Millard E. Tydings, D., Md.

Chairman D. Worth Clark, D., Idaho, also was out of town yesterday as was Sen. Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., who indicated, however, in a press statement that he will carry the fight for a fuller probe of the industry to the floor of the Senate. Nye will be out of town practically all this week, his office said. Clark is expected to return within a day or so.

In the meantime, Senator Ernest McFarland, D., Ariz., said he understood the sub-committee intended to do nothing at all this week. He pointed out that the World Series will consume quite a bit of newspaper space this week. Chairman Clark had indicated that the group might finally get around this week to seeing some of the pictures but apparently that is out.

Charlie Chaplin, Anatole Litvak and Publisher W. R. Wilkerson of the Hollywood Reporter are under subpoena to appear next week. Chairman Clark has indicated he is willing to call a halt to the hearings after a while, but has indicated also that he would like to hear these and Will H. Hays, together with a representative of the March of Time, and some radio people before folding.

Nye Ready for Floor Fight

In the meantime, Senator Nye declared he thinks results of the probe to date warrant a much fuller investigation, and that he is prepared to go on the floor of the Senate with such a request.

Nye asserted that the preliminary investigation "has established that the industry has exerted pressure to try to control the channels of information." He said he thought the hearings "amply justified."

Buffalo—After a day of testimony, Arbitrator Michael Catalano on Friday adjourned until Oct. 8 the arbitration hearing on the complaint of Dipson Theaters, Inc., against Paramount, Loew's, Vitagraph, RKO-Radio Pictures and 20th Century-Fox. Buffalo Theaters, Inc., Shea chain operating company, is an intervenor in the proceeding.

Dipson seeks restoration of previous films availability to its Bailey Theater, nabe house. Dipson contends availability has been changed in favor of the Shea-operated Kensington Theater.
